Fine Handiwork on Exhibit

By C. D. ANKNEY
Staff Writer

How would you like a preview of the exhibits to be seen at the 1952 Holt county fair?

It's simple. All you have to do is ask for the key to the exhibit hall at the office of County Supt. Alice L. French. The hall, a frame building situated near the courthouse, is packed with handiwork from Holt county schools and reflects keen competition.

I visited the exhibit this week and met one of Holt's able rural teachers browsing about. I refer to Miss Theresa Ulrich, teacher in district 92 (Boshart school) for the past 10 years and signed to teach there again next year.

I asked Miss Ulrich to show me some of the art work done by her pupils. She pointed out expertly done posters dealing with spring and cleanliness. (See photo above).

Gary Kolcomb, who is in the seventh grade in district 212, Chambers, made the planes and a lamp which have a "superior" rating. Miss Ruby Holcomb is the teacher. The other lamp was made by Kenneth Backhaus, who is in the eighth grade at the same school.

The birdhouses were made by Dean Johnson, who is in the seventh grade at district 14 school, O'Neill. Mrs. Arthur O'Neill, teacher, and by La Donna McNulty, who is in the eighth grade at district 92—Miss Ulrich's school.

The bulldozer was made by Richard Hansen who is in the seventh grade in district 121, Chambers, Miss Marian Sievers, teacher.

Miss French county superintendent, said that plans are being made to take some of the items with a superior rating to the Nebraska state fair.

The projects are on exhibit in O'Neill over the weekends. The work of beginners, first, second, third and fourth grades are now also on display.

Eight town and parochial schools and 48 rural schools have entered projects of handicraft and art for exhibit this year.

The exhibits will be kept intact until Holt county fair time in late August. Highest rated handiwork will be entered at the fair.

New Policy on Medical Assistance

The Holt county welfare office has received new instructions from the state department which will be of interest to all recipients of state assistance.

"Effective immediately the first $3 of health needs will be met from the recipient's grant and deducted from the current statement for each month's medical expense."

This means that the recipients of all assistance must pay the first $3 on each month's medical costs.
