OUR EXPOSITION LETTER.

The New Year came in quietly in this section. Only a few families received callers, and the small boy with the tin horn and firecracker was conspicuously absent; though there was enough of the latter to start the fire that burnt out one block of buildings in the city, at a loss of over $150,000, Thursday night.

After a continuance of rain and warm weather for two weeks, the weather suddenly changed about midnight of 1884 and 1885, and the first of January came in cool and brisk, forcibly reminding one of overcoats, cloaks, flannel and fires.

Several Commissioners to the Exposition went home to spend the holidays.
Among them were Ex-Gov. Furnas of Nebraska; A. P. Sharpstein of Washington Territory; A. C. Davis of Michigan; A. McKinzie of Dakota; F. J. Haynes of Yellowstone National Park art department. Gov. Goldsworthy of Belize, British Honduras, after a pleasant visit here, has returned home. C. P. Huntington, a leading railroad owner and manager, was in New Orleans, this week. Col. C. E. Rollins, general western agent for the Stettin-Lloyd Ocean Steamship Co., and editor of the Insurance Argus, Chicago, was visiting the Crescent City, accompanied by his family, during the past few days.

If the Great Eastern does not come to New Orleans, the old Liberty Bell of the Keystone State will. Arrangements have been made to let her ring south of Mason & Dixon's [now imaginary] line.
It will be escorted by three tried, true stalwart policemen. The public can view the century-treasured relic as it passes through over half a dozen states to reach Louisiana.

In the gallery of the government building, where the colored people have their exhibit, a most beautiful and artistic display is being given, which shows progress of this race is very encouraging. There is much originality of design and finish and great credit is due them for the interest they have taken in their departments. Hon. B. K. Bruce, Register of the U. S. Treasury, is the Commissioner of this branch of the Exposition, which evidences that he has well performed his mission.

One can stand for hours watching the handling of cotton from the field through its numerous manipulations: Picking, ginning, pressing, thence carding, spinning, weaving, ready for the sewing machine; or after spinning, the sewing, for sewing thread. Along the same row is a machine for making spools from little blocks of wood. It feeds and operates itself automatically turning out several thousand spools an hour.

Also the silk industry, which has grown so rapidly, wherein nearly every state and territory is more or less engaged, attracts undivided attention. The working of silk from the cocoon by reeling off the tiny fibres, and warping it for the looms, where handkerchiefs, ribbons and dress-goods are manufactured right before your eyes, seemingly with the least difficulty.

The fact is nearly every art known to human ingenuity can be practically seen in operation by attending the Exposition. It seems that nothing is left unrepresented, which proves this is indeed the World's Fair!

Every state and territory in the government is supplied with a register and all visitors are requested to sign their name and residence, also where they are stopping in the city. Arkansas has the largest book, but Dakota gets ahead of it by having a double or duplicate copy.

The impression has gone abroad that visitors to the World's Exposition are charged exorbitant rates for board and rooms. While this no doubt has been the case in some instances, yet it is unnecessary. The writer called on Wolz & Moulton, 23 Carondelet street, who act as commissioners between the hotels, boarding house and "rooms to let" people, and was informed that the average price paid by visitors for room and board was less than two dollars per day.

For reliable and condensed information about New Orleans and the Exposition, visitors should secure and study well the Visitor's Guide, by Theo. Pohl-mann, of this city. It will save you many a mile of travel while here, giving a map of the city, street railways, illustrations of the Exposition buildings, and will answer almost any question which may arise. It costs 14 cents prepaid by mail.
