The programme includes a number of choice selections and they will be rendered in a pleasing and entertaining manner by Miss Pike. Instrumental and vocal music by local talent will add to the entertainment. THE TRIBUNE speaks for Miss Pike and the ladies of the church a liberal patronage, feeling assured that all who attend will be well repaid.

R. G. Don & Co. have just issued their report of the condition of crops in Nebraska for the month of June. Their report being as follows: Corn, which is the principal crop, has an increased acreage of 25 per cent over last year. Considerable wheat is raised, acreage about the same. Prospects good for one-fourth to one-half crop of wheat. Corn is a good stand and prospects never better. Small grain that was not plowed up has improved wonderfully. There will be very little oats. Cattle and hogs are doing well. Collections fairly good and trade improved over a year ago. Demand for money normal and supply ample. Farmers are getting well stocked up with hogs and cattle and with corn to feed them money will be plenty.

Lawn mowers and rakes at James Belton's. Prices are low.

The remains of Frank Wilson, who died in Denver on Wednesday of last week, were brought to this city for interment Friday morning, funeral services being held at the Church of Our Saviour at 8:30. The deceased lived in North Platte for a number of years prior to 1886, but having contracted consumption left for the south for the benefit of his health. This change proved beneficial, but upon going to Texas some months ago he got the grippe which caused a greater affection of the lungs. His condition becoming critical, his sister, Mrs. Griffin, went to Texas several weeks ago and had him removed to her home at Denver, where he died. Frank Wilson was a deservedly popular young man while a resident of North Platte; bright and jovial, and his death causes much regret among all old acquaintances.

Among the relatives attending the funeral were the civic societies of the city and Mrs. Griffin, and Mr. and Mrs. Hull of Denver, Mr. and Mrs. Greer, Mrs. Roe and Mrs. Wiley, of Kearney, and Mrs. Kinsella, of Iowa, and Joseph Wilson of Chicago.

The Fourth of July celebration at North Platte under the auspices of the A. O. U. W. promises to be on a more extended scale than at first anticipated. Invitations have been issued to lodges in adjoining towns, and delegations are expected from Gothenburg, Wellfleet and Wall. The civic societies of the city and the fire department have been invited to participate in the parade and celebration, but yesterday it was not known just how many of the societies would accept. The parade will start at ten o'clock from Fifth and Spruce over the following line of march: South to Third, west to Vine, north to Front, east to Chestnut, south to Third, west to Spruce, north to U. P. hotel, then counter-march south and west to Ry's grove, where the Declaration of Independence will be read by Judge Rey, followed with oration by W. M. Grimes. After this a recess for dinner will be taken, and at about one o'clock the programme of sports, which was published in these columns last week, will be given. These sports are varied in nature and the contestants will undoubtedly enter into them with much zeal, thus affording considerable excitement for the audience. In the evening a liberal display of fireworks will take place. Altogether the day promises to be full of pleasure and amusement.

J. C. Hardesty, a brickman on the U. P., is erecting a residence on west Sixth street, adjoining J. B. Jeter.

The wagon scales at Harrington & Tobin's are being put in with the evident view of having them last a life time. The foundation is very solidly constructed.

There will be a meeting of the A. O. U. W. lodge at the hall Friday evening next. All members are requested to be present, as business of importance demands attention.

W. R. VERNON, M. W.

A heavy rain is reported to have fallen in the Sutherland section last evening, much to the delight of everyone, as the crops were needing it. A severe hailstorm passed over the country east of Lexington about eight o'clock last evening, doing some damage to growing crops.

The crop bulletin of the Nebraska weather bureau service for the week ending yesterday, is as follows: The warm dry weather of the past week has been good for corn, but very unfavorable for small grain and grass. The temperature has averaged about three degrees above the normal in all portions of the state. Until Monday night when a light rain was reported at North Platte, the showers were confined to the southeastern and extreme northeastern portions of the state. The week has been especially unfavorable for small grain in the western part of the state, as in many localities the crop is reported as nearly a failure, being already injured beyond recovery from the drought. Corn has continued to grow finely and is in excellent condition, though in the western counties it is needing rain.

