Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Home of Swamp-Root, free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Surgeon-Quaker

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

WRECK OF ANCIENT CRAFT.

Dismantled Hulk of Some Old Galleon Located on the Coast of Southern California.

Under the waters of San Diego bay, over by Point Loma, in the vicinity of the quarantine station, lies the dismantled hulk of some ancient galleon, which has probably lain there for generations. As to how it got there and as to whether it belonged to Cabrillo or the fleet of some other explorer can be merely a matter of surmise, but its construction indicates that it is of very ancient date, says the San Francisco Call. It is said that the Portuguese fishermen have known of its whereabouts for a long time past, as they sail over the water all about that section.

It remained, however, for two young men, John Skewes and a companion, the other day to bring in the first tangible proof of its existence. In some manner they learned of the whereabouts of the old vessel and there being an exceptionally low tide they started out to investigate it. After some little difficulty they located a part of the bow of what appeared to have once been a large vessel of very ancient construction.

As far as they could get out in the water they found some ten feet of the bow and the rest probably lies beyond that in deep water. To a considerable extent the heavy planking has been torn off by the tides which have swept over the old hulk for many years, leaving bare huge ribs over a foot in diameter, showing the vessel to have been a large one. Upon investigation of the planking which remained they found that in the whole construction not a single piece of iron or nails in any form had been used by the builders. Most of the planks had been attached by means of wooden pins, and what was still more remarkable they found in several places spikes of copper.

With considerable difficulty they removed one or two of the spikes and brought them back to the city. The spikes are about six inches long and plainly forged out by hand.

The wreck is a matter of much speculation among those who have known of its existence and there might be an interesting tale in connection with it. The probabilities are that it is one of the deserted galleons of some old Spanish adventurer of ancient days, which was sunk in the sands and had been gradually worn away by the action of a century's tides.

RAVAGES OF TYPHOID FEVER.

Among Civilized People the Dread Disease Should Rarely or Never Occur.

Of the ills that flesh is heir to typhoid fever is among those most easily avoidable. Even in the complete civilization of to-day it should be of rare occurrence, and in that age of reason which the scientific world will recognize as the true millennium, when common sense shall prevail, it will no longer vex the human race. It may be said with truth that every death from this dreadful malady is a contribution either from ignorance or carelessness to the graveyard. The former is inexcusable; the latter little less than criminal, says the New York Sun.

Like death, of which dread specter it is too often the forerunner, typhoid fever is no respecter of persons. The barriers of society do not stop it, nor is there safety in the isolation which wealth secures. Its victims are among the high and low, and in its wide sweep it gathers in the millionaire of Murray Hill and the pauper of Hester street, for the chief distributor of its germs is the water we drink.

At one period or another during each year it is not improbable that the water supply of at least three-fourths of the population of the United States contains the germ of typhoid, and in the late summer and autumn and early winter months, the drier seasons of the year, when springs are low, so much more prevalent is the scourge that it might well be called "the low-water fever." In one group of 6,000 tabulated cases one-half occurred in the autumn months, 1,500 in the summer and 1,500 in the rest of the year.

While it is true that the germ of typhoid may find its way into the system from other sources than from drinking water, careful scientific investigations have demonstrated beyond the possibility of doubt, that this is the chief agent of infection. Streams or lakes, along the shores of which dense population exist, are more polluted, and therefore more poisonous, than are the reservoirs from isolated mountain streams or sparsely settled watersheds, and yet the germs of a single case of typhoid in any locality may find their way into the sources of supply and cause widespread disseminations of the disease.

NIGHT AT MILITARY POST.

Glimpse of the Life of a Trooper Between the Setting and the Rising of the Sun.

As dusk comes on happy children romp on the lawns "down the line;" along the drives floats silvery and deep-toned laughter accompanied by the clatter of horses' hoofs and the ring of spurred heels on stone walks, writes Hamilton Higday in World's Work.

But Trooper Smith tries not to hear such sounds. It is a world not open to him. The Chinese Wall of rank is an impassable barrier between him and the "West Point aristocracy." He is treated by his officers as though contact were contamination, and his American soul fills with bitterness at the tyranny of "army discipline." He therefore bets the drinks with his "bunkies" on the outcome of the Sunday baseball match between rival troop teams, or gossips about a recent row in "Mike's place"—one of the typical, parasitic dens in the nearby town that reaps a monthly harvest of soldiers' squanderings of their $13 pay. He listens to the click of billiard balls in the barracks pool room; he tells the corporal he wishes to h—l he were tramping around down town—"Attention!"

Trooper Smith springs to his feet and stands rigid at attention with the other enlisted men on the guard-house porch. An officer is passing. Sentry Number One presents his piece and, as the salute is acknowledged by the officer, resumes his march.

At half-past nine as "Tatto" (lights out) is blown, Trooper Smith is marching from the guard-house with a relief party; and he is sauntering to and fro along a solitary beat himself when "Call to Quarters" and a few minutes later "Taps" are sounded—11 o'clock, and all men not then to be found in quarters or on pass or duty are absent without leave and subject to military punishment.

"Five months and 13 days more," mutters Trooper Smith as he changes his carbine to the other shoulder and looks toward the arc of light where the belated moon is rising,—"and a breakfast!"
