MIKE CUDDIE and wife were lynched by vigilants at Ouray, Colo., Sunday morning, for the brutal murder of an adopted daughter. This is the first instance of a female being lynched in the Centennial State.

It is claimed that the American hog is receiving more attention in foreign journals than the Kings and Queens. He deserves it, too. In his extreme modesty, he is oblivious of the honor conferred upon him.

THE wreck of the steamer Columbus is said to have resulted from the carelessness of the pilot. It appears he left his post to go and warm himself in a time when the ship was in a dangerous place. Such recklessness should be duly punished.

CONGRESSMAN GREENLIEF of the Empire State suggests the following couplet as pretty clearly defining Porter's position on the 29th day of August:

You can and you can't; You will and you won't; You'll be damned if you do; You'll be damned if you don't.

THE Denver & New Orleans railroad company filed a complaint in the United States court to-day against the Union Pacific railway company for $1,000,000 damage, claiming that the latter road refuses to exchange passengers and freight and has entered into a compact with the Denver & Rio Grande to break it down.

SENATOR LOGAN introduced a bill to provide for an extension of benefits to all persons already granted or hereafter may be granted to "soldiers, sailors and members of the marine corps who served in the late war," and upon the death of such persons to their widows or minor children under the laws and regulations that now govern such cases, except it shall not be necessary that such widows or minor children prove the death or the result of any disability contracted in the service.

THE House Committee on Public Lands held a meeting at which all members but two were present, and unanimously agreed to report to the House the bill to declare the forfeit of lands granted to the Texas Pacific railroad. The bill agreed upon by the committee contains besides the provision declaring the forfeiture of lands granted to aid in the construction of the railroad, a clause validating all acts of the Department of the Interior, its officers and local land officers in permitting homestead entries selections or purchases of land granted to the company and on issuing the patents certificates and lists thereon, and confirming the rights and titles to parties or persons holding patents or claiming the right to title under such certificates or lists of lands.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22, 1884.

The Republicans of the Senate have again nominated and elected Mr. Edmunds President pro tem of that body notwithstanding that his resignation was accepted in the early part of the present session. The intention was to place Mr. Anthony in the chair, but his health has compelled him to decline the honor; hence the decision to again thrust it upon Mr. Edmunds. The latter is, of course, an able presiding officer, but I doubt whether he would not greatly prefer his old place on the floor, where he always led in the debates and made things uncomfortable for his opponents by his sharp and incisive remarks. As a presiding officer, Judge Davis, of Illinois, who retired last spring, was not exactly a model, but his "go as you please" style was, on the whole, rather popular, especially his determination to adjourn in season to permit him to sit down to his dinner at six o'clock. Several long sessions of the Senate, carried ten minutes, fifteen minutes, or a half hour past six, annoyed him grievously. As the hands of the clock neared the hour for his dinner he could not conceal his anxiety to get away. Senator Edmunds has a vein of humor, and on such occasions did not scruple to parry the chairman. One day when a bill, which had been for weeks under consideration, was about to come to a vote, and six o'clock was near, the Vermont Senator, purely in a spirit of mischief, suggested the propriety of having the bill read, as many changes had been made in it which required scrutiny. Mr. Davis was dreadfully provoked. Tossing his head on one side, and casting a piteous, appealing glance at the clock and then at Mr. Edmunds, he protested, with all the earnestness possible, in a voice that came direct from a yearning stomach, "Oh, but it's a very voluminous bill, and it will take the clerk a long time to read it." The beseeching voice touched Mr. Edmunds; he relented, the bill was passed, and Mr. Davis trotted off in temperate haste to the National hotel to get his dinner, half an hour later.

THE clergymen of Indianapolis have formally recommended that funeral services shall be performed on secular days, in private dwellings, and not in the houses of worship; that the friends shall take leave of the dead in private; that the remains shall not be exhibited to the public, and that, with a view to reducing the burden of expense, the services shall be one day and the burial privately performed on the next. May the clergymen of Indianapolis live to attend many funerals and never go to their own.

At Philadelphia the father of Bertha C. Clear, secretly married a few days since to J. B. Garrison, the "living skeleton," has filed a bill in equity praying that the marriage be declared null and void, as his daughter is a lunatic and incompetent to enter into any contract.