Western people seem to have a mania for employing unusual methods for reaching the world's fair. Every week or so bicyclists enroute to the "white city" pass through town, but this mode of traveling was outdone by two Swedes who left Denver a couple of weeks ago on a flatboat with the expectation of reaching Chicago by a water route. They launched their craft on the South Platte river, but when they got as Sedgewick they were forced to ship by rail to this place, the irrigation ditches below that point absorbing all the water in the river. These navigators reached town yesterday and launched their boat in the North Platte river and to-day will renew their journey. They follow the Platte river to its junction with the Missouri at Plattsmouth, thence down the Missouri to its junction with the Mississippi near St. Charles, Mo., thence up the latter to the mouth of the Illinois river and up that stream and the Hennepin canal to Chicago. Via this route the distance from North Platte to Chicago is in the neighborhood of 1200 miles, nearly twice the distance by rail. There is neither pleasure or profit in such a journey, and we are inclined to think these travelers will grow weary and give up the task long ere they reach their destination.

Probably McGee and Hinman.

THE TRIBUNE is reliably informed that the democratic state committee, with Euclid Martin at the head, has endorsed W. L. McGee for register and John F. Hinman for receiver of the U. S. land office in this city, and that this endorsement means the appointment of these two gentlemen. This information comes from a local democrat who recently had a conversation with Mr. Martin. It was impossible, Mr. Martin said, to take both offices from North Platte, and Mr. McGee being a resident of Omaha and having many letters of recommendation, was selected. It is understood that Mr. Hinman was endorsed as a personal favor to Judge Hinman. The state committee has endorsed J. C. Federhoo for the North Platte postmaster, and his appointment is equally certain. As the Martin faction of the Nebraska democracy is in the ascendancy and has successfully dictated nearly all the appointments so far, it is not likely any combination formed against the appointment of Messrs. McGee, Hinman and Federhoo will be able to tie them up.

Mrs. J. Strowd has been visiting friends in Kansas City for a week past.

H. S. Boal and Joseph Herahay returned from Chicago Monday morning.

Popular Jim Wilson, of Kearney, visited North Platte friends Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. H. J. Clark has been visiting relatives near Omaha for several days past.

J. M. Callison, who has been teaching school in McPherson county, was in town Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Cotton left Saturday for a month's visit with friends in Omaha and Lincoln.

Mrs. W. J. Stuart and Mrs. E. B. Gibbs left for Portland, Ore., this morning.

Mrs. W. T. Wilcox and children left yesterday for a visit with relatives in Iowa.

C. M. Wherry is in charge of the express office during the absence of agent McGovern.

F. E. Bullard returned yesterday morning from a day's visit at Greeley, Colorado.

Mrs. Geo. White, of Sutherland, came down Saturday on a visit to relatives and friends.

Mrs. B. McDonald and children left Sunday night for Vincennes, Ind., their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Newton, of Sandy Creek, N. Y., are the guests of their sons E. J. and C. M.

H. E. Ottman left Saturday for a home in Charles City, Iowa, accompanied by G. W. Dillon's oldest son.

John Baker went to Snyder, Colo., Sunday night to spend a vacation on the Keystone ranch near that place.

Master Ray Keith left Sunday for Mankato, Minn., where he will pass the school vacation with his parents.

Train dispatcher Matthews and family will leave in a few days for a visit at Mr. M's old home at Syracuse, N. Y.

Chas. Eoll returned Friday from St. Joe, accompanied by his son John, who had been attending school at that place.

Mrs. S. D. Wadsworth, who has been the guest of her sister Mrs. Joe Hinman for several weeks, left for Council Bluffs Saturday.

Mrs. H. V. Hilliker, who has been visiting friends in the city, returned last night.

Mrs. W. J. Loftus and daughter, Mary, left Monday night for a city where Mr. L. has been employed for some time past.

Master Bruce Stuart will spend his school vacation at the Brown ranch in McPherson county and Master Jay with his grand parents at Aurora, Ill.

Mrs. W. H. McDonald, who has been at Chicago as a member of the ladies' Nebraska world's fair commission since April, is expected home this week.

Express Agent McGovern took a week's lay-off and left on No. 4 Monday for Iowa City. We trust Jim's brief vacation will prove a pleasant one.

Mrs. A. Hofmeister, of Wallace, who had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. C. Stoddard, returned home Friday. Miss Hofmeister came up from Wallace the same day.

Mary Robinson, who has been attending school here for the past year, accompanied by May and Ada Cooper left for her home near Moorcroft yesterday morning. The Misses Cooper will spend a short vacation in that vicinity before returning home.

Fred Tobias, who left several weeks ago for Des Moines with the intention of going to that city his future home, returned to North Platte Saturday and will remain, pretty well convinced that this is as good if not better than a majority of the towns in the east.

