Mrs. Neubauer a 'Good Neighbor'

(Editor's note: Omaha radio station WOW regularly honors "Our Good Neighbors." The following letter of nomination was written by Mrs. N. D. Ickes, of Page, in behalf of Mrs. William Neubauer, also of Page. Both received orchids and Mrs. Neubauer was complimented with a new radio and wrist watch. Selection was made public on the Friday, June 6, program. Mrs. Ickes' letter follows):

Sirs: I'd like to nominate Mrs. William Neubauer, of Page, as your good neighbor for the week.

Faye Wood was born and grew up in our community. She taught 10 years in our rural schools, then spent the next 10 years nursing in a Norfolk hospital, where one of her girlhood neighbors persuaded her to be his wife and brought her back.

Several times children have made their home with them so that their education need not be interrupted. Often relatives and neighbors were cared for on their way to and from a hospital and dressings and shots were a part of her daily routine. Sometimes whole families of children were cared for while the parents were absent from home.

Hearing you are sick she comes to see how you are and stay to help care for your sick and dying if necessary. Often your washing disappears and comes back washed and ironed. The best news we ever heard is her "I'll be back tomorrow."

Faye was always been available as a baby sitter and this incident has always been good for a chuckle whenever we recalled it. Another neighbor and I had been invited to leave our yearling sons with her while we attended graduation exercises. Later in the evening when we collected our little cherubs, she told us they had been good boys and we could leave them again any time, but on the way out, Bill said in his careless English and with his boyish grin, "Faye says they were good boys, but they wasn't. They was ornery little devils, all bose (both) of 'em!"

And from many years spent in riding herd on seven of our sons, brothers and sisters, I knew he spoke the truth.

During the winter of 1949, both teacher and pupils of district 57 stayed with them and very little school time was lost.

In the rationed years a good many of us felt it to be good business to sell our good cars for more than we gave for them and resort to model T or A Fords, but Faye wouldn't let Bill sell their's and insisted it always be kept in good repair for fear someone might need to go to a distant doctor or hospital and that service was performed for relatives and neighbors several times during that period. They felt a greater responsibility for our good health than we did ourselves.

There was a time when Page had no doctor and we became accustomed to taking our symptoms to Faye. She usually sent us to a doctor but if there was a difference in opinion we usually felt Faye was right and the doctor was wrong in his diagnosis, which has been proved to be the case.

It is unusual to visit Faye and not carry away a gift of fruit, flowers or vegetables in season or a fresh loaf of bread or cookies or preserves.

If you are clever you may be able to give her some small gadget for her home but it never approaches the value of the service rendered.

Faye has returned her "talent" many fold, many times, and we are indeed fortunate to have her for "our good neighbor."

Sincerely,
MRS. D. D. ICKES

Boys' Girls' Staters Back Home Again

Holt county boys' and girls' state representatives have returned to their homes.

Helen Hartly, of O'Neill, lost her election bid for the "county board" but was appointed as "deputy state auditor."

Lois Ann Bergstrom attended from Ewing. A filled quota initially denied her a trip but when a vacancy developed she hastily packed for a week's stay in Lincoln.

The girls' staters elected Florence Goodwin, of Omaha, as their "governor"—the second time since the sessions began in 1939 that a negro won the office.

Robert Carroll, of O'Neill, was among the boys' staters. The boys named Craig Swoboda, of Norfolk, as "governor."
