Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

An iron column marking the southeastern corner of Nebraska has been found after its location and even its existence had been forgotten, by John Wright, representing the Morton illustrated history of Nebraska. The column was set by surveyors about 1854 and its site is now overgrown with briars and weeds and was only located by a diligent search. The position of the monument discloses that the Missouri river has changed its course almost three miles since the time the surveyors laid the work. The column was put into position by sub-contractors working for Charles A. Manners, who was given the contract by the government in 1853. It is important as being the basis of all the survey work done by the government in southeastern Nebraska. It marked the base line of the state and from it the civil engineers worked westward to about where Superior now is. They were admonished not to go further because of the hostility of the Pawnee Indians.

C. S. Paine, manager of the history, learned that the contract had been let about 1853 for the placing of the column but correspondence with people living in the neighborhood failed to disclose whether the contract had ever been carried out or not. The field notes of the surveyors showed that it had been located on a bluff about three miles from the river. This was done to prevent the river by changing its course from washing it away.

Mr. Wright was sent out to locate it and by following the state line he finally found it. It is about fourteen inches across at the base and eight inches at the top. It is set in a rock base which though badly weathered is still above ground. In raised letters on the south side of the column is the word "Kansas." On the north side "Nebraska," on the west side "1854," on the east "48 degrees north latitude." While it was set about three miles from the river it is now about forty yards away. It is about eight miles southeast of Kulo.

The field notes show that its weight is 800 pounds and that it was carried across the river in a "skiff" by an old Indian who ran a ferry at that early day.—Lincoln News.

Rev. Harrison Presson of Auburn preached the semi-centennial sermon of Nebraska Methodism at the Methodist church Sunday night. Father Presson, who is 88 years old claims, the honor, which we believe is undisputed, of preaching the first protestant sermon in Nebraska.

The speaker Sunday night first gave a sketch of his life. He was converted 82 years ago when only 6 years old. He says that his conversion at this time was due to a praying father and mother. He was licensed to preach by the eccentric Peter Cartwright and recommended for admission into conference by him. Peter Cartwright was presiding elder for 60 years. He was an eloquent though quaint speaker and believed in muscular christianity. Father Presson held a big revival meeting in Ohio in 1849, during the California gold excitement, and after the meeting closed was invited to go with the company to California and act as chaplain. He consented and went with them. When they arrived where Omaha now is they stopped over Sunday, and Father Presson preached to the crowd, using an old deserted army wagon, with 400 or 500 white men and about 100 Indians gathered around, taking for his text words of the prophet Isaiah, "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." In this sermon Father Presson predicts that in coming years this country would be filled with teeming multitudes of people and has lived to see his prophesy fulfilled.

At that time there was a block house at Nebraska City, a few squatters and that was about all.

For over 60 years Father Presson has labored for his master, and even at his advanced age occasionally preaches. He has seen wonderful results from his efforts, and takes no honor to himself. He is now living a quiet life in Auburn with his aged companion, respected and loved by thousands with whom he has labored and to whom he has preached. May he be spared many years to speak words of encouragement and help.

SCHOOL NOTES

School has begun.

Teachers are daily reminded of how hard it is to break habits that have once been formed. It is at that task that they feel the need of that God-given trait of patience.

The total enrollment for the first day was one hundred thirty three, fifty-two in the primary room, thirty-seven in the intermediate room and forty-five in the high room. Good start isn't it?

The pupils are showing their appreciation of their clean rooms by their care to keep them so. Good begets good, cleanliness begets cleanliness, so the condition of a school room reacts on the pupils.

Nemaha is to be congratulated upon having a strictly up-to-date school board. They appreciate the needs of a school room and show an interest in their school that is truly an inspiration to a teacher. Would that all teachers might have such.

The teacher and pupils of our intermediate department have recognized the value of art in the school room. Their room looks quite homelike with its many copies from the masterpieces. One as he sees it cannot but think, "What an opportunity for picture study."

The high school pupils on being asked why they came to school, nearly everyone replied, "to learn." As the papers containing these answers were being looked over the question came, "Learn what?" We hope it is to become men and women in the truest sense. The world wants such.

Then I was advised to take Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man.
