TRAIN WRECKERS AT WORK.

The B. & M. "Cannon Ball" Thrown Down an Embankment Near Hubbell.

The worst accident that ever occurred on a Nebraska railroad took place on the B. & M. one mile west of Hubbell on the night of the 17th. The track at that $1,000 for the arrest of the culprits, and bint approaches a bridge 160 feet long and 40 feet high, by a long steep grade. The Cannon Ball train was running 4) miles an hour, and was thrown from the track in the middle of the bridge. The engine, baggage car and smoking car ran across on the ties, left the embankment 170 feet from the end of the bridge, and rolled over twice before reaching the bottom, 65 feet below. The baggage car was found at the bottom, under the smoker, smashed to pieces. The other coaches and sleepers remained on the bridge, which was badly torn up. One coach was standing nearly perpendicular. Engineer Alex Stuart was thrown from the cab and had a leg broken below the knee. Baggageman J. McNaughton had his skull fractured and is fatally injured. Conductor Pat Lyman had both legs broken below the knee. He will lose one and prob-ably both. Of the thirty passengers fifteen were injured, two perhaps fatally. The fireman staid in the cab and went to the bottom of the ditch uninjured. He went to Hubbell for help. Physicians from Hubbell, Wymore and Red Cloud, responded. Superintendent Calvert and As-sistant Superintendent McDonniff went on a special at 4 a. m., and the wounded were taken to Wymore at 6 a. m. The wounded conductor was sent to Atchison on a spe-

Investigation showed that the fish-plate had been removed from the joint of the miudle bridge and the spikes pulled out, and barbed wire sixty feet long was passed through the bridge and to the bank. The perpetrators had waited until the train approached and pulled the rail from its place. One suspicious character was arrested and others are being shadowed. A claw-bar and wreuch stolen from the section house at Chester the night before were found at the scene of the accident.

EUROPEAN DIFFICULTIES.

The Situation in Egypt a Subject Engross

ing Much Attention.

M. Waddington, French embassador to London, had a long private conference with Gladstone on the 14th. The fact caused much speculation in newspaper cir-cles, and extraordinary efforts have been made to ascertain what transpired at the meeting. It has been learned from good authority that at least one thing was decided on: It was agreed and arranged that Gladstone and Prime Minister Ferry should make similar and simultaneous statements, the former to the house of commons, the latter to the French chambers, concerning a mutual understanding arrived at by the respective governments concerning the attitude they have agreed with each other to assume at the coming conference of powers upon the Egyptian question. It was de-cided to make these statements either Thursday or Friday. There can be no doubt that public opinion in England is bitterly bostile to the arrangement with France, because Englishmen generally believe it to be secured by concessions derogatory to the national honor and prestige of England. On one hand, the French people are equally opposed to the arrange-ment, because they believe France did not obtain as much as her allowance. In the rural districts of France the belief is growing that Gladstone has practically outwitted the French cabinet and secured an alliance are more beautiful than any girl you for the conference, the purpose of which is can find in New York above Fourth certain to be resisted by Germany, and to bring new trouble upon the republic. The live in the t-nement houses and over belief is energetically stimulated by Ferry's enemies, and is finding robust expression in the provincial press.

revengeful of late. On the other hand the stealing of the claw bar and wrench from the section house the day before the wreck gives color to the rumor that robbery was the object of the fiends. Up to a late hour on the 18th there were no new develop-ments, either as regards the wreck itself, will use every means at its command to hunt them down.

The Western Delegates in the East.

The western delegation, accompanied by several prominent persons of Augusta, Maine, visited the national sol-diers' home at Augusta on the 10th. They were received by Gen. Luther Stephenson. the governor of the home, and saluted with thirty-eight guns. The hall was surround-ed by a large body of soldiers in line. The governor delivered a brief address, giving a short history of the home. In the evening there was an informal private reception given by Mr. Blaine to the delegation. A small number of invitations were issued to prominent citizens and about 100 persons were in attendance. The guests were re-ceived by Mr. and Mrs. Blaine and a very pleasant hour spent in social conversation.

A U. S. Consul Shot.

At a balloon ascension in the Quincane, Bordeaux, France, on the 15th, George W. Roosevelt, United States consul, and wife were present. A French soldier fired a pistol at the Americans and the bullet passed through Roosevelt's hat and contused his brain, knocking him over. The wounded man pointed out the soldier, but the latter with two companions escaped. It is supposed the soldier mistook the consul for an officer in civilian's dress against whom he had a grudge. The commander at Bordeaux ordered an inquiry.

Beautiful Shop Girls.

New York Sun.

"There are more beautiful women among the shop girls of New York than there are among the avenues," said a policeman abruptly as a group of dashing looking women passed. "You can see some of them on Broadway; but the place to catch them in shoals is down on the East side. Whenever I have any friends come over to see me from out of town, or whenever my business makes it necessary for me to show some one around the city, which occasionally happens, I take the visitor down on the East side. In the course of seventeen years I have steered a good many men down on East Broadway, and I never yet failed to amaze them by the crowds of handsome women. The best way to see them is to start along Grand street from the Bowery about half-past four o'clock in the afternoon, take the south side of the street, and follow it east as far as East Broadway; there you will see hundreds of girls that will make you gasp for breath. There are faces more beautiful than any you ever see on Broadway, and figures that no man can find fault with. After you turn into East Broadway and proceed downward you will catch the diamond in the rough. You will see girls there almost in rags who

THE STAGE-DRIVER'S STORY.