Several of the teachers employed in the city schools during the past year, left the latter part of the week. Miss Forsythe went to Omaha and later will go to Montreal, Canada; Mrs. Ewing to her home at Wood River; Miss Peckham to Pawnee City, with the expectation of attending the world's fair in July; Miss McNamara and sister to Denver, with a possible trip to the Pacific coast before returning home.

Mrs. T. J. Foley and two children left Saturday morning for their future home Sioux Falls, S. D. In this removal North Platte loses one of its most popular, generous and christian women, and her loss will be keenly felt. Especially is this true in the case of the Church of Our Saviour, for she has long been recognized as the leading lady worker of that society. On Friday afternoon the ladies' guild of that church gave Mrs. Foley a farewell reception at the guild house, about twenty of the members being present, each of whom expressed deep regret that the conditions were such as to call from their midst one who had been of such great service to the church, and by her many acts of kindness had endeared herself to all acquaintances. THE TRIBUNE more than regrets the departure of this estimable lady after a residence of twenty years in the city, but feels assured that Sioux Falls will be benefitted by the addition of such an earnest christian worker and ever kind and pleasant lady. While wishing Mr. and Mrs. Foley every success in their new home, we trust that some time in the future they may decide to again make North Platte their home.

WARD LOCAL EVENTS.

The Class of '93. The annual commencement exercises of the North Platte high school were held in Keith's opera house last Thursday evening. Long before the appointed hour the seats were all taken, the aisles were filled and the hallway and stairs crowded. Auditors perched themselves in the windows, and some fifty or more were behind the scenes and fully a hundred people were unable to gain admission. This must be a sufficient demonstration to those in charge that the people of North Platte are interested and only the most commodious hall in the city should be thought of as a place for holding such exercises. The stage had been prettily decorated by the class of '94 with flags and bunting, and the banner bearing the class motto, "Non in summo, sed in via," showed prominently in the background, while the front of the stage bore immense rosettes in the class colors, lavender and white.

Promptly at 8:30 the class of '93 made its appearance on the stage. It consisted of nine young ladies and three young gentlemen—by far the largest class in the history of the high school, and, by the way, one of the largest classes of the year in the state. After an invocation by Rev. Mr. Leonard the class sang a song of welcome.

The first speaker was Miss Fannie Von Goetz, who had chosen for her subject "The world owes me a living." There was second only to Washington, those who think they came into the world through no responsibility of their own; hence the world is their debtor, and those who believe that they were put here for a purpose and who use their best efforts to find out what they are here for. To earn one's bread by the sweat of the brow is the only legal method since the fall of man.

William Ormay followed with an oration on Alexander Hamilton. He was second only to Washington, the latter freed us from the tyranny of kings, Hamilton freed us from anarchy and the tyranny of mobs, for we owe to him our present constitution; as our first secretary of the treasury he organized our tariff system, and our national bank. He funded our public debt and provided a system of revenue until we are to-day the only nation troubled with a surplus in the treasury. He had all the qualities of a true patriot and statesman. He will ever be held in highest honor by Americans and his classifying, logical intellect will ever command the homage of man.

Miss Ruth Patterson spoke on "Girl of the Period." The girl of to-day is taller, broader and healthier than her mother; she is not ashamed of her appetite or afraid of being called a tom boy because she chooses to take plenty of physical exercise; she is as anxious to improve intellectually as in other ways, and pursues the same studies that her brother does. The girl of to-day shows such a marked improvement over the girls of other days in so many ways that it might be expected that she would lose some of her womanly qualities, but it has yet to be shown that this is so.

Miss Grace Duncan's theme was "The power of Imagination." This is the motive power which rules the world. It is the chief support of ambition and aspiration. Without it we could have no progress, no inventions, no discoveries would be only accidental. Literature would be to us as a closed book. Imagination has soothed many pangs of the heart by causing us to think of the greater works of others. It has cherished many a good resolution. It gives us a new and wider horizon around our intellectual being, and fills the soul with noble hopes.

The subject of "Monopolies" was then presented by George McMichael. Adam and Eve had a monopoly on all the good things of life. Monopolies may at first benefit the people by enabling an increase in production without a proportionate increase in cost and thus be helpful in lowering prices. However, they are invariably result in raising prices and are a detriment to our best interests. Coal, food and railroad monopolies are dangers to the republic and some means of prevention and control must be found. The tendency of the times is toward this control of interests that seem to be against the public weal, and the time is not distant when we shall be freed from all dangers of this kind.

