Burial of Russia's Ruler.

ST. PETERSEURG, Nov. 20.-A thick fog enveloped the city to-day, but the podulace was astir early, for all were anxious to witness the last ceremonies in honor of the late czar, Alexander III. At the same time the troops detailed to take part in the funeral ceremonies began moving to the places assigned to them.

In the eathedral of St. Peter and St. ginia, McCail, Republican, against Paul were representatives of all the imperial and royal families of Europe, and a vast crowd of notables. The metropolitan of St. Petersburg conducted the ezarina to her place near the coffin, which reposed in state in the center of the eathedral. The czar and the grand dukes and the members of the thirty royal families of Europe with their suites took up positions on the right of the coffin, and the many military officers in attendance were grouped behind the bier. On the left were the foreign ambassadors and ministers and their statis, while grouped around in different parts of the cathedral were countless delegations from Russian cities and elsewhere, including numerous delegations from France.

Enormous crowds of people gathered on both sides of the Neva, long before the ceremonies began. The czar, the imperial family and the royal mourners were received at the door of the cathedral by the metropolitan of St. Petersburg and by all the members of the holy synod bearing crosses and holy water. The imperial party formed in procession and marched up the aisle until the ezar and other mourners reached their appointed places.

THE SERVICES MOST IMPRESSIVE.

At 10:30 o'clock the funeral service began while three cannon shots were fired. Tapers were handed to all the mourners, and the high priest, with a burning torch, lighted the czar's the other mourners in turn according to rank, until everybody was kneel-with a club. lem of navy reorganization. During the last session Secretary Herbert submitted his ideas to the committee and also embodied them in a bill, but the committee does not appear to have been pleased with all the features of the bill and consequently failed to report it to the full committee or to either house. Representative Meyer, who is a member of the joint committee, is also the author of a bill of somewhat comprehensive terms, but it does not appear to receive the approval of the majority of the members.

The committee now seems to lean toward a bill introduced by Representative Catchings, the distinctive feature of which is the creation of a reserve list. This provides for an active list of sixteen rear admirals, sixty captains, 100 commanders, 250 lieutenants, seventy-five lieutenants of the junior grade and a sufficient number of ensigns. It abolishes the rank of commodore. The provision regarding the proposed reserve list renders the change to it in a manner voluntary, but at the same time holds out so many inducements and provides for bringing such pressure to bear that it is believed by the friends of the measure that it would prove effective in reducing the force to reasonable dimensions. It is stated as going to show the evils of permit- cut. OWEXSBORO, Ky., Nov. 20,-A bloody battle was fought here yesterday, in which John Ashby, an ex-policeman, and Jack Heverin, a grocer and saloonist, were mortally wounded and a policeman wounded. # DR. BRIGGS' WORK.

The Messiah of the Gospel Public.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.-The Commercial Advertiser publishes a synopsis of the latest work of Professor Charles A. Briggs of the Union Theological seminary, who was declared a heretic by the Presbyterian general assembly. The book, "The Messiah of the Gospels," is intended to follow "Messianic Prophecy," which caused so much comment when published in 1886. It was the intention of Dr. Briggs to publish the "Messiah of the Gospels" in 1887, but the charges of heresy were brought about that time and he was compelled to defer the publication until now. The dedication runs as follows: "To Henry Preserved Smith, true scholar, faithful friend and brave companion in holy warfare, this book is dedicated in sympathy and love." In his latest book Dr. Briggs has entered minutely into a discussion of the second advent. He is convinced that the faith of the church of the day is defective in its lack of apprehension of the reigning Christ and in its neglect of the second advent of monument, the other being Senator the Lord. The chapters upon immaculate conception will perhaps call for the most criticism. He says:

"The blessed virgin was residing in Nazareth of Galilee, betrothed to Joseph of the royal line of David, the heir of the Messianic promises of the old testament. The time for marriage had not yet come. God had a higher appointment for her to fulfill as the virgin mother of the Messinh. The virgin conception of Jesus, as announced by the archangel is not to be interpreted as if it were a miracle in violation of the laws of nature, but rather as brought about by God Himself present in theopany. The words of the angel imply a theopanic presence. Though it might be urged that the coming of the Spirit upon her was an invisible coming after the analogy of many passages of the old testament, yet the parallel statement that the divine power overshadowed her cannot be so interpreted.

"This annunciation represents the conception of Jesus as due to a theophany. It does not rotate the doctrine of of His pre-existence, although that doctrine is a legitimate inference. It represents an early stage of New Testament christology. It does not go a step beyond the Faulism of the epistle to the Corinthians. It implies nothing more than the sending in birth taught by the epistles to the Gallatians and to the Romans. It is really more primitive and more simple christology of conception.

remained in that body for six years Dr. Briggs makes a special study of the second advent of Christ, discussing it as a matter of greater importance than most theologians have deemed necessary. He says: "The hour of the resurrection is coming. It can not be said of it that 'now is' or that 'it is at hand.' However, there is the prediction of three resurrections, the first spiritual, the last universal; the intermediate one, distinct from the first and the last and impending, being connected with the resurrection of the Messiah Himself. Christ first predicts the impartation of everlasting life to all who hear the word of the Messiah and believe in God. All such have passed out of death unto life. They will no more die. They will not come to judgment. It is a spiritual resurrection imparted by the word of the Messiah to all believers during the physical life in this world. It is also predicted that United States senator. LAID AWAY IN THE VAULT.

The most impressive portion of the ceremony was at the lowering of the czar's body into the vault by high civil officers of the government. As the coffin disappeared from view the loud booming of cannon and the salvos fired by platoons of infantry from the adjoining fortress reverberated through the church, mingling with the words of the burial service, and the lowering of the mourning flag and the hoisting of the ordinary imperial standard on the fortress tower proclaimed to the world outside that the last rites had been concluded. The czar bore the ordeal with fortitude, but many among the group of imperial and royal personages clustered around the open grave were visibly affected. The ezar remained in the church until the tomb was finally closed.

After this last ceremony the imperial insignia were carried back, in state, in a number of carriages to the winter palace and were there deposited in their accustomed place in St. George's hall.

> WHERE THE CZAR'S ARE BURIED. The Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul was originally built by Peter the Great in 1703. It is often called the Fortress church, because it stands within the fortress which was built on the island by Peter of Petersburgsky. Beneath the pavement are great vaults, in which all the Russian sovereigns since the foundation of St. Petersburg lie buried, with the exception of Peter II, who died at Moscow and was interred there. Overhead in the church magnificent monuments mark the sites of the graves. The interior of the church is covered with banners and other military trophies captured in the various wars

The machinery and appliances in vogue here are not altogether the latest and bestin many cases they are quite obsolete.
