Practical Economy.

If you would succeed in business never spend a cent more than you earn, said the late Marshall Field. No matter how small your earnings, you should master this art. I use the word "art" advisedly, as so many young men appear to fritter away, without so much as a thought, all their earnings.

One Vote Counts as Much as Eight.

In the July American Magazine Ray Stannard Baker shows how in South Carolina a little over 2,600 votes elect a congressman, whereas it requires 14,000 votes to elect a congressman in Pennsylvania, and 16,000 in New York. Under the present system of political control of the South, therefore, one voter in South Carolina is as influential in national legislation as nearly seven voters in Pennsylvania and eight in New York.

Longest Word in the Language.

Several correspondents have asked the New York Press what is the longest word in the English language. Such queries are invariably accompanied with the statement that a wager depends on the answer. While, under the Hughes law, I should not encourage gambling, it is very tempting to answer: the longest word is "smiles," because it is exactly one "mile" between the initial and final letters.

Her Letter Beat the "Meanest Man."

A letter written by a woman decided a contest for the office of president of a men's club in the Bronx a few days ago. There were two candidates for the place; one a clerk in a New York financial institution, whose young wife had been a working girl, the other a wealthy manufacturer, with a reputation among his neighbors for "closeness."

The day before the election each member of the little club received a typewritten letter, signed by a woman whom all knew, which began with these words: "If what I write you is not true, it is libel!" Then she said that the club should not honor its "meanest man" and related some amusing incidents to demonstrate that she was not mistaken in her estimate of the man. In closing she wrote:

"What do you think of a man who has his barn painted and says to his wife: 'That's your birthday present.' If you can afford to elect that kind of a man for your president, go ahead!" The alleged "meanest man" was defeated.

A SUCCESSFUL NOVELIST.

Harold MacGrath Has Established an Envidable Reputation.

Harold MacGrath, whose new novel, "The Lure of the Mask," has just appeared, was born 37 years ago in Syracuse, N. Y. He was educated in Syracuse schools, and made his start in life on a Syracuse newspaper—the Herald. In 1891 he went to Chicago and worked there as a paragrapher on the Evening Mail. A group of brilliant young newspaper men were around him—Frank Pixley, George Ade, Eugene Field, George Horton and Kirke La Shelle—all unknown at that time except Field. From Chicago MacGrath went to Albany, and from Albany to New York, and finally returned to Syracuse, to settle down to the pleasant business of writing entertaining fiction.

In ten years he has produced six novels: "Arms and the Woman," "The Puppet Crown," "The Grey Cloak," "The Man on the Box," "Half a Rogue," and now "The Lure of the Mask," which is published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. Besides this, he has written two novelettes, "The Princess Elopement" and "Hearts and Masks;" two books of short stories, "Enchantment" and "The Best Man;" and an operetta, "The Watteau Shepherdess."

Many of the incidents in "The Lure of the Mask" are autobiographic. The scenes of the story are laid, for the most part, in Italian cities. Mr. MacGrath visited Italy in 1906 and again in 1907, and has woven his impressions charmingly into the plot.

EXPENSIVE TO LEAD FASHION.

New York Rich Spend Huge Sums for Clothes.

The New York girl is an expensive proposition. The other day a supreme court judge increased the allowance of a 17-year-old bud from $6,000 to $10,000 a year so that she could dress "as becomes her station." Some comment was made at the time that this was rather a large sum for a young girl to spend for raiment, but, according to a fashionable Fifth avenue modiste, $10,000 a year is a mere bagatelle for Miss Manhattan to spend for frocks and frills.

In a dress parade of the nations the New York specimen of American beauty, by right of her costly and unlimited wardrobe, would lead the procession, for, according to this fashionable dressmaker, her sartorial position is achieved by a reckless disregard of money. Twenty thousand dollars is only a moderate outlay for a new spring outfit. At least so says this dressmaker, who really ought to know, for she has gowned many maidens and matrons of the smart set.

