A Large Number Wounded, Some of Whom

CAMP McPHERSON, FREMONT, Neb., September 4.—This has been the liveliest day of the reunion in camp. The immense attendance of yesterday has been trebled by arrivals from every direction. Every train came in loaded to the utmost capacity, and wagons come in from the country loaded with "camper's" camping materials until there were at least a thousand wagons and vehicles of all kinds corralled on the east side of the camp, and the view over this place alone presented an interesting view. Hundreds of busses and carriages and passenger wagons of all kinds were doing an immense business, carrying people from the city and depots to and from the camp.

The rousing camp fire in the evening was attended by an immense crowd, and the big pavillion was jammed and packed to its utmost capacity. The meeting started off with heard. During the evening speeches were made by Judge Sears, of Council Bluffs, Captain Henry, General Manderson and others. Lots of funny and pathetic stories were told and songs were sung. General Thayer made the announcements, requesting that all ex-prisoners meet in the pavilion at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, and that all state organizations are requested to meet at their respective headquarters at the same hour. He requested that all soldiers in the camp fall in to line and march to the sham battle at 2 o'clock this afternoon and thanked the comrades for the great interest taken in the proceedings of the reunion, and the commendable spirit manifested throughout. The camp-fire broke up rather early, that everybody might be able to witness the exhi-bition by the Capital City Flambeau club. Soon an immense multitude had gathered at the parade ground, and they all witnessed a most magnificent pyrotechnic display. They kept the air in a continuous and brilliant blaze of rockets and Roman candles while going through their evolutions. In the unearthly light of colored fires, with the sky flied with fire and smoke, the members of the club appeared like veritable spectres, and the seene will long be remembered by all who

At 2:20 this afternoon, while the grand stand was crowded with spectators to witness the sham battle, almost without warning the structure collapsed and fell under the immense weight, toppling towards the river, pitching endwise and carrying the 2,000 or ,000 spectators down under the wreck of the broken timbers in a struggling and shricking mass. SUDDEN DEATH.

Secretary Folger Breathes His Last at Geneva, New York.

Secretary Folger died at Geneva, New York, at 4:55 on the 4th, The only persons present were Mrs. Hart, his deceased wife's sister, Dr. Knapp and law associates, his family physician, Dr. A, B. Smith, and his colored servant James. Dr. Foster, who had been present two or three times as consulting physician, arrived on the 4:45 train, and was conveyed to the Folger mansion by Dr. Smith. Mrs. Ernst, the secretary's sister, arrived by the same train. After the three last named entered, the dying man gasped twice or thrice, and all was over. Secretary Folger's two daughters are in the Adirondacks. The elder is in very feeble health. His son, Captain Charles V. Folger, is at Alexandria, Virginia. All were written to come to Geneva, the telegraph not being earlier resorted to, as so sud-den a termination of their father's malady was not apprehended. The secretary returned for the last time to Geneva, Wednesday evening, the 20th ultimo.

He called his family physician the next morning, who gives the following diagnosis of the case. Great feebleness of he heart's action, congestion of the middle lobe of the right lung, capillary congestion of the bronchial tubes, tor-por of the liver, albuminous discharge of urine, por of the liver, albuminous discharge of urine, showing disease of the kidneys. The doctor was informed the secretary had had hemorrhage of the lungs three times of late before his return. The first was while out yatching with friends at New York, on which occasion he discharged about a pint of blood. Secretary Folger rode out daily until and including the 20th ult., since which time he kept his room, but did not wholly abandon work. He conbut did not wholly abandon work. He con-tinued to answer important letters and telegrams up to the 3d and seemed reluctant to give up, yet he was by no means unconscious of his critical condition; he entrusted to his personal friend, Captain Lewis, the final messages to his family and other directions of a confidential nature. Within a few moments after the secretary expired telegrams announcing the sad event were dispatched to President Arthur at Newport, Assistant Secretary Coon, Frank Sperry, Folger's private secretary, Hon. Thomas C. Alton, assistant reasurer at New York, and Judge Andrews, of Syracuse.

