Here is a story I think will show how things are going in the good old U.S.A.

A man walks into a lunch room, sits down. A grandma with a small child come in, sits down in front of him. The man orders a sandwich and coffee. Grandma orders a roll and a glass of milk for the child; pie and coffee with cream for herself.

The waiter brings the orders. Another man steps in and drinks the milk, picks up the pie while grandma is putting the cream in her coffee, walks out.

The first man witnesses the whole thing and keeps still. Handouts for some while others turn their backs.
