Protestant Churches Plan Taking Census

ATKINSON

The Protestant churches of Atkinson will conduct a religious census of the rural area near Atkinson on Monday, October 1. The Ministerial association asks cooperation of all residents. Information which residents will be able to give in a few minutes will have "immense value" to the churches for several years, according to Rev. E. W. Danitschek. "It will enable each church to know its area of responsibility and will assist in planning future programs so as to serve the community more effectively," he declared. Forty lay members will work in teams of two in an effort to canvass an area comprised of approximately four hundred square miles. Every effort is being made to extend this census up to the territories already surveyed by the churches of other communities. Some duplication may result, but when the canvass has been completed most of the residents of Holt county will have been contacted. The program is being conducted under the direction of Rev. Leon Foster of the Methodist mobile ministry unit for this region. Reverend Foster will accumulate the information gathered and prepare a map showing the religious affiliation or preference of all families in the community.
