SERMONETTE

by Rev. O. J. Burckhardt
 The work of the Comforter is made plain and simple, as to the purpose for which he was sent into the world. His first work was to organize the church. 2nd He was to teach Christianity as a vital force in the believer's soul. 3rd, He was to link the Church as an organized union with the risen Christ. 4th, He was to form within them that constituted the church. Christ as their hope of glory. 5th He was to bring back to our memory the things Jesus taught while here on earth. 6th, He was to guide us into all truth. 7th He was to enable us to subordinate ourselves to all the will of Christ, so much so, that He becomes just as real to us, as He was to the disciples when He walks thru the plains of Jericho and a round the coast of Galilee. Yea He come to put a new nature into our souls, so that we would not be bent toward the things of this world. Yes when He comes into abide all uncleanness must vanish. He can't live in a temple clogged up with tobacco, whiskey and filthy conversations. In other words the Comforter will not dwell in an unclean temple. So my friend if you are looking for Him you must clean house.

Herbert Hoover—Slave Trader, Negro Hater and Jim Crow Expert

the British company which he represented.
 With such a brilliant record of exploitation—which means money-making for the capitalists at the expense of the workers Hoover went to China. There he cruelly exploited Chinese coolies in the mines, forcing them to work for 10 or 15 cents a day under the most dangerous conditions. So heedless was he of human life, that he persistently refused to install in his mines even the meagre safeguards required by law.

Valued Wood Above Lives
 "The disregard of human life," he once stated, "permitted mining by economy in timber, and the aggrieved relations are amply compensated by the payment of $30 (in American money $15) per man lost."

Hoover, the mine manager, "found it cheaper to pay $15 whenever Chinese laborers were killed, than to properly timber the mine," says Walter Liggitt in his book, "The Rise of Herbert Hoover."

The authors of the book, "Washington Merry-Go-Round" speak of Hoover's remark that in China, he found chaining a coolie to a stake in the hot sun all day long, an effective method of discipline, which would also insure a minimum of strikes.

Pieces of wood were more precious to Hoover than human life! This savagery recommended Hoover as sufficiently hard-boiled for any cruel enterprise in South Africa.

NATIONAL COLORED PLANNING BOARD MAPS HOOVER CAMPAIGN

was, it remains insignificant besides his slave-trading activities in South Africa.
 In 1904, after the Boer War, the white mine-owners told the African natives that their wages in the mines, with food and huts, must be cut from $9.40 to $6.60 per month, about 26 cents a day. The robust Kaffirs refused. They were unwilling to submit to the imperialists, American or British.

With this "labor problem" on his hands, Hoover conceived the idea of enslaving Chinese coolies and making them work for the mere pittance which the Kaffirs had refused.

Whereupon a slave-trading deal was concluded, which is so monstrous as to seem incredible. The record, however, stands in print in numerous official publications of the English government, in reprints of speeches made in Parliament, and in the London papers of that time.

Hoover was then in charge of the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company, a British firm which he had helped to organize in one of the most shameless steals.

"On April 18, 1904, the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company, Ltd., sold into slavery 200,000 fellow human beings. These were Chinamen," says the writer John Hammill. Although 200,000 were contracted for, 60,000 were shipped before this nefarious practice was uncovered.

Profits from Slave-Ships
 Not only did Hoover profit through exploiting the labor of these coolies, but he was also interested in the shipping company which conducted the slave-traffic between China and South Africa.

The charge for transporting coolies was $85 a head. Under the contract, Hoover's company was to get $10 for each coolie rounded up, and $25 more per head for transportation. (At 25 cents a day, they would have to work 220 days to earn this $55.)
 The Chinese were shanghai'd. They were told of a veritable paradise with ideal working conditions and "garden cities."

Many of them were thus fooled into signing up for three years of slavery. Even the reactionary ex-premier of England, Lloyd George, in a speech before Parliament, denounced these advertisements for coolies as fraudulent.

In the course of 18 months, over 60,000, mostly agricultural workers, had thus been duped about the nature of their work.

These were carried overseas to be brutally beaten at work which the Kaffirs had rejected.

Coolies Crowded on Ships
 Though the law allowed only 1,000 on a ship, Hoover crowded almost twice that number on. Many died on the voyage, and many others goaded into desperation at the intolerable conditions, are known to have jumped overboard. They preferred death to Hoover's slave-ships.

