NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

The mountain lion is again in this vicinity. He has visited Frank Lilly's farm, three miles east of town at two different times, the first was Monday night when he got one of his largest porkers, the second time was Tuesday night, and this time he got a nice colt. This is getting most two familiar and he should have something done with him. —Hardy Pioneer.

P. L. Harper returned from Chadron via Omaha Tuesday. He reports a complete victory for himself and friends in the contest cases he had charge of at Chadron. He drove through Cheyenne, Box Butte and Dawes counties but found no country the equal of south Lincoln. The corn being marketed here now he says compares favorably with the eastern and other portions of the state, and with such crops our success is assured. —Wallace Herald.

Ulrik Blisskumer, living about seven miles north of town, started for Curtis Wednesday morning and was thrown from his wagon and severely injured. The accident occurred through the falling of the wagon tongue, which frightened the horses, and they began to run. The young man who was with Mr. Blisskumer jumped from the wagon and allowed the horses their liberty. Mr. Blisskumer was thrown from the wagon, striking heavily on his head and shoulders. He was picked up and taken to the home of Charles Snyder, and a doctor sent for. He appears to be injured internally about the chest and at last accounts was unable to speak. —Curtis Record.

J. L. White, one of Curtis' lawyers, while at Stockville last Tuesday, on legal business, met with a severe and painful accident. A friend of Mr. White's had a revolver in an overcoat pocket, and was talking to the attorney. By some means the revolver was discharged. The ball entered Mr. White's foot on the instep, passing downward and backward. On arriving home Dr. B. M. Howland was called and dressed the wounded member. The result of his examination and probing for the bullet disclosed the fact that the ball had certainly lodged in the ankle joint, where it still remains. While the wound is a severe one, it will be successfully healed by the treatment of the attending physician. —Courier.

New York building enterprise appears to have some advantages over the high-water mark circulation of some of its papers. Last year's building additions amounted to $67,000,000.

The mills of Lowell, Mass., use nearly $30,000,000 worth of cotton annually, and send out more than $100,000,000 worth of cotton goods.

Old "Anty Jane" Collins, a colored woman who died in Nashville, Tenn., last week at the age of 104 years, was thought to be the oldest person in the state, and was at one time a servant for General Jackson.

The first savings bank established in the United States was the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, organized in 1816. The second was established in Boston in 1816, and the third in New York in 1819.

The first cotton, consisting of eight bales, sent from the United States to England in 1784, was seized by the custom house officials on the ground that the United States could not have produced so much.

As an evidence of the progress made by the negroes since the war, it is shown by late statistics that in three states—Georgia, South Carolina and Louisiana—they pay taxes on $48,000,000 worth of property.

Lord Tenyson receives an income of from $20,000 to $25,000 a year from the sale of his books, but not a cent comes from an American publisher, despite the fact that his poetry is nearly as popular here as in England.

Notwithstanding the tariff on wool and woolsens, a workman can buy a suit of clothes cheaper than ever before. By reason of the tariff, also, the workman's wages are greater than ever before. The tariff works both ways in the interest of labor.

A cablegram from Rome says that the Pope's successor is already being considered, and that there is a strong party in the Roman Church in favor of selecting the next Pope from some other city than Rome and some other country than Italy.

Richard Woodman and his wife are about to be released from the State Insane Asylum at Concord, Conn., after thirteen years' confinement. An investigation shows that they are not insane, and never were, but were stubborn about paying over a bill that had already been paid.

The visit of Lord Randolph, of England, to Russia has brought about a much better understanding between the two nations. The semi-official organ of Russia, argues that British statesmen must admit that England during the last thirty years has lost more by hostility to Russia than she has gained by friendship with other powers.

It is proposed to erect a prison for the confinement, and, if possible, the reformation of criminals convicted under the laws of the United States. At present such convicts are confined in state prisons, the national government paying a certain amount for the care of them.

A monument to the memory of Horace Greeley is now talked of in New York city. If it takes the New Yorkers as long to raise the funds for the proposed monument as it will for the Grant monument Greeley's name will have passed into tradition long before the monument is completed.