Miss Evelyn Grady then spoke on "True Success." The popular idea of success is in direct opposition to true success. A man who has gained only wealth by fair or false means may be a successful man. Some try to be successful by bringing riches, packing caucuses or getting wealth through fraud, but this is not success; it is a crime and it renders other crimes necessary. Is wealth the only measure of success? Is there no loving of art and of nature and of our design for itself? Successful men have not necessarily had more mental power than others, but they early discovered what they were here for, found and at once dropped into their proper place and having found their vocation they did not abandon it because of difficulties they had not foreseen.

Miss Sarah Ferguson had selected "Ambition" as her theme. It is right that we should all be ambitious. Ambition may result in great good to all concerned, but unless carefully guarded and directed will result in a sacrifice of everything to immediate personal gain. Had Napoleon had the same kind of ambition that Washington possessed, France would have taken her place as the arbiter of Europe and Napoleon would have been the greatest man in all history.

The future of the republican party was predicted by Alfred Gilman. The defeat of '92 is explained by the defection of those seeking relief from hard times, but the defeat was a Bunker Hill and not a Waterloo. The party retired in good order and shows no signs of demoralization, has rather been inspired to renewed efforts. The lesson of defeat must not be forgotten; a united front must be presented, men of tried integrity must be chosen as leaders. The great questions of the day will be taken up by the party and true republicanism will complete its work of making this nation the foremost in the world.

Miss Lizzie Pratt spoke on the "Past, Present and Future of Woman." In all ages there have been women who have taken high rank in all walks of life. History furnishes many examples of those who were skilled in military science, diplomacy and statecraft. In the present age woman is slowly but surely taking her place as the equal of man. As yet she is somewhat dependent on him in most respects. The future will probably show that there is to be a true equality and an interdependence of the sexes.

Miss Berenice Searle had chosen "The Electric Age" as her subject. Some characteristics marked all ages from time immemorial. We pass through the stone age, the iron age, etc., until we come to the age immediately preceding the present; when the chief characteristic was steam. The present time is most appropriately called the electric age. Edison and Morse have so trained this subtle force that Ariel and Mercury would be too slow for the commercial world of to-day. We are only on the threshold of the electric age, as all important applications of electricity have been made within the memory of the youngest voter of to-day. What has the future in store for us? As oceans and mountains, as barriers to communication have disappeared, so planetary space may be annihilated. No imagination is powerful enough to predict the whole future of electricity.

Miss Lottie Spring in her oration on "Fighting Windmills" drew from Don Quixote's attack on the windmills of old Spain the lesson of futile attempts of brave men to stay the hand of progress. The great inventions met with checks but the wheels of advancement will merely crush opposition and then swing around as freely as before. Many a brave knight who has made an attack upon our schools and colleges or upon municipal improvement has been dashed to the ground by the mill wheel of public opinion.

Miss Mabel Gooze closed with "The Fall of Rome." In the midst of apparent prosperity the Romans were gradually losing their old time bravery and honor. The fall of Rome was internal rather than external. The old city government was oppressive to the provinces, so that they were ready to welcome the barbarians. What would have been the result if Rome had been able to hold out against the barbarians? The Saxons had been carrying on a democratic government and possessed the lost virtues of the Romans. The world lost much through the capture of Rome, yet it gained more. New literature and works of art can be created, but the Romans could not have given us the courage, sense of honor, respect for woman and love of home which marks the present day.

The speaker then as a valedictory spoke in behalf of the class a few words of gratitude and farewell, and the work of the class was complete.

Geo. E. French then in behalf of the people of North Platte and the board of education presented the valedictory address. In a few well chosen words he told the class of their new responsibilities, and that although their work in the high school was completed they must not consider their education in the great school of life.

Taken as a whole the exercises were highly successful, no accident or delay of any kind occurred. The class seemed thoroughly prepared in every way, and as a general thing the delivery was free and natural. THE TRIBUNE representative wishes to commend the action of a large majority of the class in freeing themselves from manuscripts and reading it what they know rather than reading it.

The work of Thursday shows that we have schools in our midst of which we may be justly proud.

B. L. Lambert has been alling all spring and has not been able to work every day. He went to Denver last week to recuperate but did not go to the U. P. hospital probably because he was not sick enough to be admitted. We hope he will return a well man.

M. B. Cryderman has purchased two lots in the west part of town and will soon erect a large stable thereon. Next spring he will probably erect a residence. He will shortly move to one of the Dick houses on west Sixth street.

The prize for the bicycle race on the Fourth will be a handsome medal instead of a purse, as the rules of the American League of Wheelmen do not permit amateurs to race for money prizes.
