Army in Baltimore. Paltimore American.

The Salvation Army, in their new barracks at Gilmer and Baltimore streets, yesterday, had a jubilee all day. The bright weather brought out many interested from motives of curiosity only, and others who desired to testify to the practical workings of Christianity in their own lives. An old-fashioned experience meeting was held in the afternoon. The rays from the declining sun streamed through the side windows, on the inside of which were tacked strips of cheap calico in all colors, except black. It was a very unsuccessul attempt at reproducing the gorgeousness of pure sunlight through imported stained glass. When the sun sank behind the houses and withdrew its rays, the gloomy aspect inside was relieved only by small clusters of gas jets about the pulpit. Although light was scant there was no lack of sound. In the pulpit were a stout man with a close-fitting red jacket, the top of which seemed unrelieved by shirt collar; a tall, angular woman in a red jersey, a buxom colored woman in a dark dress, trimmed with two rows of pearl buttons; a very slim white woman, a beardless boy, two elderly men and a ten-year-old child. All these, excepting the child and the two men, were singing at the top of their voices, "Salvation's Free," "I'm so Glad Jesus Loves Me," etc., and swinging their hands like the chorus in Pinafore in "Softly on Tiptoe Steating." The stout man was the leader. He was very hoarse, but managed now and then to be heard. The deep baritone voices of the noisy young men in the rear of the house sang half a line behind the leaders, but contributed to the volume of the sound, if not to the melody. All gave their experiences, the regular officers of the army first. The angular woman in the red jersey, after saying, in a strong foreign accent, that she was very happy, took a seat beside one of the elderly men and put her arm over the bench behind him. The leader gave his testimony, but with a most reckless disregard for the letter "h" wherever he crossed it. Frequent exclamations of "glory!" "hallelujah!" etc., encouraged the speakers, and a 3-year-old child drummed loudly in applause on a bench with its feet that its mother had to threaten mild personal violence. All the experiences were most satisfactory. Some gave long reviews of lives once almost wasted, but happily reformed at critical periods. At the end of the service the stout man could hardly be heard, but he summoned all his vocal powers and announced hoarsely: "We'll have a service to-night at 8 o'clock, and take up a collection at the door, so as not to interrupt the exercises. We mean to break the devil all to pieces."

What Do the Druggists Say?

They know what the people call for, and they hear what their patrons say as to whether the medicines they buy work well or not. Martell & Johnson, Rush City, Minn., say, "Brown's Iron Bitters gives entire satisfaction to our customers." Klinkhammer & Co., Jordan, Minn., say, "We sell more Brown's Iron Bitters than all other bitters combined." L. E Hackley & Son, Winona, Minn., says, "All our customers speak highly of Brown's Iron Bitters." A. C. Whitman, Jackson, Minn., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters is giving good satisfaction to purchasers." These are only a few. We have hundreds more just as good.

Hartford Courant. In the election of 1792, George Clinton was the candidate or one side and John Jay on the other. The returns showed a majority of about 300 for Mr. Jay, but in the counties of Clinton, Otsego and Tioga technical errors were discovered in the returns which threw out Mr. Jay by 108 adverse majority. The counties of Clinton and Tiogo offset each other, and the result was due to the manner of dealing with the Otsege county returns. The law required that the returns from each county. after being delivered to the sheriff should by him be delivered to the state canvassing committee. . A man named Smith had been sheriff of Otsego county, and, when his term ran out, had been reappointed. He declined the second term and his successor was named, but did not receive his commission until after the election. Smith therefore received the ballots and sent them to Albany. The majority of the canvassing committee being Clinton's partisans, decided that Smith was not the legal sheriff at the time of the election, and threw out the Otsego returns altogether, thus changing Jay's majority of 300 to 100 for Clinton. Notwithstanding the great political excitement, Clinton was duly inaugurated and served out his term.

This precedent, ninety-two years ago, shows that in the "good old times" partisanship was as violent and unreason able as it is now. It also shows that, in obedience to the legally constitutedauthorities, the people acquiesced in the declared result, although a majority of them knew that they had been cheated.

Laura, the bright little daughter of Mr. J. H. Pock. of Emporia, Kan., has for many years suffered from hip joint disease, which had resulted in shortening to a great extent the limb. A month or two ago her mother placed her under the care of the surgeons, Drs. Dickerson & Stark, of the Kansas Cit, Surgical lustitute. Since then her limb has much improved.