Col. George S. Perkins of Norwich, Conn., is New England's most remarkable centenarian. He was 100 years old in August, and is still treasurer of the Norwich & Worcester railroad and performs all the duties pertaining to the office. His wife who is ninety years of age, is also an active and well preserved old lady. Col. Perkins was on Robert Fulton's steamboat on his trial trip on the Hudson in August, 1807.

Miss Mollie Bergen, a lass of sixteen summers whose parents live on Pool's Slough, Yaquina, Ore., saw a deer dash by the house and jump into the slough the other day, whereupon she procured her father's Winchester and shot the animal dead. She then unmoored a boat tied to the bank, rowed out to where the buck lay floating in the water, pulled the carcass into the boat and brought it ashore before any of the men folks arrived. The deer weighed 300 pounds.

A colored woman and a white man met on the street at Beaufort, S. C., the other day, and the path through the mud would only permit of one passing at a time. Neither would waive the right to the first street, and they both remained in the street all day, sending for chairs and their meals, while their friends gathered about to watch the "sitting match." When the old lady sent for her kitting the white man concluded he did not want to go that way, and turned back.

An Omaha lawyer was the victim of a huge joke which came out in all its uninviting proportions Christmas. An old time friend of his from Kentucky shipped him some '65 whisky. He received the package by express, apparently in good shape, and invited his friends to have a merry-making Christmas eve. Imagine his chagrin when he opened the package and found that the large bottles were empty. It is presumed that the package was shipped by the circuitous route of Kansas, where the express messengers get extremely dry at times.

Murderers are becoming so polite that it seems a pity to hang them. A gentleman was executed in California the other day, whose friends had appealed to Waterman for clemency for him in vain, and he took occasion while on the scaffold to compliment the able executive for his firmness and hoped that he never would lose his grip. The governor has refused clemency to six murderers during the past four weeks, and so long as he remains in office California executioners will doubtless enjoy a boom.

One day this week, had you been in a certain part of the city the same time we were, you might have seen a foreign lady, a Bohemian, stuffing the upper story of her house with hay. Some people like to smoke dynamite bombs, some like to sit on a keg of powder and calculate how long it will take a fuse to burn up to the bung hole, others like to experiment with an engine without any water to speak of in the boiler, still others take pleasure in fooling with unloaded guns. But we must confess that for real exciting fun, sleeping in a house jammed full of hay with a hot stovepipe running through it, takes first money every time. —Cretes Globe.

Twenty years ago Judge Brinson of Burke county, then a young man, was a student of the Lebanon law school in Tennessee. While there he became enamored of Miss Harn, the daughter of a wealthy farmer in Franklin. He asked the girl's parents for their consent, but they objected on the ground that he was a Baptist, they being strong Methodists. The match was broken off, Brinson returned home, entered the practice of law, and soon rose to the bench. He never referred to the Franklin incident, and it was supposed to have been forgotten. Some weeks ago a visitor to Waynesboro mentioned the name of the lady in the hearing of Judge Brinson, who then found out that she had never been married. He at once closed up his affairs so he could take a trip, sought out the lady, and the nuptials of twenty years waiting were celebrated.

John Wanamaker is trying what A. T. Stewart benevolently tried to accomplish and failed. Mr. Stewart as will be remembered, built a magnificent hotel on Park avenue as a cheap boarding house for women. It was not a cheap $8 boarding house. Nothing but a tremendous endowment could have made it so. The imposing structure is now a good hotel at good hotel prices, but the working-woman boardereth not therein. Mr. Wanamaker proposes to make a home for his female employes. He has accordingly converted into the Hotel Walton one of the finest brown-stone residences in Philadelphia, a residence upon which its former owner spent $150,000. About fifty women have already applied for rooms. Anything that will sweeten the lives of some of our toiling women should prosper.

