WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25, '85.

Washington is considerably crestfallen over the fact that she has neither room for the strangers who are to come here to take in the Monument dedication and the Inauguration, nor halls for the accommodation of the people who desire to hear the oration on the first occasion, or to trip the light fantastic toe on the second. The new Pension hall will furnish many a first class case of pneumonia unless the weather should prove remarkably mild, as it will be next to impossible to heat a huge brick building while it is in a half finished state. I see, by the way, that the new President is getting his hand, or rather his foot, in by attending a series of ball performances at Buffalo, though it is said that Grover can't dance for the peanuts. In fact, Mr. Arthur and Mr. Van Buren have been the only Presidents who possessed the faculty of going through the mazes of an ordinary quadrille. Grant took lessons in dancing at the White House, but for all that he never could dance.

An astute newspaper correspondent here mentions the name of Capt. John Ericson for Mr. Cleveland's Secretary of the Navy. This looks like putting young blood into the new administration, indeed. Captain Ericson is now eighty-one years old, but nevertheless probably as vigorous as many a Cabinet officer of modern days. I have always thought somehow that this country has never appreciated the great service that Capt. Ericson has performed for us, nor have we shown ourselves grateful to him for the personal sacrifice he made for us in building and fitting out that gallant little cheese-box that revolutionized the world's ideas of maritime warfare, when she knocked out the huge "Merrimac" in about the first round. Had the people had the opportunity on that March morning in 1862 they would have showered such honors on Ericson as no mortal had ever received, for he had demonstrated the fact that we were invincible against any foe upon the water with the Monitor, and the army of the West had shown itself abundantly able to take care of itself on land. Capt. Ericson has been at work in all these years since the war closed, in perfecting other maritime engines of destruction, the last of which is the "Destroyer" from which five hundred pounds of dynamite in one mass can be thrown under water with the most accurate aim, and with perfect safety to the vessel from which it is hurled. For coast defence it is as perfect a means as human ingenuity can devise, and would be irresistible against the attacks of the combined navies of Europe. There is no humbug about this, and because there is not it is not at all likely that Congress will look upon the scheme to aid Capt. Ericson in building his vessels, with any sort of complacency.

The prospect that Mr. Evarts will be the successor of Senator Lapham must be exhilarating to the average New Yorker. So far as the conserving of the interests of the Empire State is concerned, Mr. Lapham has been an absolute nonentity. In fact, since Mr. Conkling vanished so suddenly from the Senate Chamber four years ago, New York has been practically unrepresented in that body. I care not what Mr. Evarts' antecedents may have been as a lawyer, or as Mr. Hayes' Cabinet adviser, he has brains, and that is what the country stands in sore need of in her legislative councils.

AMERICANS abroad are apt to be very American. A Mr. Livingstone, who is spending the winter in Florence, drives out daily with three coaches always driven in line; the first, driven by himself, is drawn by a pair and six horses tandem; the second, driven by his son, with eight horses tandem; while the third, driven by a coachman, is drawn by four tandem or a double pair. The noble gentleman at first drove the whole twenty steeds together, but meeting with an accident, the city officials interfered and obliged Mr. Livingstone to separate them. The gentleman ought to drive asses, and thus have congenial companions.—Republican.

A CHICAGO justice of the peace has electrified the saloon circles of that city by fining heavily a barkeeper for bruising a tramp who went for the so-called free lunch without first paying for a drink. The modern Daniel decided that a free lunch is a free lunch, and that who so wills can partake.—Topics.

A MAN named Briston, living at Lime Lake, Canada, while drunk, struck his sick daughter with a chair, killing her. The girl's mother ran to the nearest neighbor's house. The night was bitterly cold and the mother died from exposure and excitement. No comments.
