It Happened In NEBRASKA...

Stage-coach robbery was at its peak in 1877 when a well-organized bandit gang held up a stage near Sidney, Nebraska. One man held the team, another "covered" the passengers, and a third searched the group—while the leader issued orders. Then the chief whistled the passengers for a pleasant journey and sent them on their way.

None of that kind of "courtesy" for us, thank you! We'll take our hospitality at the hands of friends—with a pleasant evening at home topped off by light refreshment and a cool, refreshing glass of beer. For beer belongs—at home or away. The perfect invitation to friendship!

Miss Kathleen Dorothy Seymour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew A. Seymour of Edgemont Park, Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Vero Beach, Fla., was united in marriage to William Joseph Froelich, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Froelich, Saturday at 11 a.m., nuptial high mass.

The single-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter M. Seymour, S.J., an uncle of the bride. He also read the papal blessing in Saints Peter and Paul Jesuit church, Detroit.

The Italian beau de soie regal wedding gown was fashioned with rosepoint lace outlining the portrait neckline and edging the long pointed sleeves. The princess style gown had a voluminous skirt that swept into a cathedral train.

Her madonna veil of Brussels rose point lace extended beyond the gown's train. The bride carried a madonna lily surrounded by stephanotis, ivy and lilies of the valley.

Miss Marcella Seymour was her sister's maid - of - honor. Two other sisters, the Misses Isabel and Dorothy Seymour, were bridesmaids. They were joined by Mrs. J. Robert Bergan and Miss Mary Froelich, sisters of the bridegroom, the Misses Mary Feltes of Winnetka, Ill., Jane Mathieu of Evanston, Ill., Joan Hickey of Milton, Mass., Janet McKay of New York City and Mary Jane Wiggins of Grosse Pointe.

The 10 attendants wore carriage blue peau de soie waltz-length gowns. The bateau necklines folded softly to form a bow from which streamers fell to the hemline. Their tiny headpieces were fashioned of matching velvet with side bows and veils. Each carried an arrangement of pink tea roses and ivy tendrils.

James Froelich was his brother's bestman. Ushers were another brother, Charles Froelich, Bartholomew A. Seymour, jr., the bride's brother, J. Robert Bergan, Edward Campbell, John Lilly of Lincoln, Thomas Foye of Rapid City, S.D., Jeremiah D. Murphy of Sioux Falls, S.D., John Connolly of Minneapolis, Minn., Richard Cline of New York, William Frawley of Spearfish, S.D., and Arthur Nasser of Chicago.

A reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht club followed the ceremony.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Seymour appeared in a desert rose peau de soie sheath with an Alenon lace bodice and sleeves. Her hat was trimmed with rose ostrich feathers and she had matching accessories. She had cypridium orchids pinned to her purse.

Mrs. Froelich donned a mauve gown with a voluminous skirt. With princess styling, the simplicity of the gown was accented by small bows in the back to the waist.

Her accessories were of darker mauve. Her matching velvet hat caught a veil which covered her crown. The velvet half band carried out the bow accents on the gown with a slightly larger one at the back.

After the reception, the bride changed into a royal blue costume suit, matching feathered hat, black accessories and a mink stole. A home in Evanston, Ill., awaits the couple's return from a week's honeymoon trip to Alcapulco, Mexico, and to San Francisco, Calif., from where they will sail to Hawaii for six weeks.

Mrs. Froelich is a graduate of Manhattanville college of the Sacred Heart, New York. Mr. Froelich was graduated from St. Louis University, Creighton University School of Law, Washington, D.C.
