MILLIONS IN SODA-WATER.

Fortunes Made in the Business, and Where the Most Extensive Trade Is Done.

With the near approach of summer the various soda-water factories in the city are busily engaged in preparing for the coming hot season, when wholesale manufacturer of soda-water and apparatus up-town to a reporter.

"Fifteen years ago it began to boom and since then has more than doubled. Each hamlet, village, and town in the far west, on the mountain slope, in the valley and amid the burning sands of the plain, all have their soda-water fountains and squirt the foaming beverage during the long summer months. Millions of dollars are spent and fortunes are made in the course of several summers. A man at Coney island last summer cleared over $20,000 alone on soda-water.

"How much marble do you use in your factory per annum?" "Last year we ground 3,374 tons of white marble into dust to generate carbonic acid gas. It cost $1.25 per barrel of 420 pounds. This marble is quarried at Pleasantville, N. Y. All same, husband." the year round we have a machine pounding it to fine dust, getting a large quantity ready for the summer rush. It is a popular fallacy that soda-water is made of sulphuric acid and marble dust, but the fact is they never come in contact with the beverage, Soda-water is simply pure water charged or saturated with carbonic acid gas.

"Why don't you use cheaper material than marble to generate carbonic acid gas?'

"It is cheaper to use when conveniently near than bicarbonate of soda. Bicarbonate of soda is utilized when marble can not be had. In England whiting is used extensively, and at one time it was universally used both here and there. This whiting is a carbonate of lime-fossil, and the fossil contains animalculæ, which often give the water a fishy taste. On that account we dropped it. So much soda-water is consumed every year, and so many scares have started about its being unhealthy from contact with copper and names for postoffices. other metals, that the chief aim now of manufacturers is to produce apparatus so lined with pure sheet blocktin containing no admixture of lead or other injurious metal, that absolutely no danger is apprehended. Last year the board of health passed an ordinance forbidding the use of fountains lined with brass, lead, copper, or other metal or metallic substance that will be affected by liquids, so that dangerous, unwholesome, or deleterious compounds are formed therein. The result of this ordinance has been beneficial, although many fountains had to be relined and overhauled."

"Do you expect to do a large business this summer?"

The present indications are that more soda-water will be used the coming season than ever before. Grand preparations at Conev island and all the watering places are going forward to receive thousands of pleasure-seekers, and as last season was somewhat broken by cold spells this one is expected to be fine and unbroken."

"Do you sell many fountains in the south?

"Yes, a great many. We have seven or eight men traveling in that section all the time, The women and children drink soda-water, and the men, as a rule, prefer something stronger. But the fountain is frequently made to pour forth good old rye instead of sirup of sarsaparilla. These, though, are used in the prohibition counties. But here in New York during the dead, hot, still summer days the great drinking of soda-water is done. The factory is kept running all the time, marble by the ton is ground to dust, ten thousand gallons of water is filtered and purified a day, and many hundred gallons of extracts and fruit flavors are prepared daily. This great rush lasts frequently four months without cessation, and often five. As Col. Sellers said, there are millions in it, if once started with the proper trim in the way of capital and energy."-New York Mail and Express.

The Chinese Infantry Soldier.

The economical habits of the Heathen Chinee are notorious, and they are well illustrated by a correspondent who, writing from Tien-Tsin, says: "The Chinese infantry soldier is paid once a month, when he receives 11 taels of silver. This sum, which is equal to about $4.75, is given to him in scrap bullion; and during the night preceding each pay-day the paymasters are busily engaged in weighing out silver and making it up into neat little packages for distribution. As soon as he has obtained his share, the soldier takes it to the nearest shopkeeper or money-changer, who, in return for it, hands him 3,500 copper eash, the aggregate weight of which is quite as much as he can conveniently earry. Out of this the soldier has to keep himself in food and clothing; and the pay can not, therefore, be called excessive. A Chinaman, however, lives almost exclusively upon rice, a month's supply of which costs less than 1,000 cash, and many a private not only supports a family upon the balance of his earnings, but puts by a few hundred eash every month."
