THAT TRIAL.

Well, we have again been in the throes of the law, or the law has been in anguish unspeakable, as you please. The case of the State of Nebraska vs. Black, in which Wallin is the complaining witness, and in the which the defendant, J. F. Black, is charged with assault and battery, came up before Justice Fisher, Monday morning, occupying the entire day and the major por-bly the most closely contested one that step in the procedure was marked by objections from one side or the other,

only retreating to take another position, and the trial soon drifted into one of personalities, and the case was unnecessarily retarded by wrangling and bickering that ought never to have been suffered by any court, not to mention the fact that it was most unbecoming conduct. The game is a poor onewhen it lacks fruition. The doubly condensed and highly heated atmosphere in the court room ever and anon assumed a dramatically lurid aspect.

were considered not to have met unless the brilliant claret was drawn from somebody's proboscis or somebody's eye became draped in mourning. But, we digress. After dragging along almost two days, the testimony was at last all heard, and the counsel pro and con had their finale. Justice Fisher then ren dered a decision to the effect that there was no probable cause of complaint, and the prisoner was therefore discharged,

DIED.

McGRIFF-On the afternoon of July 3d, 1884, Martha McGriff, lacking but a few months of being 27 years of age.

The transfer of the soul or spirit from this body to one that is pure and spotless, bearing the likenesss of our body here, but of transcendent clearness, susceptible of showing the exact coloring of the soul that is to inhabit it, there will need be no questions asked, nor the trying palm of any deception, for every spiritual house will show the exact perfections or imperfections of its inhabitant, for as we build in this life, so will our spiritual buildings apof the transition that she dreaded. To-day she inhabits a house not made by earthly hands, but by him who said, hers must be a beautiful abode. ARE THEY WAITING FOR US ? Yes, over on that other shore, Stands our friends, and thousands more, Watching and waiting on the other shore, To add to their number just one more.

Martha has gone to join that host, Whose army covers her entire coast, Watching and waiting on the shore To welcome home just one more.

Oh, methinks I heard the sound, As she approached the heavenly ground : Watching and waiting was their song, So soft, so mellow, and so long. Х.

BONDVILLE.

Our political rooster gives three cheers for Blaine and Logan.

Ed. Mack has returned to his farm in Stockville after a summer's labor at his trade.

Quite a company congregated at the church, Sabbath, but were disappointed, owing to sudden illness of Rev. Moore. One of the Fuller Bros. became mystified a few days ago in trying to navigate our streets, but finally hauled up at Jefferson street.

Judging from a conversation we over heard a few days ago, Bondville is soon to have an attorney. W. O. Bonds shingle may soon be seen.

"Batter's-Jack" say that if people don't keep their tongues and pens off him he will call down a plague of fleas, bugs and other venomous things, (the like of which has never been seen) and will utterly consume them.

Our people were aroused from their lethargy by a run away last Friday. A. E. Whitesel's team became frightened, started dragging the driver for some distance. Nobody was seriously injured. The horse received a few scratches and one wheel was completely demolished.

Our otherwise peaceful village has been a scene of considerable excitement for the past week, owing to some pending law suits. Two of Red Willows pear in the heavens above, when we go legal advisers, J. Byron Jennings of to take possession of it. Well might McCook and R. M. Snavely of Indianola, Martha McGriff say, that she had no were on our streets on professional fears after death, it was only the pains business. Bondville's court convenes next Thursday.

A most disgraceful drunken fray took place at Danbury, one day last week. "I go to prepare a place for you." And We have not been able to gain full parjudging from the standpoint of this life, | ticulars. It seems one of the participants took the precautions to hide his money, but his memory failed him when he became thoroughly drunk. He accused some of the party (most of whom were drunk also) of stealing it. The accusation was resented in such a way as to prove very detrimental to clothing and finally succeeded in disrobing several of the party. One of them rushed into the house and when he next appeared on the stage of action was arrayed in one of his wife's garments. Mounting a horse rode over the prairie at a Mr. Forsey has moved to his claim break-neck speed. Frightening some of the ladies and proving a general nuisance. Why is it that otherwise respectable men will (purposely as it were) make such abominable brutes of themselves just for a few draughts of the accursed. The experience Red Willow county has had during the past few weeks in her various towns has proved that nothing short of prohibition will ever protect her people from such disreputable and contemptible scenes.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

A Free Ride to Crete Nurseries and Return.

Crete Nurseries offer to pay the fare both ways, to and from the nursery, to any man, or to a representative of a club, who will purchase one hundred dollars worth of stock this fall. This gives an opportunity to select without expense from one hundred and twenty acres of stock, priced at much lower rates than offered by traveling agents of other nurseries.

THE Marshal of Omaha has issued a manifesto to the effect that all women found on the streets wearing the conventional "Mother Hubbard" shall be arrested and incarcerated in the city prison. One unfortunate has already been arrested and has given bail to appear in court. The world, with suspended breath, anxiously awaits the result. An Omaha woman inquires of the Bee which, by inference is more indecent, the "Mother Hubbard" or the 'Dude Pantaloons." Give it up.
