Credit Bank Bought by 40 PCA Units

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, government-owned since its organization in 1923, will be purchased by the Production Credit associations in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming, according to James W. Rooney, secretary-treasurer of the O'Neill Production Credit association.

The PCA here, member-owned since 1950, is joining with the 39 other PCAs in the farm credit district to purchase the credit bank.

Rooney said the purchases of stock in the Intermediate Credit Bank together with the merger of the Production Credit corporation of Omaha into the bank on January 1, were provided for in the farm credit act of 1956.

"The Intermediate Credit Bank is the chief source of lending funds for this and other production credit associations," Mr. Rooney explained. "This bank, along with 11 other similar banks in the United States, in turn, gets its lending funds by selling debentures—short-term bonds—to investors without government guarantee," he continued.

The O'Neill PCA makes loans to farmers in Boyd, Holt, Garfield and Wheeler counties. The central office is at O'Neill with regularly scheduled contact points at Butte, Bartlett and Burwell.

Farmers in the four states in this district borrow approximately $120 million annually through their production credit associations.
