Rev. G. W. Ayers will hold services as usual at Nemaha next Sunday night. He will hold services at Howe Sunday morning.

At the state fair Nemaha county captured 16 first, 22 second and 11 third premiums on her exhibits. Nemaha's fruit exhibit was away ahead of that of any other county.

County Superintendent Carrington was visiting schools in this section Wednesday, helping some of the teachers in country districts that were making a change of text books.

The Beatrice Creamery Co. will pay 6 cents per pound of butter fat for hand separator cream, delivered in Nemaha. Separators sold on easy terms. R. E. BUCHER, Agent.

Rev. G. W. Ayers drove down from Brownville Wednesday to make arrangements for moving. He expects to move next Tuesday. The Hoover house east of where Mrs. W. H. Hoover lives will be occupied until the parsonage is built.

The home forty of the Strain farm in London precinct was sold at Referee's sale last Saturday. It was bid in by Arthur Strain at $5610—$90.25 per acre. Since then he has been offered $200 for his bargain. This is a pretty good price for land as the improvements are not first class.

DUROC JERSEY SALE

Great dispersion sale of Ford Skeen's famous Longview herd of Duroc Jerseys, at the sale pavillion, South Auburn, Nebr., on Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1906. Thirty-four head of spring boars and gifts, ten head of fall yearling sows and six head of aged sows will be sold. Send for catalogue.

On Sunday last, Alex. Brisby, while attempting to board a moving train at Stella, fell in front of the wheels where he received injuries from which he died about three hours later. He was on his way to Auburn to visit his fiancée, Miss Susie Burns, who was at the home of A. E. Souder in this city. Miss Burns took the next train for Stella—Granger.

John D. Shubert, who now lives in the Indian Territory—or the new state of Oklahoma—came up Monday to assist in marketing the immense crop of fruit on the Shubert fruit farms. John appears to be prospering as he owns a farm and a brick business house and other property in a prosperous town. He was shaking hands with Nemaha friends Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. G. W. Ayers returned Tuesday from Hastings, where he has been attending the annual Methodist conference. He has been returned to Nemaha in response to the request of the members of the church. As predicted in The Advertiser, a change has been made in the circuit, and Nemaha and Howe are now together. Brownville and Bethel are joined. Rev. Ayers will move to Nemaha in a few days.

Jake Handley's father was dangerously and probably fatally hurt last week. He is an expressman in Rockport, Mo., and was driving a light one-horse express wagon when a big team that was running away crashed into the express wagon, crushing it, breaking one leg and mashing one hip of Mr. Handley.

Later—Mr. Handley died Monday morning from the effects of his injuries and was buried Tuesday. He was a brother of Straud and Arch Handley.

Another cold wave struck us Wednesday night, reminding us that winter was approaching. Fires were necessary for comfort in the morning.

The Nebraska Experiment Station has just issued Bulletin 93, which covers the results of two experiments. Experiment 1 is entitled, "Roughness supplementary to corn for two-year-old steers." This test was undertaken for the purpose of comparing alfalfa, prairie hay, and corn stover, each fed singly and in combination, the grain being in every case snapped corn. Experiment 1 furnishes a comparison of wheat bran, oil-meal, cottonseed-meal, and alfalfa as sources of protein when fed with shelled corn and prairie hay. The bulletin may be obtained free of cost by residents of Nebraska upon writing to the Nebraska Experiment Station, Lincoln, Neb., for Bulletin 93.

George McConnell, yard clerk at the Mo. Pac. station, was badly hurt yesterday morning by being struck by the switch engine, while he was engaged in his duties of "checking" the yards. Mr. McConnell was walking down the track near the coal chutes; hearing the engine approaching he stepped aside to let it pass when he stepped upon a piece of coal which turned with him and threw him back in such a manner that the engine struck him cutting and bruising his head, shoulder and arm and otherwise injuring him. While the injuries are painful and will lay the young man up for awhile, they are not dangerous. It was a close call and everyone is thankful that the accident was no more serious.—Granger.

The Breath of Life

It's a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stevens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by Hill Bros. druggists. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

In making sweet pepper relish remove the seeds from six red and twelve green sweet peppers, chopping them very fine like rice, adding in the order mentioned one pint of finely chopped red cabbage, the same of the white variety, one cupful grated horseradish and half a bunch of young minced celery; now mix in thoroughly one and one half tablespoonfuls of salt and let the vegetables stand for several hours. During the interval, place over the fire in a saucepan one quart of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, two cloves of bruised garlic, one bay leaf, one onion cut in slices, one sprig of thyme, one blade of mace, twelve whole cloves and the same of allspice, a tablespoonful of celery seed. Cover the kettle closely and cook for thirty minutes, letting it stand until cold and then straining it through a jelly-bag, over the drained vegetables pack in jelly tumblers; cover the tops with paraffine wax when cold and store in a dark closet; this is a particularly delicious relish to serve with cold roast mutton or fish.—Eleanor Marchant in the September HOUSEKEEPER.

