The wife of Robert J. Burdette, who discovered in the Hawkeye humorist his latent talents, and although herself a hopeless invalid, persisted in the development of his genius, died this week. The loss will be irreparable to the afflicted husband.

The state board of equalization has raised the assessment of the B. & M. line two thousand dollars a mile. The U. P. assessment is not raised so much. The returns to the auditor's office show the business of the B. & M. largely in excess of that of the U. P.

It took a Massachusetts jury only ten minutes to convict a Worcester quack of manslaughter, he having bandaged a woman in kerosene, thus causing her death in a very short time. If all the quacks had their just deserts, the penitentiaries in this country would have to be largely increased in size and number to accommodate them.

The humorist of the Norwalk (Cincinnati) Hour, who caused a run on the Norwalk savings bank by a facetious reference to the failure of a sand bank, now declares his intention to indemnify the depositors of the savings bank resulting from the panic created by his joke. This offer, coming from a newspaper man, may be considered another joke.

Those who were so hasty to condemn Grant & Ward for their peculiar business methods, can now pour out their denunciations upon the officials of the Penn bank at Pittsburgh, who, with a capital of only $200,000 to work on, managed to steal more than $2,000,000. The only thing found in the bank of any value was the safe, and that was too heavy to be carried off.

The sworn statement by himself that he had hired Miss Hill as his mistress for five hundred dollars per month, puts Mr. Sharon without the pale of decent society, makes of him a social out-law and lecherous social leper of the worst kind. There has been nothing so shameless and shameful in the history of criminal procedure as this trial has developed. Its showing up of criminal lewdness by one of our millionaires is indeed shocking and should open the eyes of all respectable people everywhere.—Gazette—Journal.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN, who has one foot in the grave, ought to make the same arrangement with his family physician that William King, a rich old London merchant, made with his physician. He willed $1,000 to his physician, with the proviso that the sum should be doubled every year that the testator should be kept alive. The second year the sum became $2,000, the third year, $4,000; the fourth, $8,000; the fifth, $16,000; the sixth, $32,000; the seventh, $64,000; the eighth, $128,000; the ninth, $256,000; the tenth, $512,000. Upon the death of Mr. King a few weeks ago, the physician was paid $750,000, between ten and eleven years having passed since the agreement.

Arrors of the crusade begun against piano playing in Berlin, the New York Times says: "The average German young lady practices four hours every day, and many German young men imitate her miserable example. Police statistics show that the number of pianos in Berlin averages two and an eighth for every house. Thus on every block of a Berlin street there are from 200 to 740 pianos, according to the character of the street and the financial circumstances of the residents. In a block where there are, say 400 pianos, each of which is in operation four hours a day, it is evident that there cannot be a moment between dawn and midnight when some one is not practicing scales and exercises, or, worse still, playing Wagner's music."
