How To Get Your Car Ready For The Hazards of Winter

At this time of year, car owners methodically check the battery, change the oil and put antifreeze in the radiator, but few think of protecting the most obvious part of any car—the body itself.

Winter is rough on paint and trim, particularly brightwork—unless it is made of stainless steel. To protect the car's exterior and, at the same time, maintain trade-in value, give it a thorough washing with soap and water. After cleaning, touch up any nicks or scratches with matching paint, paying special attention to the lower sections of the body where painted areas are most apt to be chipped by flying stones. Then apply a good coat of wax to the body.

A lot of the brightwork on today's automobiles (such as wheel covers, grilles, side body moldings and window moldings) is made of stainless steel. Stainless steel trim does not require waxing or special cleaning, for it will withstand winter's severest test—road salt—with just an occasional washing.

Brightwork parts that are chromium plated should be cleaned with special cleaners as recommended by your service station. For added protection, pressure sprays of plastic or lacquer may be applied after cleaning. In areas where road salt is used to clear the highways of ice and snow, wash chromium brightwork frequently to keep it from corroding. Always wax the chromium plated brightwork along with the rest of the car.

800 - 1,000 Cattle Expected Today

We will have between 800 and 1,000 head of cattle today (Thursday)—about 500 fewer cattle than we sold a week ago. But it should be a nice sale with a lot of good cattle, including 500 to 600 calves, 200 yearlings, with the balance in mixed consignments.

Listed in advance were: 60 black calves from Eagle creek, choice for quality; 45 calves from Star; 28 steer calves from Chambers; 30 choice heifer calves from O'Neill; 53 whiteface steers and heifer calves from Inman; 26 yearlings from south of O'Neill; 31 short yearling steers from Atkinson, 600-pounders.
