A great burst of applause greeted the reading of the resolution, but half a dozen irate Democrats were on their feet and HOUSE DEMOCRATS RECEDE demanding recognition, prominent among them being Bourke Cockran of New York.

Owing to the lateness of the hour a rule was adopted limiting further speeches to five minutes. Then Mr. Cockran delivered a vigorous and eloquent speech against surrendering to the senate. "Better no tariff legislation than the senate bill," he said. He declared that there was no necessity for the house to surrender as yet and challenged Chairman Wilson's statement that four Democratic votes in the senate would be lost to the bill if the fight proceeded. He demanded the names of the four senators, but Mr. Wilson refused to give them.

Mr. Robertson of Louisiana objected to the resolution on account of the free sugar provisions and generally protested against the treatment of the law. As the hour of 12 o'clock ap-proached when the house was to meet, the cry of "Vote, vote," went up from the impatient members, but Mr. Robertson urged that it would be bad faith to cut off the Louisiana planters from the bounty on this year's crop on which they had reckoned when they put it in.

The Maryland delegation, Breckinridge of Arkansas, a member of the ways and means committee, and Williams of Mississippi, also voted against the resolution. Most of those who voted against the first part of the resolution voted for the second. Among those who voted against the resolution were the Louisiana members, Warner, Covert Dunphy, Strauss, Cockran and Tracey of New York, Tarsney of Missouri, Cooper of Indiana, Johnson of Ohio and Kilgore of Texas. The resolution as adopted is mediately after roll call and made a as follows:

as follows: Resolved, That it is the sense of this cau-cus that the order heretofore made requesting a conference with the senate on the disarree-ing votes of the two houses on house rule 484 be rescinded. Representative Tucker of Virginia then offered a resolution thanking the house conferrees for their loyal services. This was adopted with a shout of approval and the caucus idiourned.

"I do not expect my argument to have any effect," he said in conclusion, al- | Twenty-four Lives Lost in the Catasdressing the Democratic side, "but you are like the heathens who have listened to the Christian missionaries. You have no chance of redemption."

The speaker announced that he was ready to rule. After a careful statement of the situation and the declaration that by a special order changing or suspending the rules of the house temporarily, the accepted doctrines of Jefferson's manual were carried out and after citing a precedent in one of Speaker Carlisle's rulings, the speaker overruled the point of order.

The previous question was then ordered without division. This gave fifteen minutes on a side for discussion of special order.

Mr. Catchings did not desire to debate the rule, and Mr. Reed took the floor and made a very sarcastic speech. "You are going to give the country free sugar," said he, in his most ironical vein, amid shouts of Republican laughter-in your minds. And free coal and free iron ore. You are going to be bold and manly as you have been in this backdown, without a reference to the committee that stands between you and the noble purpose that thrills you." Mr. Turner of Georgia replied to

Mr. Reed and was greeted with applause by the Democrats. He said that the gentleman from Maine had built up a parliamentary system which now reacted against him. There was no right or justice in the assumption that the action of the senate in sending the bill back to the house was wrong. He asked Mr. Reed what right he had to make his assumption.

Mr. Reed said he did not make any claim. He had been informed that the irregularity occurred, but he had no personal informatisn. Mr. Turner proceeded to show that the action of the house was strictly regular.

The question then being put on agreeing to the resolution Mr. Reed demanded a division. The entire Democratic side rose en masse, but when the negative vote was called for the Republicans sat calmly in their seats hoping to break a quorum. When the speaker announced the vote -186 to 3-twelve more than a quorum, the Republicans were somewhat disconcerted.

The resolution was adopted-176 to Messrs. Johnson of Ohio and Warner of New York, voted "no."

The tons of water thrown on the twisted relics of the train and the bed of embers had been insufficient to prevent every vestige of combustible matter being destroyed. Occasionally a charred skull or a partially burned human bone was raked from the bed of the furnace, but nothing more re-mained to tell the tale of those who went down with the ill-fated train, and time will be required to determine just how many persons were lost in the wreck. From the confused tangle of conflicting stories told by excited eye witnesses it has been ascertained that only one man met his death in the flames.

There are two theories as to the wrecking of the train, it being conceded that the train was derailed by the removal of the rails for a part of the way across the trestle. There is plenty of evidence to prove this as a fact. A fish plate and the bar with which it had been wrenched loose were found near the trostle after the wreck occurred.

