

RUSSIA IS INDIGNANT

FEELING AGAINST NEBOGATOFF IS RUNNING HIGH

Surrender is Unforgivable—People are Appalled by the Great Disaster—Believed More Than 10,000 Men Were Killed or Drowned.

Feeling in the admiralty at St. Petersburg against Rear Admiral Neboogatoff continues to run high, the majority of the naval authorities being deaf to the appeals of the few who insist that the admiral's action in surrendering his warships should not be condemned until the circumstances become fully known.

Nicholas I. meted out a terrible punishment to the officers and crew of the Raphael, ordering that all of them should be shot after their exchange, and directing that if the ship should ever be recaptured its infamous history should be blotted out by the total destruction of the vessel.

The Raphael, strange to say, was captured thirty-four years later at Sinope during the Crimean war, a son of the captain who surrendered having taken part in the battle, and to this son fell the task of executing the dead emperor's orders to destroy her.

All the censorship is now removed from the foreign dispatches, and the people are appalled at the horrible stories of slaughter on board the Russian ships.

The admiralty has not yet been able to estimate even approximately from the foreign advices the loss of men, but as the ships were overmanned the total will be greater than the ordinary complement of the vessels would indicate, and probably will exceed 10,000, if only about 4,000 were saved.

BIG FAIR IS OPENED.

Lewis and Clark Exposition Begins at Portland.

Amidst a scene of festivity and splendor never equaled in the Pacific northwest, with din and clamor of cheering thousands, accompanied by the booming of artillery, the chiming of bells and the blaring of bands, Portland, Ore., Thursday made her greatest bow to the world in the formal opening of the Lewis and Clark Centennial exposition. The event took place under conditions presaging complete success to this historical commemoration of the blazing of the trail to "old Oregon" by Capt. Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, who, commissioned by President Jefferson, explored the great Oregon country 120 years ago.

Thursday's celebration was participated in by the president of the United States and his personal representative, Charles W. Fairbanks, representatives of the state and of the house of representatives of the national congress, of the army and the navy, together with the governors and staffs of the states of California, Idaho, Washington and Oregon and multitudes of people from far and near.

The arrangements for the ceremony were complete. In the southwest corner of the east room, on a mahogany stand, was located an exquisitely mounted gold telegraph key. It was the instrument which was used by President P. V. DeGraw, now fourth assistant postmaster general, in receiving the president's message at the opening of the Louisiana Purchase exposition on April 30, 1804, and presented to Mr. DeGraw at that time. On the roof of the White House was stationed a first class sergeant of the signal corps of the army, who, at the sounding of an electric gong at his side, was under instructions to drop a flag which was to be the signal for the battery located on the White House lot, south of the White House, to fire a national salute of twenty-one guns.

At the conclusion of a brief address the president said: "I now open the Lewis and Clark exposition," leaning forward at the same instant and pressing the gold key which sounded the chimes and started the machinery three thousand miles away. Practically instantly the first gun of the national salute was fired on the White House lot by the Third field battery, U. S. A.

TRY TO KILL A KING.

Anarchists of Paris Try to Annihilate Spain's Young Ruler.

A Paris special says: As the king of Spain, accompanied by President Loubet, drove away from a gala performance of the opera after midnight Wednesday, an anarchist threw a bomb in the direction of the royal carriage. The projectile struck a soldier belonging to the cuirassier escort on the shoulder, and then fell to the ground and exploded without injuring his majesty or the president, who continued their drive to the Palais d'Orsay.

Several soldiers of the escort were thrown from their horses and injured, while fragments of the bomb struck a number of persons in the crowd.

King Alfonso and President Loubet had been cheered along the entire route to the opera by enthusiastic crowds, the young monarch having completely gained the hearts of Parisians since his arrival. The gala performance comprised "Samson and Delilah" and "Maladetta."

The performance went without a hitch. Another ovation came at the close of the performance.

The king and president were escorted to their carriage and took seats side by side in the vehicle, which started off, surrounded by several squadrons of cuirassiers, towards the Avenue d'Orsay.

The procession arrived at the end of the Avenue d'Orsay, and crossed the Place Theater Francis, where were assembled at least 1,500 persons in the Rue de Rohan. There, just a few yards before reaching the Rue Rivoli, a man sprang forward with his arms raised in the air, and before the cordon of police could prevent him, without uttering a word, he threw a projectile in the direction of the royal carriage. The police immediately rushed toward him. At that moment a deafening explosion occurred.

Cries from the crowd were heard, and then followed a scene of intense excitement. The crowd began surging to and fro.

Soldiers were seen to fall, but as the flash from the bomb died out it was observed that the king and the president had not been struck and their carriage proceeded on its way.

