

District Meet for Legion Auxiliary in August; Mrs. Hicks Heads Membership Drive

Among the many events planned for the year on the American Legion Auxiliary Calendar is the forthcoming district meeting in August and the National Convention in Sept. The new officers are making an effort to entertain our out of town guests and make it interesting enough to all Omaha patriots who feel it their duty to stay at home and put all their vacation monies into War Stamps and Bonds.

One feature to be displayed for the National Convention is the Jap-two Man submarine, which was used by the Japs in their attack on Pearl Harbor.

The 1944 membership drive is on with Mrs. Hicks, general chairman and Mrs. Wright, chairman of the South Omaha division. We are trying to make the same record as Roosevelt Post No. 39, who merited a comment in the State Legnaire publication.

Thanks so much ladies, for coming on the second Thursday in August. There will be a call meeting on August 4th at Legion hall.

TO GIVE TWO LECTURES ON BAHAI FAITH IN OMAHA

BAHAI LECTURER, ARTIST AND ART TEACHER FROM EVANSTON TO LECTURE IN OMAHA

Two interesting lectures will be given this week end by Mr. Carl Scheffler, of Evanston, Ill., the first on Saturday evening, July 31st, at 8:00 pm. at the Sandbourne Studio, Room 222, Lyric Building, Corner 19th and Farnam Street. Subject: The Bahai Faith and What It Means to the World; the second at the Fontenelle Hotel, Sunday afternoon, August 1st, at 4:00 pm. (See Notice Board for Number). Subject: "A United World and A Temple of Unity."

At this time when one finds discussions on world unity in nearly every newspaper, magazine and book, as well as hearing the same vital problems echoed over the radio and featured in the movies, this nearly one hundred year old Movement... the Bahai Faith, is of great interest. Mr. Scheffler, who is a creative artist has trained thousands of professional artists and is especially interested in art as an educational medium. During his fifteen years as Art Direc-

The Cleaves Temple CME church, of which Rev. L. A. Story is pastor, will present "An Evening of Song" with the John B. tor of the public schools of Evanston he has done much to establish art expression as an integral part of the school curriculum. He is very well fitted to describe the nationally famed House of Worship of the Bahais at Wilmette, near Chicago, having watched its development from the laying of the corner stone many years ago. Heralded as one of the most unusual and beautiful buildings of modern times, as well as an architectural expression of the spirit of world unity, this striking structure on the shore of Lake Michigan has attracted attention all over the world. Its significance, as well as the ideals of the Bahai Faith, will be stressed in these talks.

The continent-wide visit of Abdul Baha, eldest son of Bahaiullah, the founder of the Bahai Faith, is a vivid memory to Mr. Scheffler, who was often in the presence of this great spiritual teacher and he will describe him and his message particularly on Saturday evening. In the field of Bahai administration Mr. Scheffler is also at home having served as a member of the National Bahai Assembly for several years.

Thrilling indeed is it to those working in this inclusive and far reaching Movement to see the principles for which the early followers of Baha'ullah and his predecessor gave their lives being discussed by thousands in different walks of life. The hope and aim of those who follow this Teaching is to help in the greatest spiritual adventure of all time... uniting in peace and brotherhood all the various races, classes and nations and solving permanently and equitably the economic and national problems which have heretofore baffled the wisest of men. A very cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these lectures.

EMPLOYEES TO INFORM PEOPLE NEBRASKA POWER 'DOES NOT HAVE TO BE SOLD'

More than 700 employees at a meeting Tuesday night of last week at Hotel Fontenelle, pledged themselves to inform the people of Omaha and surrounding territory that the Nebraska Power Company does not have to be sold to the city.

The resolution addressed to the Omaha city council was passed unanimously calling upon the Mayor and council to stand behind the council's resolution passed May 21, 1942, stating their desire to leave the company under its present private ownership.

The resolution stated: "We call upon the Mayor and City Council of our city to stand behind the resolution they passed on May 21, 1942, in which they stated their desire to leave the Nebraska Power Company as it is.

You passed this resolution when you joined with all of us in keeping Guy Myers and the Consumers from taking over Omaha's electric system and thus kept our fine electric service from becoming publicly owned, which automatically brings political control.

"For many months, statements have been made in Omaha, unsupported by fact, to the effect that Nebraska Power Company had to be sold. You gentlemen now know that the Nebraska Power Company does NOT have to be sold. You have received copies of a telegram from the Securities and Exchange Commission setting forth the true facts in this situation.

"Nebraska Power Company does not have to be sold and the City of Omaha is not under any obligation to purchase, even if it should be offered for sale.

"Since our Company doesn't have to be sold, then why bring about a sale under any plan of public ownership?"

"We have read about the issue of breaking faith with the legislature unless the Nebraska Power

We're suggesting them for breakfast because they're the best "persuaders" that we know for families stubborn about breakfast. Ecuses about lack of time and appetite simply disappear like magic, when breakfast includes piping hot Blueberry Muffins!

For a morning's work that seems to go through "in high"—difficulties easier, chores quicker, new problems seeming almost to suggest their own solutions—try a siseable breakfast. Try BLUEBERRY MUFFINS for part of it! Adequate breakfasts are one of America's worst dietetic faults—even poor lunchbox food would not be so disastrous, if we all started out in the morning with enough food of the right kind to carry us easily and with top energy through the morning.

Company is forced into public ownership under L.B. 204, passed by the last legislature. This is a fictitious issue. We know that you gentlemen constitute the only authority who could make any such deal, and you did not make any such deal.

"If an effort is being organized now to force our Company and Omaha's electric service into public ownership, we think some people are breaking faith with us.