These horrors recall the nightmares of the Negro slaves transported in the 17th century to America. Indeed a British statesman said in Parliament that the mine owners must have sought their model from the southern landlords before the Civil War.

The survivors of this awful trip were rushed to the mines, where they slaved hundreds of feet underground, in knee-deep water and constant rain. The "garden cities" proved to be filthy prison stockades, closely guarded by armed men. The coolies were packed into abominable quarters where free movement was denied them. The fate of those caught wandering from the restricted area or of those attempting to escape, may easily be imagined.

Not only were those men forced to slave 10 hours a day for 25 cents, but their pay was further reduced by "fines" placed against them at the slightest pretext.

"By Order of H. C. Hoover"
 All of the orders of the company were personally signed: "H. C. Hoover." The company paid 20 to 30 per cent dividends on its more than a million dollar capitalization.

So inhuman and cruel was this slavery, that it became an international scandal and was prohibited. Not however, before more than 60,000 coolies had been shipped to Hoover's mines at a tremendous profit to this twentieth century slave-driver.

 Between the years when Hoover left South Africa, and the time of the world war, there is no record of any outstanding Jim Crow or anti-Negro action on his part. The reason is simple; Hoover was not at any time during these years in contact with Negro or colonial toilers. His chief activity during this period consisted of selling, in England and in Europe, worthless stocks, and piling up immense profits for himself and the companies he represented.

But almost immediately upon his return to the United States, Hoover was responsible for two actions which endeared him to the Negro-hating bosses of America, and had not a little to do with his elevation to the presidential chair. These activities were his work as Chairman of the Special Commission on Mississippi Flood Relief, and his thefts in Liberia for the benefit of Harvey Firestone.

room and went into the bath room, there she heard 4 shots fired in succession. Marie Fellows was then called, she stated that she lived at 2513 M St., and came home Thursday Sept. 29, about 6 p. m. At that time Ballard Hawkins was sitting downstairs talking to Oscar Muffet, the man's home where they lived. She went in and asked Hawkins for money to buy food for supper. He gave her the money and she and a friend Ethel Booker went and bought groceries, and she then cooked supper. She called Hawkins to his supper, and at this time a telephone call came for Mrs. Booker next door. She went with Mrs. Booker to answer the call. When she returned to her house, she sat down to eat and an argument started. Marie Fellows states that she got up and said, "Well you didn't want me to eat with you anyway." Then we started fighting. Mr. Moffet came in and tried to part us. She stopped in the hall to pick up her beads where he had broken them, and fix her dress that was torn. She then said to Hawkins "Come upstairs I want to talk to you." She and Hawkins went upstairs followed by Ethel Booker. They all went into their bedroom and the argument started again (the nature of the argument was not disclosed) but she further stated that Hawkins was drunk and she was sobbing. She said Hawkins was seated on the bed and she said "Ain't you ashamed of your self?" and he said "No you—needs a beating." And in the heat of the argument, he started after a vase and she pushed him back, then he started toward the dresser and she made for the dresser, opened the drawer took out the gun and started firing. Then she states when she starts shooting he was still seated on the bed and did not move until she fired the fifth shot, the one which killed him. He attorney Dorn pleaded for dismissal of the case or change the case to manslaughter. Judge Wheeler bound Marie Fellows over to District Court, charged with first degree murder. No bond.

BEAT AND KIDNAP ORGANIZER OF UNEMPLOYED

Atlanta, Ga. (CNA) Otto Hall, Negro organizer here for the Unemployed Council, returned to his home after being kidnaped on the outskirts of Birmingham by armed men, and threatened with death.
 Hall was arrested in Atlanta and held incommunicado for 48 hours. Immediately upon his release, he was seized and beaten by Atlanta police officials.

He left at once for Birmingham, and as he approached the city, he was forced into a curtained automobile by several armed men who drove him to the city limits and told him to "keep going." They said they would kill him if he dared to return to Birmingham.

The International Labor Defense is demanding that Commissioner of Safety John Taylor investigate the kidnapping, and is urging all workers' organizations to send telegrams and resolutions of protest.

Atlanta has recently been the scene of many struggles of jobless Negro and white workers, who have in several cases obtained relief from the city authorities. These struggles were under the leadership of the Unemployed Council, and the arrest of Hall is an attempt to smash the growing organization of the unemployed. It is also, part of the wide spread effort to smash the all-Southern Scottsboro Defense Conference.

