Switchgrass to Be Studied on Tour

Farmers, ranchers, business and professional men as well as 4-H club members and FFA students will be interested in attending a grassland conservation tour, according to A. Neil Dawes, Co. Agent. The tour will form at the northeast corner of Atkinson promptly at 1:30 p.m., Friday, August 23.

The Cleveland 4-H conservation club has initiated an exchange of conservation tours between the Boyd and Holt soil conservation districts. On July 7 the Boyd county tour was held with a large attendance from both Boyd and Holt counties. Farms in the Spencer area were visited viewing such things as a water disposal system using diversions and an erosion control dam. Also terraced fields, grass seedings, wildlife areas and tree plantings were observed. It was a very well planned and educational tour.

On Friday, August 23, the reciprocal tour will be held in Holt county with the following places to be visited. Row seeding of switchgrass for irrigated seed production on the Clifflers-Dvorak place just east of Atkinson. Blowout control on the Robert Martin ranch south of Atkinson. Two and three year defoliation of native pastures on the Funk ranch south of Atkinson, and grass seedings made on their ranch north of town. Some of those seedings were made four years ago, others are two and three years old.

The tour will deal chiefly with grass land seeding and management. The public is cordially invited to attend and see the results of these various grassland conservation measures, and see what it has meant to these individual ranchers.