General gloom pervades the people of Geneva over the sudden removal of a beloved ownsman, men of all parties and of all conditions of life alike joining in the expressions of sorrow. The first emblems of mourning displayed were above the entrance to the quarters of the Thirty-fourth separate company of "Folger's corps," National guards of the state of New York, at the Geneva naional bank, and upon the large Cleveland and Hendricks banner suspended across Seneca street. The secretary will be int-red in Geneva by the side of his wife, who died seven

President Arthur received a telegram announcing the death of Secretary Folger at 5 o'clock, and was greatly affected by the news. He will attend the funeral, and hopes to be able to attend that of Senator Anthony also. He has telegraphed his condolences to the father of Secretary Folger, and ordered the flags on government buildings and vessels in this vicinity and at Fort Adams to be placed at half-mast until after the funeral. The resident had intended giving a dinner to the English admiral Saturday, but that is now jured.

the associated press dispatch from Geneva. Upon its being shown to Assistant Secretary Coon, who is the acting secretary, he immediately notified the chiefs of bureaus in the treasury department, and invited them to meet at his office in the evening. As the news of the death of the secretary spread about it was received with general expressions of regret. The officials of the treasury department especially were shocked by the suddenness of the event. The generally expressed opinions of these officers was that Mr. Folger's death was due to overwork. "He sought to super-vise all the details of the service instead of leaving merely routine work to his subordinates," said one prominent official, and all others who were spoken with on the subject ascribed the secretary's illness and death to the same cause, Treasurer Wyman said that for some time before Folger left the department he had been complaining of pain in the region of the heart and difficulty in breathing. Watchmen and other employes of the department on duty to-night, as well as minor officials, who heard of the news, expressed their sorrow and spoke feelingly of Folger's uniform kindness to them.

Assistant Secretary Coon said that he had received several letters recently from Secretary Folger in which the latter wrote rather pondently. In one he alluded to the burden of work in the department. The secretary said that while he was about useless, still he would pack his trunk and return to duty if he Coon) felt that too much responsibility was laid upon him. In another he remarked that he was in a miserable plight, while a third letter was closed abruptly with the remark that he had set out to write at length, but felt too work and listless. Other letters since re-ceived were dictated to an amanuensis, and while containing clear directions concerning important departmental matters also conthat the secretary was a very sick man and capable of only the smallest physical and mental exertion. In one letter Acting Secretary Coon was advised to send a cable message to Assistant Secretary French, asking him to return immediately. Judge French was then on his way to Liverpool. In regard to the question of filling the vacancy by a temporary appointment, Mr. Coon submitted the question to the attorney general on the death recently of Sixth Auditor Ela. The attorney general gave his opinion that a va-cancy occurring by the death of a head of a bureau must be filled on the expiration of ten days, either by temporary designation or a permanent appointment, and that such tem-porary designation, if made, could be only for ten days. It would follow, therefore, that a vacancy in the treasury may be temporarily filled by an appointment for ten days from the 16th inst., and must be permanently filled not later than the 28th inst., Sundays not being

A Bright Young Girl of Iowa Blows Her Brains Out.

Mabel Griffiths, the 15-year-old daughter of Hon. John X. Griffiths, of Page county, Iowa, suicided at her father's house in Shenandoah last Sunday. Mabel attended the high school at Shenandoah for several years. She was ahead of her classmates in all her studies, and in her ambition extremely desirous of going to the normal seminary, where she could take a higher course. All through the Letter.

New York dispatch: Coroner Robinson, of Long Island City, has received a letter from Miss Dorg Buck, of Lincoln, Neb., sister of School for a prother year. Sunday members and mother thinking it would be best for her to continue at the high would be best for her to continue at the high school for another year. Sunday morning Mabel forced the matter to a settlement, as school was to open the next day, and she wanted to know the final decision. After a little talk Mr. Griffiths told her that she must attend the high school for a while Metal. little talk Mr. Griffiths told her that she must attend the high school for a while. Mabel made bitter objections to this, and defiantly said she "would die first." The family paid no attention to this threat, and went to church. On returning, just as they were entering the front gate, the girl shot herself in the head, the ball going entirely through the skull and ki ling her instantly. None of the family heard the report, and the terrible tragedy was not known until Mabel's younger tragedy was not known until Mabel's younger sister entered the room and found her sister entered the room and found her stretched on the floor. Mr. Griffith was called, and thinking Mabel had fainted he picked her up, when the awful fact of suicide was appar-
