McCOOK.

Twelve miles west of Indianola is situated the town of McCook. It has about four hundred inhabitants, chiefly employes of the railroad company, for here is located one of the division stations of the B. & M. R. R. The people of this place have exhibited no little enterprise in the way of public improvements, among which are the Congregationalist church building, and a bridge across the Republican. Owing to the impurities in the water as obtained from ordinary wells a system of water works has been established and is now in successful operation. The United States Land Office for this district is located here, thus making the taking up of government lands in any part of the county an easy matter. The town contains two general stores, a bank, two hotels, a lumber yard, a saloon, etc. It is essentially a railroad town and being the last town of importance on the railroad in this state, is headquarters for the stockmen and cowboys of the range.

The above contemptible, cowardly, and unprincipled misrepresentation and fabrication appeared in last week's Courier. Personally, the author of the miserable slur merits no attention, as his unprincipled, unmanly character is too patent to the people of Red Willow already, too patrid to be resurrected and exhibited to the public gaze; so we will dispose of the nasty, mangy thing, and proceed. The writer has nothing but kind wishes for the continued prosperity of the people of Indianola, and this sentiment is the feeling of all our citizens, who with us have the sublimest contempt for the father of the above bundle of villainous falsehoods, and unbounded sympathy for the people who have the measly carcass quartered in their midst, breeding nothing but discord and strife between those whose interests are common. Just how infinitesimally small the principle, the honor, the manhood of an individual is, who claims to be working for the interests of the whole county, is inconceivable; and while his imbecile utterances fall upon the ears of those who know him the effect is nihil, but when advantage is taken of what purports to be an annual, i. e., an impartial description of the county, to disseminate such statements among those whom the annual reaches away from this county as being the real condition of McCook, the grossness of the outrage upon the community needs to be set before the people in its true light. To speak specifically would occupy too much space, but one statement demands imperatively a correction: Population about 400. McCook to-day contains not one soul less than 700 people, and the writer of the lying statement knew it at the time. Fully one hundred people have moved into McCook during the month of February, and more are coming every day. Our reporter, after seeing the obscure intimation that a hamlet, McCook by name, existed, started out to investigate, and presents the following as the result of his search:

McCOOK

Is situated midway between Lincoln and Denver, on the line of the B. & M., of which it is a division station. The company has erected a 15 stall round house and repair shops, an eating house, and division headquarters. The Lincoln Land Co., at an expense of $25,000, has planted a system of water works only exceeded by one city in the State of Nebraska, Omaha. A substantial wagon bridge was recently completed over the Republican river at this point, and the streams of wagons which weekly wend their way to McCook from the southern part of this county and northern part of Decatur county indicate the great increase of trade its erection has brought to our town. There are three hotels, two large general stores, two hardware stores, two drug stores, two meat markets, two lumber yards, two livery and feed stables, two land agencies, two insurance agencies, two millinery shops, two harness shops, two flour and feed stores, one photograph gallery, and another in course of erection, one bank, two barbers, four lawyers, three physicians, one resident dentist, one bakery, one blacksmith shop, three contractors, each with a force of hands now busily engaged in putting up business houses and residences, and each having contracts which will require the whole of the coming summer to complete. One tailor shop, one shoe maker, one grocery and restaurant, one jewelry store, one furniture store, two bricklayers, four painters, one billiard parlor and one saloon.

The U. S. Land Office is situated at this place, and brings crowds of land seekers to our town. A third general store is in course of erection which will surpass anything of the kind between Hastings and Denver, when completed. It contains two large store rooms on the first floor, and main part of the second story will form the best proportioned, and arranged hall for theatrical purposes in the Republican Valley, all complete with a commodious stage, dressing rooms and ticket office. The remainder will be made in residence rooms for Mr. Menard, the builder.

The town of McCook stands to-day the best town in the Republican Valley—although but a yearling. No town in Southwestern Nebraska, west of Hastings, has as many fine and substantial dwellings as McCook; none contain a more energetic class of business men or finer stocks of merchandise; none a better class of society; and we think we are not overstepping the bounds of fact when we state that the Magic City has no peer in the Valley.

McCook has entered upon a season of prosperity, the demand for houses is much greater than the supply. It is the prevailing belief that more building will be done this summer than last. And the buildings will be in keeping with those already built, and an honor to the town.

The country surrounding McCook is as good as any in the county, and has been taken up rapidly during the fall and winter, and parties have refused $4 per acre for land within two miles of town. A number of houses have been built on claims in this vicinity which will be occupied in the Spring, and the matter of cultivation will be tested more extensively than ever before.

MR. BOEHRER, the literary pork packing genius of the Arapahoe Pioneer, styles those newspaper men, who, in a spirit of honor, run him a little on his "Singing Pilgrim" oration, eulogistic on the death of Wendell Phillips, as "small fry." Very good. But when Fred assumes the role of the sharp witted Prince Pickle, with the editors of the Valley as the awe-stricken subjects, the superlative wit and transcendent sarcasm of the thing is quite overpowering. "Small fry" is good. Our brother needs it—a little seasoning. And now it doth appear that the Pioneer man has been at his old trick and plagiarized the article from the Kenesaw Times.