MR. JASPER COLE SECURES RACE EMPLOYMENT AT BUEHLER BROS. MARKET

After nursing an idea for years that all business places especially where my race contribute largely to their support, should employ some members of the race. Talking to several race leaders and Buehler Bros who operates a chain of markets in the city, with one in the Race district. At 24th and Lake Sts., I first opened an account with them and watched the Race people go and come. Finally I asked the manager, at that time, Mr. Poindexter, about what per cent of his business was colored. He told me about 60 per cent. He being the local manager, I took it up with him about colored help, which he didn't take kindly to, so I didn't get very far. In a short while the present manager, Mr. Frank Rogers was named in his place. I went over the matter with him. He readily agreed that he in turn would take the matter up with the district manager, Mr. Harry Ingram. After a few days, he reported to me that he could not do any immediately I closed my account and told my friend Mr. Rogers that I did not blame him as I thought he was O. K. to remind Mr. Ingram that I was going to knife him, as we needed places where we could make some money rather than spend it. A few months ago Mr. Fred Kleiber was named district manager, succeeding Mr. Ingram. Mr. Rogers, a wonderful little man, placed the matter before him. Whereupon, they called me in and told me that they were ready to consider my proposition, and asked for suggestions I gave my opinion that we should have a butcher employed, but as at present only 2 are employed, they gave my second request, a job for a school boy, Saturday and afternoons, with the promise of more consideration in the future, including regular employment for 2 race people. Too much credit cannot be given Mr. Rogers and Mr. Kleiber for their fair minded stand for the race.

COMMUNIST CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR HITS JIM-CROW PRACTICES OF SOCIALIST PARTY

New York, (CNA) William L. Patterson, Negro leader and Communist candidate for Mayor of New York City, last week charged the Socialist Party with betraying the struggles of the Negro workers and with having a consistent policy of Jim-Crowism. Patterson's statement was called forth by a recent incident at the Hotel Claridge, where the Socialist paper, The Jewish Daily Forward, owns a radio station, W. E.—V.—D. Negro entertainers trying to reach this station were refused the use of the passenger elevator. The Forward tried to explain that "the Negroes carried very bulky instruments." This explanation is a patent lie," said Patterson, "Mr. George Maynard director of the station, was also ordered to cancel several Negro programs.

"The Socialist Party as yet has offered no satisfactory explanation of its withdrawal of Frank Crosswairte, Negro, as its candidate for Lieutenant Governor of New York state. In its city election platform, not a word is mentioned.

BUEHLER BROS. MARKET WEL-COME RACE TRADE To Employ Colored Help

According to Fred E. Kleiber, new district manager, The Buehler Bros. stores which have always been noted for their quality meats at bargain prices are to launch a drive for new customers. Mr. Kleiber said that it was his belief that every man was entitled to equal consideration and to prove his point he has placed Jasper Cole, son of Jasper Cole, city fireman in the grocery department of the 24th and Lake St. Store and promises to employ a colored butcher in the near future. Mr. Kleiber is well known on the southside where he worked for many years as store manager for one of the Buehler Mkts., He has the acquaintances of some of the best known colored business men and women all of whom seem to be of the

STATEMENT BY MR. H. L. ANDERSON

It was my pleasure to go with the Nebraska Hoover Caravan to Des Moines and to enjoy what I considered the most eloquent, logical and convincing speech ever made by our Nation's President, Mr. Herbert Hoover. He spared no pains in discussing the several issues that claim the attention of the American People in the coming election and in stating his position as to his future policies in handling the affairs of our government, after Nov. 8th, as President of the United States.

John Owens Turns Plato
 (by Homer C. Burdette)
 John Owens, fielder of the Dave's Market Baseball team, has turned his shoulders against sports, and like Plato one of those wise Greeks, who was once an athlete, later turned his thoughts to more intellectual things and doings. It seems to me that

Owens is more or less a man of the same pattern. Through constructive thinking, analyzing conditions and desirous to help humanity, Owens has placed his name on the ballot, asking for a chance to represent the people in the ninth district. Owens has a good platform and a wonderful following, and may be able to give us a lot of help.

The colored political workers will be a definite and integral part of the general campaign forces. There will, however, be no separation or segregation and all groups will be under the immediate supervision of Chairman Sanders or his two assistants, Ray Benjamin and Robert H. Lucas.
