The disposition of the followers of the Wallace shows, to "graft" doesn't seem to be altogether confined to the "shellwork" and "short-change" men. The "razorbacks" also have an itch for getting something from what they, in criminal conceit, call the "Reubs" and "jays" as the show is passing through the country. Last Wednesday as the second section of the train stopped at Howe, some of the roustabouts jumped off and went to a combination barber shop and lunch room where they got something to eat. After they had gone it was discovered that they had robbed the barber shop of all the clippers, razors and hand glasses there was about the place.—Auburn Herald.