Nowhere is money more lavishly spent for fashionable finery than in this city, she says, for every New York woman's fad seems to be pretty clothes. Money may come and money may go, but frocks and frills go on forever, and there seems to be no abatement in the costly desires of the "sex." While the modiste admitted that she had customers who spent twice or thrice $20,000 a year for clothes, she confessed that Miss New York could be nicely gowned on $20,000 a year.

Thought It Was a Burglar.

"You are a coward!" said Mrs. Stubb, firmly. "Why do you say that, Maria?" asked Mr. Stubb, nervously. "Why, you told me that you were not afraid of anything that walked in shoe leather, and I just saw you jump at the sound of a mouse." "Well—er—Maria, mice don't wear shoe leather."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hail's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TOO GOOD FOR THIS EARTH.

Type of Office Boy a Creature of Funny Man's Brain.

"So you have come in answer to my advertisement for office boy?" said the old broker briskly. "Do you smoke cigarettes?"

"No, sir," replied the saintly youngster in the doorway.

"Chew gum or read novels?"
"Never, sir."

"Play juggler with the paper weights or talk nonsense through the telephone when your employer is absent?"

"No, sir."
"Ever go to the circus?"

"Never saw a circus in my life, sir."
"How about baseball? Do you take two or three afternoons a week to see the game?"

"Don't like baseball, sir."
The old broker bit the end off his cigar.

"My boy," he said, quietly, "this is the twenty-ninth story, isn't it?"
"I think so, sir."

"Well, it is not high enough for you."
"Not high enough for me, sir?"

"No, you belong up in paradise."—Chicago News.

Grape-Nuts a Perfectly Balanced Food.

No chemist's analysis of Grape-Nuts can begin to show the real value of the food—the practical value as shown by personal experience.

It is a food that is perfectly balanced, supplies the needed elements of brain and nerves in all stages of life from the infant, through the strenuous times of active middle life, and is a comfort and support in old age.

"For two years I have used Grape-Nuts with milk and a little cream, for breakfast. I am comfortably hungry for my dinner at noon."

"I use little meat, plenty of vegetables and fruit in season, for the noon meal, and if tired at tea time, take Grape-Nuts alone and feel perfectly nourished."

"Nerve and brain power, and memory are much improved since using Grape-Nuts. I am over sixty and weigh 155 lbs. My son and husband seeing how I have improved, are now using Grape-Nuts."

"My son, who is a traveling man, eats nothing for breakfast but Grape-Nuts and a glass of milk. An aunt, over 70, seems fully nourished on Grape-Nuts and cream." "There's a Reason."

GIVEN TO CHARITY

WORTHY DISPOSAL OF MONEY WON BY RACERS.

Hospitals Built and the Poor Helped as the Result of Turf Victories of Horses Owned by Prominent Men.

The king of Sweden recently told a story of King Edward's charitable propensities. Just before the race for the Derby which the king's horse Diamond Jubilee carried off, his royal highness—as he then was—was watching the horses proceeding to the starting post. Suddenly turning to the king of Sweden, who was with him, he said: "I am most specially anxious to win to-day."

"Why so?" inquired the king. "Because," was the answer. "I always give the princess whatever amount my success happens to bring me. With the stake money of the last Derby I won the princess provided 1,700 poor boys with a complete outfit—clothes, underlinen, boots, and all necessaries—and stamped on each article was 'From your friend the prince.'"

The duchess of Portland some time ago presented to her husband a very handsome blotting book of Russia leather heavily mounted in silver. On the mountings are engraved the names of all the races won by that extraordinary racer Donovan. In 1889 Donovan won the Derby and the St. Leger, besides the Newmarket stakes and many other important races. The total sum won by Donovan during his racing career amounted to £70,000, and the whole of this large fortune the duke gave to his wife for the purpose of building almshouses for widows of the duke's tenants and a cottage hospital for the neighborhood.

Baron Hirsch was another great turfite, most of whose winnings went to charity. During his lifetime he spent more than £50,000 of turf winnings on charity. All the winnings of La Fleche, amounting in all to £34,585, were devoted to various charities.