One theory is that strikers from South Omaha did the work, believing that a company of state troops which was to have boarded the train was aboard. The company missed connection, however. This is not as generally credited as the other-that the element that has been causing so much trouble in Oklahoma, who are itter against the Rock Island did the job, though why they should come this distance to wreck a train that might have been wrecked nearer home is not explained. the sugar tr which would resul from many of these propositions. He did not indulge in the sharp criticism that was expected on the motives of the senate conferrees. He dwelt on the fight made by the house conferrees for a specific duty on sugar on the ground that under an ad valorem system it would be impossible to tell on account of the invoice methods the exact advantage which would accrue to the sugar trust. He made the remarkable statement that he had been credibly informed and believed that the sugar trust had anticipated the acceptance of the senate sugar schedule and purchased $112,000,000 worth of raw sugar. If this was true, he said, the profits accruing to the trust from this investment in advance of enactment of the senate schedule would be at least $40,000,000. He also pointed out at length the embarrassment attendant on the efforts to adjust the coal and iron schedules. "The great battle," said Mr. Wil-son, warming up, "is between the American people and the sugar trust. It is a battle in which the trust has taken the people by the throat, and it will never end until we throw off the There was an enthusiastic apgrip.' plause at this. +

Mr. Wilson proceeded to state that the house conferrees had been willing to concede almost everything except these vital items of sugar, iron and coal: that the senate conferrees had also seemed willing to concede much and had much the same views, and were apparently dominated by the knowledge that if they conceded what the representatives were willing to concede the bill could not pass and the agreement would be useless.

Mr. Wilson concluded by saying that he had now become satisfied that it was either the senate bill or no legislation.

Mr. Montgomery then took the floor and substantiated what Mr. Wilson had said as to the details of the conference.

Speaker Crisp followed Mr. Montgomery. He spoke with much spirit and earnestness, and soon the caucus was in a tumult of enthusiasm, round after round of applause greeted his remarks. He spoke of the critical situation, and the apparent need to accept the senate bill, and then, if need be, to introduce separate bills for free sugar. free iron and free coal. He believed that it was either "the senate bill or nothing." He said that as long as there was a desperate chance of securing the concessions which the house demanded, he was in favor of standing out, but he was now satisfied that the time had come when further insistence by the house was useless.

MR. CRISP'S SURRENDER PROPOSAL.

Mr. Crisp closed by offering a resolution instructing the house conferrees to recede from the disagreement to the "roll of honor" but was now in a hurry to get on the "roll of dishonor."

Immediately after the adjournment of the caucus the house conferrees went into session in the rooms of the committee on ways and means.

The intention is to dispose of the iariff bill and then to put through the separate free list bills named in the caucus resolution.

There is good authority for the statement that the president will neither sign nor veto the senate tariff bill, but let it become a law without his signature under the ten days' provision of the constitution.

BEFORE THE HOUSE.

Ex-Speaker Reed Taunts the Democrats Over Their Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.-When the house met to-day, five minutes after the Democratic caucus had adjourned, there were more members on the floor than at any time since the tariff bill was passed. The anxious public, which thronged the corridors before the doors were thrown open, crowded into the galleries in anticipation of the final scene in the long tariff battle. The greatest confusion existed on the floor. Members were standing about in excited groups discussing the situation, the general understanding being that resolutions to agree to the senate amendments and probably to consider bills for free coal, iron, sugar and barbed wire would be brought in this afternoon. Under the rules Mr. Heard, chairman of the committee on the District of Columbia, pending action by the committee on rules, claimed the day for the consideration of business reported from the committee on the District of Columbia.

At 2:21 o'clock the rules committee appeared and Mr. Catchings submitted a report for the immediate consideration of the senate tariff bill, to be followed by the separate bills for sugar, coal, iron ore and barbed wire. Mr. Reed made a parliamentary objection to the procedure, claiming that the tariff bill was not before the house and indicated the Republican intention to fight the bill and report in every proper way. At the present time, he said, the senate was proposing action and the house was proposing action at the same time. The house had no report on the bill and the senate had repented of its bill. Both were ashamed of their offspring. [Republican ap-plause.] Yet the house was now preparing to grab the senate bill before it could be repudiated by that body and swallow its nauseous meat. Such a spectacle had never before been witnessed. He sarcastically referred to Mr. Bunn [Democrat], of North Carolina. who attempted to interrupt him, as a man who had been late in getting on
