The Sidney Telegraph presents the name of James Sutherland for state treasurer, a nomination that receives the hearty endorsement of every citizen of North Platte.

Having disposed of his stock in that institution, he in company with Hon. A. D. Buckworth, C. E. Osgood, M. Oberst, James Beeler, J. I. Nesbitt, W. T. Wilcox, C. F. Iddings, J. S. Hoagland.

As a financier and as a citizen Mr. Sutherland's record is without blemish, and it is with pride this county and the entire West Nebraska can go to the State convention supporting such a man for treasurer.

In suggesting his name the Telegraph very appropriately says:

The Telegraph is in receipt of numerous papers from various sections of Nebraska advocating the claims of favorites for state officers. We have no candidates in Cheyenne county for any state office, but there is one gentleman, formerly of Cheyenne county, whom we take the liberty of suggesting as an available man for state treasurer and a representative citizen of Western Nebraska. That man is James Sutherland, now engaged in the banking business at North Platte. Mr. Sutherland lived in Cheyenne county ten years, land land a fair count; that the ballot and a fair count; that the late electrate that the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at the late electrical in the state of Louisiana at Sutherland, now engaged in the banking business at North Platte. Mr. Sutherland lived in Cheyenne county ten years, previous to 1886, and was engaged at first in mercantile and afterwards in the banking tion for labor, encouragement for commerce, dispatch in the transaction of government business and a fair opportunity to fulfill the rein mercantile and afterwards in the banking business. He was county treasurer of Cheyenne county about five years and is universally regarded as the best treasurer the county ever had, straightening out the treasurer's books, which had previously become entangled, and keeping the office with the most exact system. A thorough business man, a man of integrity, a self-made man, one who would enter upon the discharge of his duties in every way qualified to perform them, and a sound republican, is the man whom we suggest for the important position of state treasurer. He would receive the unanimous support of republicans in Cheyenne county, and if fortunate enough to secure the nomination and election would make as able a state treasurer as has ever filled the office and not only bring credit to the office and not only bring credit to States. himself but to Western Nebraska as well.