There is a young lady of Boston who is very much addicted to eating paper. Every clean speck of this article that comes in her way is immediately put into her mouth. She happened to be in a counting room the other day, and after she had departed the gentleman missed a check that he had made out that morning and laid upon his desk. It was sought for high and low, but could not be found, and, finally, as a last resort, a messenger was sent to the fair caller to ask if she had seen it. She returned answer as follows: "Dear Mr. Blank: There was a nice, smooth, shiny piece of paper in front of me in your office and I ate it. Could it have been that?" The payment of the check was stopped, though this proceeding was deemed unnecessary.

A correspondent writing from Albany to the New York Press says: I like the idea of nominating Sheridan for President. He is a new man, a good man, a hero and a winner. This is the kind of a candidate we need to bring all our old Republicans together again. If we take a new man like Sheridan, one who is great in his claims upon the gratitude of the country, and who is equal to the high duties of the Presidency, we can win. It is a risky business to keep on running a beaten horse, and with Democrats in power we need to have our eyes open, or we shall be a bad lot again in the Presidential race for 1888. With a real hero like Sheridan, we can sweep the field and beat free trade like fun. I'm for Sheridan, and so are the "boys in blue"; and so are a great multitude who wish to see a man nominated who can win the victory for us. It is not pleasant to work up enthusiasm for a "paint the town red" heat, and then have the darkness of defeat settle down over us! No give us Sheridan and we will elect him President in November.

HUMSON, Wis., Dec. 26.—A valuable bird dog belonging to "Jump" Jones, of this city, supposed to have been stolen or killed, was found yesterday in an old caved-in well about 60 feet deep, near a deserted farm house in the suburbs, into which he had fallen while in pursuit of a rabbit. He was first discovered by some neighbors who heard him barking continually and in a most distressing manner. The information soon reached Jones, who immediately secured a rope and started for the place. On arriving he lowered a lantern down to where the dog lay, made a slip-knot on another rope, and he tried to throw over the dog, but without avail. He then went down to secure help, leaving the end of rope with the noose on in the bottom of the well. On returning he was amazed to find that the dog had raised the noose up with his nose and placed his head and front paws in it. He was immediately lifted to the surface. The dog is in a pitiable condition, being but a mere shadow. The animal had been in the well about ten days without food. —Milwaukee Wisconsin.

If the republican issues of the present are less emotional and enkindling than those of an earlier day there is certainly nothing in the democratic party which makes it alluring to young men. It is burbanic in its traditions and fossilized in its management, and although for brief periods, and "revenue only," it has made pretensions to reform, it has speedily gone back to its "wallowing," with an intensity of satisfaction which suggests that as its natural condition. The republican party, on the other hand, stands for certain great principles which may well command the loyalty of young men. It holds to a genuine reform of the civil service. It stands for a treatment of the tariff along the lines of protection to American manufacturers and American labor. It insists upon a fair ballot and an honest count, north and south. It antagonizes the dominance of the saloon power and offers the most effective political agency for restraining it. Upon these and other issues it appeals confidentially to young men who, as they come of age and consider what party associations they shall form, will naturally be drawn toward the party which stands for the right side of current issues.

The Queen Seriously Ill.
This does not refer to the Queen of England, but to the queen of a household at Lincoln, Neb., where she rules by common consent. "In March last, when six months old, our baby was taken down with what the physicians called 'bronchitis' (an ordinary cold) and was very sick for two weeks; she seemed to be filled deep in the chest with phlegm which we were unable to loosen; she could not lie down at all, but had to be held upright else it caused her to cough severely; the physician did not give her any relief, although the prescriptions were changed every day and sometimes twice a day; this treatment was continued about ten days and we finally determined to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We obtained a bottle and after giving a few doses she was relieved, breathing easier and throwing off the phlegm and getting to sleep, getting well in a few days, and we believe we owe her life to the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Our oldest girl is subject to croup and has had several severe attacks but the Cough Remedy has brought her out all right with but two good doses and we would not go over night without a bottle in the house. We have great faith in it." Signed, Wilbur E. Wells, Lolie L. Wells, 1531 C street, Lincoln, Nebraska. Sold by C. W. Price and F. H. Longley.
