Retired Fire Truck Gets Converted

Modified Machine to Clean and Spray

O'Neill has acquired a combination street cleaner, chemical sprayer, and fire truck all-in-one vehicle. When the city purchased a new 15-thousand-dollar fire truck this spring one of the old fire trucks was taken out of service. L. C. Anderson, city superintendent, suggested that this old truck be converted into a utility truck. The conversion was done in Grand Island. Mr. Anderson demonstrated the many uses of the truck at the fire station this week. The tank holds 750 gallons of water which can easily be refilled. It will be possible to clean the streets now without raising dust and filth since the side-sprayer flushes the water along the curb and carries the dirt along the gutter. A sprayer on the rear bumper, which is 12 feet long, will be used to wet down the streets before a parade, and can settle the dust ahead of the broom sweep when the streets are being cleaned. In addition, it will be possible for the city to spray the trees and alley ways to prevent and kill pests. This comes as good news since the canker worm which destroys trees has been moving from southern Nebraska to the north. Besides, it is equipped with a fire hose and will serve as a fire-fighter and auxiliary water supply.

NEED HELP?

All 4-H club members who have demonstrations started and want help to get them in first-class shape are urged to be in O'Neill Wednesday, July 9, at 10 a.m. at the public school. Guy Davis will be here from the Lincoln office to help with demonstration work. Anyone who wishes, may come and sit in on these sessions and get ideas for their own clubs.

ROUTINE MEETING

The O'Neill city council met in routine session Tuesday night. A bill was allowed for the purchase of the new fire truck.
