Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carr, Darrel, Sharon, Jimmie and Pat, Miss Cecelia Peter, visited at Dunk Peterson's Thursday. Darrel brought along his projector and show films the Petersons had received from friends; also some pictures he had taken of local folks. There were several other families present to see the pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rees visited at the home of their son, Bob, and family, Monday, near Burwell. Bob expects to go to Denver, Colo., Tuesday to find a location for the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Ressel have just returned from a seven thousand mile, 10-week trip.

Their first stop was at Rapid City, S. D., where they visited a hospitalized uncle and other relatives.

Next stop was with Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Ressel and daughter, Phyllis, at Opheim, Mont., where Boyd is foreman of a rural electrification construction and maintenance crew.

They witnessed a "parade of prayer" at Misoula, Mont. The parade included floats entered by 19 churches depicting the birth of Christ and seven thousand people witnessed the event.

Next day they reached Green Acre, Wash., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Gene Briggs and family. Mrs. Briggs is the former Evelyn Ressel, their oldest daughter.

At Manson, Wash., in the home of Mr. Ressel's sister, the O'Neill couple celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

Four Plywood Mill

Next stop was at Roseburg, Ore., with relatives. A highlight was a visit to a plywood mill.

Next stop was with their son, Earl, and family at Sacramento, Calif. Earl's oldest daughter, Gwen, was married, and the grandparents were present for the rites.

Then to Haywood, Calif., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Ankeny and family. Mrs. Ankeny is the former Claressa Ressel. Claressa has been away from O'Neill 2 1/2 years and Mr. Ressel explained it is "unbelievable" how her family has grown in the interval.

The O'Neill couple spent the holidays—Christmas and New Year's—at Haywood.

On January 3 they drove to Portfield, Calif., to visit a cousin, toured the Sequoia mountains and giant redwood forests.

Next stop was at Pacomia, Calif., with Mrs. Ressel's sister. Next came a stopover at El Segundo, Calif., with Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Bob) Regnier. Mrs. Regnier is the former Betty Ressel.

From El Segundo they went to South Gate (20 miles away) to visit Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ressel. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ressel at South Gate. Donald and Ronald are twin sons.

Disney Is 'Commercial'

The tourists took in Disneyland and visited Knott's berry farm. "Disneyland is highly commercialized," Mr. Ressel stated.

The Ressels spent a day and a night with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sauer at Long Beach and one evening with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kiltz, formerly of the Chambers vicinity.

Next stop was at San Diego, Calif., with Mrs. Ressel's brother, Charles Harris, and wife. A side trip took them to Tijuana, Mexico, where they witnessed a jai alai game. The Ressels dropped in on a roller derby at Diego.

Fascinated by Whales

Whale at the Beach were on the move southward and the plains people were intrigued by the "very visible" spouts of water emitted into the air by the whales.

Next on the itinerary was a visit at El Centro, Calif., with Mrs. Ressel's brother, Ross Harris. By this time it was late January and sugar beets were growing and the harvest of lettuce and cabbage was in full tilt. They saw 100 Mexicans in an 80-acre field of lettuce, cutting, grading and packing the product. It was estimated by the foreman the field would yield 70 rail car loads.

The globetrotting pair took a whirl through a cotton gin and had an escorted tour of the Southern California agricultural experimental station.

It was a big hurdle—1,500 miles—to the next stopover at Marshall, Tex., with their son, Jack, and his wife Virginia.

"I didn't know it ever rained in the great state of Texas according to press reports," commented Mr. Ressel rather dryly. "But it rained every day we were there!"

There was a final stop at Noosho, Mo., and then it was "home sweet home" and California weather awaiting in north-central Nebraska.
