The sad news of the death of Will Brown at his home at Stillwater, Okla., reaches us this week. Mr. Brown came up here on a visit several weeks ago, and while here became sick and started for his home. Arriving at Stillwater, Okla., he was too ill to go out to his home and for two days remained in the hotel. Two weeks later he died of typhoid fever. He was a brother of Mrs. H. McCrea, Mrs. John Eaton, Mrs. George, Mrs. Thomas Hudson and Henry and H. K. Brown who are well known in Valentine and vicinity.

Gentry Bros. show brought a large crowd of people to town and though the show train was delayed several hours by the wreck that morning near Eli, the parade was not long in getting started. The sound of the magnificent brass band and the caliope assembled the people around the line of parade. The large tent was well crowded and probably 2000 people attended in the afternoon. There was no performance at night on account of the rain. It was a good clean show, well worth going to see. The performing ponies were well trained; the dogs and monkeys pleased everybody. The elephants' concert and performance was equal to Hagenback's menagerie. There were no fakirs nor side shows to take your money. The general management was of a moral nature and the performance was good.

SCHOOL NOTES.

New pupils are entering daily.

Laura Overman, of Crookston, entered the 10th grade Monday.

Stella Spratt and Alice Hale were visitors of the high school last week. Stella expects soon to go to her school at McCann, and Alice to depart to her home in Washington, D. C.

In addition to the non-resident pupils mentioned last week we have Effie Hutchison of Penbrook, Maude Rowley of Kennedy, Lee Stillwell of Simeon, and Laura Overman of Crookston.

School was dismissed Friday at noon on account of Gentry Bros. circus. Professor excitedly told Herbert to ring the bell, so that the pupils might have the opportunity of seeing the parade.

Mr. Lockwood, principal of the Merriman schools, visited the high school-one-day last week. His principal purpose was to get the plan of work carried on here as the work of the Merriman schools is about the same as the work here.

Our 8th grade was so much smaller than was expected this year, and the 7th grade so much larger that it has been thought best to divide the 7th grade this year and put one division of it in the grammar room. This will leave the 8th grade all in one class, hence no more non-resident pupils can be admitted to the 8th grade this year.

Lee Stillwell came very nearly missing his place in the 8th grade by coming one week late. Had he not been promised a place before coming he would not have been admitted. The school board made a ruling two years ago that whenever the number of pupils in a class reached twenty-five no more non-residents should be admitted. The 8th grade now has twenty-seven pupils. Whenever a teacher has to hear more than twenty-five pupils recite in thirty minutes, some must be neglected.

The question of selecting books for the school library is now agitating the minds of the teachers. As we have often remarked the task of selecting really good books for a school library is vastly more difficult than the task of securing the money with which to purchase them. Each teacher on the first floor is expected to select ten dollars worth of such books as they are willing to be responsible for being placed in the hands of small children. We want that the books shall not be merely harmless, but be good—good for something. Each teacher on the upper floor is expected to select six books, interesting, instructive and elevating, suitable for young people from 12 to 20 years of age. When the secretary of the Nebraska State Library Association visited Valentine she said she believed that for the size of the town, Valentine had the best selected school library in the state. We would like to keep up to the standard. We now have nearly $100 left over from our entertainments last year and there is a probability that other funds may be turned into this channel.