OBITUARY—MRS. J. M. THOMPSON

Mrs. Catherine M. Thompson died at her home in Nemaha Friday, Sept. 7, 1906, after a lingering illness, from a complication of diseases.

Catherine M. Aue was born in Ft. Wayne, Indiana, July 19, 1844, and was aged 62 years, 1 month and 19 days at her death. On July 19, 1859, she was married to Thomas Thompson, who departed this life May 11, 1880. To this union eleven children were born—seven sons and four daughters—all of whom are living and were all present at her funeral. Six of the sons acted as pall bearers. The deceased was a member of the Christian church and had been a consistent and faithful Christian almost her entire life. She leaves a host of friends who extend sympathy to the children.

The funeral services were held at the Christian church at 11 o'clock Sunday. The house was filled with friends, many being present from Shubert and Brownville. Rev. J. W. Sapp preached the sermon. The body was taken to Brownville for burial by the side of her husband.

The following poem entitled "Waiting," and dedicated to Grandma Thompson, was read by Rev. Sapp. She waited for the summons; lengthy days

Had ripened the rich harvest of her years;

The sun hung low across the level plain in the slant rays, ripe bent the bearded grain.

Her feet were weary and with faltering hands

She bound the golden tribute of the lands.

We watched the coming night with tender fear.

She murmured to herself good words of cheer.

We followed gleaming; all the night we heard her voice thank God in cheerful praise.

For this dear life and all its happy days.

Then there was silence and we found at dawn

Only the faded garments she had worn.

Nobody seriously supposed Mr. Bryan would apply the same logic to Shallenberger's candidacy for governor in Nebraska that he did to the case of Roger Sullivan in Illinois. Notwithstanding that circumstances are in some particulars the same as regards both men, political expediency would not permit Mr. Bryan to be anything but "regular" in his own state at the present time. He has demonstrated on other occasions—notably during the Parker campaign of two years ago—that he can make flesh and fish of the same political material when it is a matter of keeping himself in good party standing.

Here is the similarity between the Shallenberger and Sullivan situations: Sullivan got control of the Illinois democratic convention in 1904 by fraudulent manipulation, as Bryan claims, and procured his own selection as national committeeman, though a majority of the party was opposed to him. At the late democratic state convention, an acknowledged majority of the delegates was for Berge, but expert wire-pulling beat him out of the nomination and put Shallenberger at the head of the ticket. Sullivan draws his political support mainly from corporate sources. Shallenberger owes his elevation to the work of the Douglas county delegation, which was made up principally of office holders, railroad and corporation workers. A railroad attorney was its chairman, and the attorney for the Nebraska grain trust, Ed P. Smith, made the nominating speech.

But if Mr. Bryan is willing to be inconsistent by supporting a candidate thus chosen, there are plenty of his political associates who prefer to stand by their convictions. Former Governor W. A. Poynter, as able and clean a leader as the populist party of Nebraska ever had, some time ago announced his refusal to be bound by the action of the democratic convention. Elmer E. Thomas of Omaha, another well known fusionist, has taken the same ground. Now comes John C. Sprecher, editor of the Schuyler Free Lance, who declares for Sheldon as against Shallenberger and says he doesn't think much of W. H. Thompson, a beneficiary of the same deal that helped Shallenberger to the nomination.

Mr. Sprecher is one of the original third party reformers of Nebraska and is among the few whose practices have never been at variance with his preachings. When fusion state officers and members of the legislature some years ago were reveling in railroad passes and other forms of graft, Mr. Sprecher stood by his principles, paid fare when he traveled and continually raised his voice against the evils that he saw all about him. He does not now feel that he can spoil a record of this kind by supporting a railroad candidate for governor.—Lincoln News.

Starving to Death

Because her stomach was so weakened by useless drugging that she could not eat, Mrs. Mary H. Walters, of St. Clair St., Columbus, O., was literally starving to death. She writes: "My stomach was so weak from useless drugs that I could not eat, and my nerves so wrecked that I could not sleep; and not before I was given up to die was I induced to try Electric Bitters; with the wonderful result that improvement began at once, and a complete cure followed." Best health tonic on earth. 50c. Guaranteed by Hill Bros. druggists.