Dogs have done much for charity. The record in this direction is held by Tim, the famous Airdale terrier which belonged to Mr. Bush, the Great Western inspector at Paddington. For more than ten years before his death Tim trotted from train to train, inviting donations to the railway servants' widows' and orphans' fund. The total of his collections exceeded £800. The dog always knew when royalties were about to travel. He would sit down on the edge of the carpet laid on the platform and refuse to move until he had had something added to his board. On five separate occasions Queen Victoria placed a sovereign in his box, and many times the king has done the same. Mr. W. W. Astor gave Tim his record present—a check for £200—on the occasion of the coming of age of his son.

Other animals, too, have indirectly contributed to the cause of charity. At Amersham, in Buckinghamshire, the superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school adopted a novel expedient for raising money for the Congo mission. He distributed among his scholars a number of rabbits. These they had to fatten at home, and when fit for market the creatures were sold, the proceeds going to the mission.

At Frieth, near Marlow, a pig raised no less than £7 for charitable purposes. It was raffled for and then given back by the winner and sold again. In Lancashire town a local butcher presented a handsome young pig to a bazaar on condition that a church member, got up in frock coat and silk hat, should drive it through the village. The procession caused great amusement and a collection realized more than £3.—London Tit-Bits.

Superstition in Persia.

One of the greatest trials of the missionaries in Persia is to find means for counteracting the gross superstition that exists there among the common people.

Travelers' Tales.

A distinguished traveler and war correspondent on a lecture tour in Scotland spoke one night at a little village four miles from a railway station.

The chairman of the occasion, after introducing the lecturer as "the man who's come here to broaden our intellects," said that he felt that a wee bit prayer would not be out of place.

"And, O Lord," he went on, "pit it intae the heart o' this mon tae speak the truth, the hale truth, and naething but the truth, and gie us grace tae understand' him."

Then, with a glance at the lecturer, the chairman said: "I've been a traveler meself!"—Youth's Companion.

Three Miles of Seats.

Placed end to end, the tiers of seats in the monster stadium in which the Olympic games are to be held in London this summer would make a line more than three miles in length. The framework of the seats is constructed of steel, with timber platforms capable of holding 10,000 chairs. The steel weighs more than 400 tons, and there are 10,000 cubic feet of timber.

YOU'RE TOO THIN.

Even Slight Catarrhal Derangements of the Stomach Produce Acid Fermentation of the Food.

It's Stomach Catarrh

Some people are thin and always remain thin, from temperamental reasons. Probably in such cases nothing can be done to change this personal peculiarity.

But there are a large number of people who get thin, or remain thin, who naturally would be plump and fleshy but for some digestive derangement. Thin people lack in adipose tissue.

Adipose tissue is chiefly composed of fat. Fat is derived from the oily constituents of food.

The fat-making foods are called by the physiologist, hydrocarbons. This class of foods are not digested in the stomach at all. They are digested in the duodenum, the division of the alimentary canal just below the stomach. The digestion of fat is mainly, if not wholly, the work of the pancreatic juice. This juice is of alkaline reaction, and is rendered inert by the addition of acid. A hyperacidity of the digestive fluids of the stomach passing down into the duodenum, destroys the pancreatic fluid for digestive purposes. Therefore, the fats are not digested or emulsified, and the system is deprived of its due proportion of oily constituents. Hence, the patient grows thin.

The beginning of the trouble is a catarrhal condition of the stomach which causes hyperacidity of the gastric juices. This hyperacidity is caused by fermentation of food in the stomach. When the food is taken into the stomach, if the process of digestion does not begin immediately, acid fermentation will take place. This creates a hyperacidity of the stomach juices which in their turn prevent the pancreatic digestion of the oils, and the emaciation results.

A dose of Peruna before each meal hastens the stomach digestion. By hurrying digestion, Peruna prevents fermentation of the contents of the stomach, and the pancreatic juices thus preserved in its normal state. It then only remains for the patient to eat a sufficient amount of fat-forming foods, and the thinness disappears and plumpness takes its place.

Business Amounts to Something. Last year Brazil needed over 20,000,000 jute bags to hold the year's coffee production. Each bag costs the shipper a trifle over 18 cents. The business of making coffee bags thus amounted last year to nearly $4,000,000.
