

Prominent Angus Man Dies at 60

His father had been disaffected with a small acreage in Missouri and had passed up an Iowa opportunity to come to Nebraska. Raymond attended school in the nearby rural district and later attended Fremont Normal. "Ray", as he was best-known, recalled once for The Frontier how in 1908 he served as a messenger while neighbors battled a big prairie fire in northeast Holt. Mineola, the nearby town, was a flourishing place in those days. In 1911 his father purchased the first Angus bull to be put to use in the locality. By 1918 "Ray" had established a commercial herd of Angus and after 1920 was on his own.

Weds at O'Neill
On May 21, 1916 he married Miss Ethel Taylor at the Methodist church in O'Neill. They became the parents of six daughters. The Siders and Taylor families had lived neighbors for five years. Mr. Siders became active in statewide registered Angus circles and served on the board of directors of the Nebraska Aberdeen-Angus association.

He introduced Bandolier breeding to the area and that family today is predominate in the region. In 1944 he helped organize and headed the Holt County Aberdeen-Angus Breeders association and his entries in show and sale competition established records that have never been surpassed.

Mr. Siders contributed an Angus calf to the St. Anthony's hospital building fund at the outset and other contributors quickly followed suit.
Promoting Angus beef cattle and dispersing seed stock was his main objective and this desire was also reflected in gifts of calves to grandchildren and helping others to start herds.

Retires in Inman
In 1932 he and his wife and their youngest daughter, Miss Marilyn, moved to Inman into semiretirement on an acreage at the edge of town. Mr. Siders served as head of the Inman Community club, member of the Inman board of education, member of the Methodist church board of trustees.

He was long active in extension work and soil conservation activities and at the time of his death was vice-chairman of the Holt extension board. At the time of his death he was also a director of the O'Neill Production Credit association.

Mr. Siders was credited with establishing the Bandolier family of Angus at the Ft. Robinson agricultural experiment station in Nebraska.

Bought in 1923