The bomb had been thrown with too great force, and passed over the royal carriage and struck the shoulder of a cuirassier and fell to the ground, where it exploded, fragments striking the horses, causing them to bolt and throw their riders.

The force of the explosion was terrific and caused a derangement of the electric lights, which were all extinguished.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Fraternalists Join for Fight—Beneficiary Societies Will Co-Operate and Resist Order for Taxing Securities—Courts May Decide.

Attorneys for the Woodmen of the World, Woodmen Circle, Royal Highlanders, Ancient Order of United Workmen and a number of other important fraternal beneficiary organizations incorporated in Nebraska, have decided to co-operate to resist the action of the state board of equalization in attempting to assess all moneys, credits and personal property as such associations.

The fraternalists will not appeal to the state board again, believing this body in instructing county assessors to list all such property has gone too far to recede becomingly. Instead, objection will be raised before the various county boards of equalization where the personal property is assessed. In case the county boards rule against the fraternalists, then the cases will be appealed to the district court and to the supreme court, if necessary. The purely fraternal organizations, without insurance features, are to be assessed upon realia, lodge furniture and fixtures and such small amounts as may be in the hands of the local treasurers, thus forming another class affected by the ruling, which will have to look out for itself.

As these are incorporated in other states, together with some of the beneficiary associations, no great quantity of money can be reached by Nebraska assessors, with the possible exception of the Elks in Omaha, who have about $10,000 in a fund in the hands of the trustees. With regard to taxing real estate the fraternalists have no dispute and are willing to pay for lands and office buildings, except those rooms actually used by the orders.

"Nebraska is the first state that has attempted to tax fraternal beneficiary orders," said A. H. Burnett, one of the attorneys for the Woodmen of the World, "Ohio, Missouri and Indiana have laws expressly exempting such property. We propose to test the ruling of the state board and determine whether or not, under the law, taxing authorities have a right to assess our property."

Secretary Dobson, of the state board of irrigation, who has joint charge with the government officials of the expenditure of the $5,000 drainage and irrigation experimentation fund, said Saturday that work is now in progress at Lexington and Imperial. At the former place efforts are being made to devise some practical method of underground drainage which will remove the alkali from the surface soil. Such experiments have been successful in Utah, and it is hoped to reclaim about 40,000 acres of fertile Platte valley land in Dawson County which has become impregnated with alkali through tillage. The success of the plans now under consideration is expected to effect the reclamation of much other land which is now unproductive because of the presence of the chemical in the surface soil. At Imperial experiments are being conducted to determine the feasibility of irrigation through the use of a pumping plant. An effort will also be made to develop the dry farming method of soil culture. The state appropriation will not be available until July 1, but the government is already at work. The legislature provided the $5,000 on the condition that the government make a similar allowance.

Auditor Searle Saturday admitted that he had issued an order revoking the certificate of Van B. Lacy, of Omaha, state agent for the Mutual Reserve Insurance Company, of New York, which was recently granted a license after the application had once been rejected. Mr. Searle stated that the reports that the action had been taken because the agent had circulated reports reflecting on the administration of the department were true. The agent is alleged to have said when the company's first application was turned down that it could buy its way into the state. A conversation of that character is given in an affidavit filed with the auditor by a man who is alleged to have heard it.

Lincoln physicians are waging a crusade against the spitting nuisance, with the result that the city council will shortly be asked to amend the ordinances so as to make it a misdemeanor to spit on the stairways and sidewalks. In the latter the ordinance has been enforced with considerable strictness, and the medical men claim now that it will be possible to enforce a similar regulation as to the streets.

Friday W. D. Lincoln, superintendent of the Union Pacific car service, applied before the state board of equalization at Lincoln to testify to the use of the terminals of that road by various leasing lines. He furnished the board with data on which to base its assessment of the Great Western, Milwaukee, Wabash and Illinois Central. This action will be in accordance with the opinion of the attorney general that these foreign lines having trackage and terminal rights are subject to taxation in Nebraska.

Treasurer Mortenson, Secretary of State Galusha and Gov. Mickey are said to favor a slight reduction in the assessment of some of the power branch lines. To offset this an increase will be made in the Great Northern from $4,000 to $8,500 a mile, while the Union Pacific assessment will also be raised if the plans now contemplated are carried out. The increase in the Harriman road is favored because of the increase in the net earnings and the improved quotations for the stock.

State officials who returned from Peru bring favorable reports of the new chapel building which was dedicated Wednesday with elaborate ceremonies. They were given souvenir buttons bearing a picture of the new building. Gov. Mickey was particularly pleased with the reception accorded him.
