The editor has had a time this week. On Christmas day we helped eat the wedding dinner at L. N. Cooper's and a wedding supper at Dan Maxwell's, and next day went to John M. Peter Kerker has been selling his customers some extra fine beef recently—some young stuff he bought last summer and has fed until it is just right. It certainly makes mighty fine eating, and as good as you can find anywhere. Peter has one of the very best meat markets for a small town that we know of, but it is not appreciated until we go away from here awhile and find what they have in other places. Then we are always glad to sample Pete's meat, sausage, bologna and other good things.

May the coming year be to each reader of The Advertiser a year filled with happiness and prosperity. May each one of us do all in our power to make the world better and therefore happier. May we have more charity for each other and kinder thoughts one for the other. May we be more helpful, more considerate, more loving. May we in every way try to do good and not evil; to build up and not tear down; to boost and not knock.

Mrs. G. W. Ayers, wife of the pastor of the Methodist church, teaches the young people's bible class in that Sunday school. In less than two weeks five members of the class have got married—in two cases both the bride and groom were members of the class—and of course Bro. Ayers married them in each case. Mrs. Ayers denies teaching matrimony except by example. But it appears if a young man or a young lady is anxious to be married, it would be a good idea to join this class. Nat Titus says if a prospect of which he is now hopeful doesn't pan out he is going to join.