How General Scott's Life Was Saved and How His Driver Twice Escaped

Death.

The traveler of the present day, as he is hurried along by the lightning express, in its buffet cars and palace sleepers, seldom reverts in thought to the time when the stage coach and packet were the only means of communication between distant points. It is rare that one of the real old-time stage drivers is met with now-a-days, and when the writer recently ran across Fayette Haskell, of Lockport, N. Y., he felt like a bibliographer over the discovery of some rare volume of "forgotten lore." Mr. Haskell, although one of the pioneers in stage driving (he formerly ran from Lewiston to Niagara Falls and Buffalo), is hale and hearty and bids fair to live for many years. The strange stories of his early adventures would fill a volume. At one time, when going down a mountain near Lewiston with no less a personage than Gen. Scott as a passenger, the brakes gave way and the coach came on the heels of the whcel horses. The only remedy was to whip the leaders to a gallop. Gaining additional momentum with each revolution of the wheels the coach swayed and pitched down the mountain side and into the streets of Lewiston. Straight ahead, at the foot of the steep hill, flowed the Niagara river, towards which the four horses dashed, apparently to certain death. Yet the firm hand never relaxed its hold nor the clear brain its conception of what must be done in the emergency. On dashed the horses until the narrow dock was reached on the river bank, when by a masterly exhibition of nerve and daring, the coach was turned in scarce its own length and the horses brought to a stand still before the pale lookers on could realize what had occurred. A purse was raised by General Scott and presented to Mr. Haskell with high compliments for his skill and bravery. Notwithstanding all his strength and his robust constitution the strain of continuous work and exposure proved too much for Mr. Haskell's constitution. The constant jolting of the coach and the necessarily cramped position in which he was obliged to sit, contributed to this end, and at times he was obliged to abandon driving altogether.

Speaking of this period he said : "I found it almost impossible to sleep at night; my appetite left me entirely and I had a tired feeling which I never knew before and could not account for."

"Did you give up driving entirely?" "No. I tried to keep up but it was only with the greatest effort. This state of things continued for nearly twenty years until last October when 1 went all to pieces." "In what way?"

"Oh, I doubled all up; could not

About 800 seats will be allotted to the press. Subscribers to the fund to pay expenses will receive 750 tickets, and 750 more will be used for distribution among the local committees of city and county officers. It is supposed 1,200 tickets will be given to senators and representatives in congress, veterans and other eminent men of the country who will attend the convention, and 950 tickets will be reserved by the national committee for contingencies. The remainder of the tickets will be given to detegates, making six tickets to each for distribution to the public.

THE UNION PACIFIC.

An Interview With the Secretary of the Interior.

Charles Francis Adams, representing the Union Pacific railroad company, with the chief book-keeper of the company, had an interview on the 17th with the secretary of the interior and the commissioner of railroads in regard to the report upon the financial condition of the company, prepared by experts for transmission to the judiciary committee of the senate. Representatives of the Union Pacific railroad company asserted that the report did not correctly represent the finan-cial condition of the company, and the secretary, after hearing their arguments, de-cided that the report should in some re-spects be modified.

Secretary Teller has notified the government experts to report to the Union Pacific company, and the officials of the road now declare themselves better satisfied. The point of difference is understood to be that the experts failed to place among the assets certain amounts due the company. The counsel for the railroad, it is said, convinced Secretary Teller that these sums are clearly assets, hence the modification. The report, as modified, will be considerably more favorable to the road than the original draft.

Further Particulars of the Wreck.

The fireman of the Burlington & Missouri train which was wrecked near Hubbell on the night of the 17th says that just before the engine plunged down the embankment, he saw four men jump out of the brush at the side of the bridge and run across the country. When the investigation was made, after the wreck, a rope of barb wire which had been torn from a neighboring fence, was found attached to the mis-placed rail, the other end reaching to the bushes from which the men were seen

The Soul of Honor. Virginia City Chronicle.

It is extremely refreshing to notice the fine sense of honor possessed by some of the rising generation in Virginia City. Last evening two youths, each aged about 14, met on C street, when the following dialogue took place: "I say, Bill, you got my knife." "No, I ain't." "'Pon yer word?" "'Pon me word." "'Pon yer soul?" "'Pon me soul." "Hope you may die if you have?" "Hope I may die if I have." "You ain't got my knife?" "I ain't got your knife." The querist seemed to be still incredulous, but was on the point of giving it up in despair, when a bright idea occurred to him and he returned to the attack with : "'Pon yer honor?" "Oh," said the other, "now you touch me honor, take your danged old knite," and he handed the article over. "Well done, Bill," said his chum; "I allue knowed you was a honorable chap."

The Mexican Treaty.

In the report accompanying the bill to carry into effect the Mexican treaty, prepared by A. S. Hewitt and reported from the ways and means committee, the committee says Mexico is the gate through which this country will find its connections with Central and South America. The time has already arrived when we must adopt a continental policy, laying its foundations broad and deep in the mutual interests of intimate commercial and political sympathies. The Monroe doctrine must be asserted and enforced. It is essential for our safety as well as our prosperity that we shall exercise a controlling influence in the affairs of the western world.