"Certainly no issue of this magnitude should be decided without a vote of the people."

The action came at the close of the meeting after they had listened to talks by Martin Nelson, president of the local chapter, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Ed Hofmann, president of the Independent Employees Association of the Power Company, Morris E. Jacobs of Bozell and Jacobs Advertising agency, and advertising director of the company, and Frank Heinisch, chairman of the Omaha On Guard Committee.

"In all my years in Omaha no subject of greater importance and greater city-wide interest has ever been presented to the people," Jacobs declared in his talk in which he stressed the significance of encroachment on the American system of free enterprise, should the Nebraska Power Company become a publicly-owned utility.

"The great majority of the people of Omaha do not believe in public ownership, and they want to keep the Nebraska Power Company as it is. You, its employees, want to retain private ownership, not as employees of the Nebraska Power Company but as private citizens of this community and of America who oppose public ownership and its threat to free enterprise."

Jacobs denied that there had been any misunderstanding about the purpose of L.B. 204 as a vehicle to protect Omaha's interests or only if the Nebraska Power Company ever were to be sold. He cited the resolution of the city council of May 21, 1942. He also quoted Governor Griswold, who, in signing L.B. 204, described the legislation as a "haven" for Omaha's protection in case the power company ever were sold.

There was never any question in the minds of anyone, Jacobs said, that L.B. 204 was anything but a protective measure and an enabling act. It was not a law depriving Omaha of the right to private ownership of its utility. The Mayor's committee to investigate the power situation which called L.B. 204 a vehicle by which the city may protect its interests, and not a "must" order for purchase of the company by the city.

"Nobody knows what the status of the Nebraska Power Company is, nor how American Power and Light might comply with the dissolution order until the holding company "death sentence," Jacobs said. "It might not sell the Nebraska Power Company at all, or it might sell it to private interests, even to you employees of the company, or to its present stockholders.

"Even if American Power and Light is ordered to sell its interest in the Nebraska Power Company, it can't make Omaha buy it, as we are protected against its sale to Consumers public power district by L.B. 204," he said.

In his address, Martin Nelson complimented the Nebraska Power Company's management as being fair to deal with. "We don't want

Ft. Huachuca Dedicates New Ball Field

Leader Buried

Post Commander informed her that she would make the trip at the expense of Fort Huachuca authorities who were interested in paying tribute to her husband.

Slender, brown-skinned, her up-swept hair attractively silvered, Mrs. Foster proved as much a surprise to authorities at Fort Huachuca. Her charm, her graciousness, her eager, (almost girlish) enthusiasm and appreciation were so unfeigned and stimulating that Col. Edwin N. Hardy, Lt. Col. M. O. Bouffield, Commanding Officer, Station Hospital No. 1, and others who were responsible for her being out here were all quite in a dither about her.

She proved to be quite unaffected about the homage that some wanted to pay her. "It's my husband who is being honored," she quietly reminded them all. "I've always kept in the background; I think I was more in the foreground during the dedication program than at any other time that I can remember."

At Fort Huachuca, Mrs. Foster was impressed by many things. The splendid recreational program that has been worked out for soldiers on the Post, the interest of Col. Hardy takes in the welfare of the men stationed at Fort Huachuca whether they're under his command or not... and last but not least, the splendid get up of the Station Hospital No. 1 that is run entirely by Negro personnel. "It makes me proud of my people," she said simply.

She was also impressed and deeply touched by the fact that her husband's memory was honored in the naming of the new baseball field, which was formally dedicated and turned over to men of the 92nd Division on Sunday, July 18.

"Of course, it's a Negro camp," she conceded, "but the marvelous thing about it is that they just didn't have to name it after a Negro baseball player. They could have called it "Babe Ruth Field" or some such name. And they didn't have to send for me. Now didn't they? No, the beautiful part of it was they didn't have to do it at all."

"I feel proud, too of my husband" she confessed, "because he left me in such a condition that they could at least find me when they wanted to have me out here for the dedication of that field."

For a moment her eyes were most as she reminisced, recalling that if her husband had lived they would observe their wedding 35th anniversary in October. "Rube was a good husband," she mused. "He was a careful, conservative sort of man; that's why he left me a home and enough to send his sister and our son through their remaining years of college."

The secret of Rube Foster's success, one gathers after a talk with Mrs. Sarah Foster, was two fold. He had a good helpful wife and he himself was that rarity among sportsmen... a Christian, God-fearing and church-going.

To a man who had known and worked with Rube Foster, Frank "FAY" Young nationally known sports writer, it never ceased to be a surprise Mrs. Foster said, that "Rube went to church every Sunday when he was in the city."

He was a member of St. Marks ME Church and Mrs. Foster is a member of Bethel A.M.E.

To Mrs. Foster, however, the thing that she "can't get over" is the fact that she came "all these miles to see people pay such tribute to my husband after all these years."

"I guess I won't really realize what it is all about until I get back home," she said, shaking her carefully-coiffured head.

Don't Force! Don't Strain— Thus Risking Hemorrhoids

TRY THIS FOR 5 DAYS

Here's one right and proper way to moisten hard dry passages and obtain more gentle "easy" movements. Every morning for 5 days, 15 minutes before breakfast, drink a glass of hot water to which one teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts has been added. While you are eating breakfast the hot water and Kruschen will be feeding moisture to those hard, dry passages. They become soft, moist, easier to expel. No need to strain and thus risk painful rectal irritation. Usually within 30 minutes wastes are expelled smoothly and gently. You feel gloriously fresh again! Follow the simple easy directions. Don't delay—you can get Kruschen Salts at any drug store.
