I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.

A Lincoln correspondent says: Wednesday afternoon the supreme court listened to the arguments of the attorneys interested in the biennial election law case. The opponents of the bill urge that it flies directly in the face of the constitutional provision which requires that there be an election each year. This language is so clear, explicit and unambiguous that it was claimed there could be no other interpretation. On the other hand, the friends of the measure insist that the provision referred to is complied with from the fact that the bill does not abolish the annual election directly leaving it theoretically, while providing that all elective officials shall be chosen in the even-numbered years. In this connection it was also claimed that the provision requiring that the supreme judges be selected in the odd-numbered years was merely directory, intended merely for the convenience of the state, to be superseded as soon as the legislature could take the matter in hand. The lawyers appearing against the bill in the argument today were C. S. Allen, T. C. Mungler, of Lincoln and L. S. Pemberton of Beatrice, as friends of the court and representatives of O. B. Polk of this city, who made up the test case by offering a petition to have his name placed on the independent republican ticket as a candidate for regent of the State University. The attorneys defending the measure were Lyle Abbott of Omaha, former Chief Justice Sullivan, Roscoe Pound, Attorney General Norris Brown and F. I. Fess.

The attorneys for the relator urged that the purpose of the constitution framers was clearly to prevent the election of the judicial and educational officers of the state at the same time that the political officers were chosen. It was absolutely denied that the framers of this document intended to allow the legislature any latitude in that connection. On the other hand, it was contended that this interpretation is based on the alleged spirit of the constitution and it was denied that such a meaning could be attached to the constitution in view of a declaration stating the specific purpose to be accomplished. The friends of the measure interpret the provision relating to the election of judges could well have been construed so as to require the election of the judges in 1876 instead of 1875 under the new constitution, and that therefore the election could have taken place on even-numbered years in perfect accordance with the organic law. The direction that the election be held at the first general election the opponents of the measure said was positive and mandatory, fixing without question the time for the first election in November 1875, and as the terms of these judges are two, four and six years, respectively, this provision could not be carried into effect without holding the elections in odd-numbered years. The same argument was made with reference to the regents.

Hugo Task
It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Ia., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache, and depression. In Electric Bitter, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach. Guaranteed by W. W. Keeling druggist; price 20c."

For forty years the town of Brownville, Neb., has been famous for the hospitality of her people and the editor of the Tribune can certify that up to this day the village of Brownville continues to proudly support that traditional hospitality which has made her famous for a good half century. The funeral services for the late ex-Governor Robert W. Furnas at Brownville yesterday brought perhaps two thousand people to Brownville about the noon hour, many of whom could not return to their homes until 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening. No thought of having this crowd for dinner had come to the good people of Brownville and within twenty minutes the food supply of the little hotel and the one or two lunch rooms had absolutely vanished and the purchase of a meal became impossible. An hour later the editor of the Tribune was returning from the cemetery on foot over the hills and valleys and fell in with the governor of Nebraska, who was also walking. The governor pleaded guilty to a decided and aggressive hunger and the newspaper man pointed out the futility of an attempt at purchasing a meal the sellers of food being out of the market, for the time being. The scribe was as hungry as the governor and in a council of forage held in the next few minutes it was agreed to apply for relief at the first residence encountered on the road. This was done at a pretty white cottage setting in the very lay of a precipitous bluff and shaded by splendid trees, the lawn a carpet of bluegrass ornamented with shrubs and flowers. A lady and gentleman were sitting in the shade enjoying the cool breeze that blew steadily from the south and the newspaper man advanced with much trepidation to make the first genuine "beg" of his life for "food for two." In a few words the plight of the wayfarers and the identity of one of them was disclosed and a plea entered for a "piece of bread and butter." The plea fell on attentive ears and kindly hearts for within a few moments the two foragers were seated at a charmingly arranged table in the coziest of dining rooms partaking of a lunch that would have charmed the most delicate palate and satisfied the most capricious appetite. The memory of those delicious home grown berries, of the whitest bread and most golden butter ever made and of the many other delicacies provided, will remain long after the recollections of the man-made dinners of the celebrated hostesses of the country have been forgotten. Not less by any means was the charming and sincere welcome accorded the wayfarers by the household whose uninvited guests they, for the time being, were. Inquiry developed the fact that the governor and the editor were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kauffman. May all good things of the world come to them and their reward be always equal to their exceptional hospitality and native kindness of heart. The moral of the story is, if you are going on a tramp take a governor with you—they are handy to have around in case of hunger.—Nebr. City Tribune.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose. Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.
