THE POWER OF ELECTION SHOUTS. "There have been an average of 5,000 persons standing in these crowds since the election excitement began..."

THE COLORADO POOL. A Meeting of the Colorado and Utah pool was held at Denver. All the roads were fully represented.

"They have shouted on an average once every minute and expended a foot pound of force at every shout." That was more obtrusive, and the reporter agreed to it.

"This being conceded, we come to what that force would do if applied. It would, in the first place, I find, raise 1,440,000 tons to the top of the monument, or rather to the top of the vertical shaft. Then, it would move a train of cars from Washington to San Francisco, containing—let's see, how many men and how much freight."

THE NATURAL ORATOR. "The orator is born, not made," say certain critics. The assertion is contradicted by so many exceptions that it cannot be received as a general rule.

CHICAGO, November 20.—The receipts of wheat and corn were large here, and at other points. Wheat opened lower on the report of weaker markets east, and sold down about 1/2c.

ANECDOTES OF SNUFF-TAKERS. Talleyrand once said that snuff-taking was indispensable to diplomats and politicians. When suddenly pressed to answer some awkward question they could gain time for thought by indulging in a pinch of snuff.

THE NORTHWESTERN LUMBERMAN mentions an experiment which may have important results for lumbermen and grist-millers. Sawdust and bran compressed at little cost into a space which will much reduce the cost of their transportation.
