HORSE SHOEING A SPECIALTY.

Violet

does just one thing—but does that right. It makes the skin like velvet and keeps it so. It is soothing and healing to the skin, cures chaps and roughness, does it quickly and without the possibility of harm. It is entirely absorbed and does not leave the skin sticky or greasy. Only leaves the faint, delicate odor of violets. Has all the merits of other good anti-chap preparations, and some special merits of its own. . . .

Wedding Bells at Wood Lake

William Findley Parker and Miss Minnie Mae Parker United in Marriage February 7, 1906.

Guests to the number of 145 gathered early at the church to witness the marriage of William Findley Parker to Miss Minnie Mae Bailey, but the time passed pleasantly in viewing the decorations. The pulpit had been removed to the back of the church, giving a much better effect. The chandeliers were beautifully draped in green and white and four large ropes of green and white festooning formed the letter X, from the center of which hung a large white ball under which the bridal party stood. The floor was strewn with handsome rugs. The only decoration at the back being the altar draped with a beautiful piece of battenburg and a mammoth bouquet of ferns and pink and white carnations. From the doors to the foot of the altar was an arbor of quivering hearts of pink and white, while suspended at the end was a large pink and white heart pierced by cupid's dart.

At eight o'clock sharp, to the strains of a wedding march rendered by Miss Mary Cumbow, the Joors were thrown open by the ushers, John E. West and Kent McNamee, then slowly down the carpeted aisle marched two little girls bearing white ribbons. When they reached the end of the arbor they stopped, apart, forming a wide aisle, the other two little ribbon girls remaining just inside the doors. Then came Rev. A. F. Cumbow, followed by Miss Lela Johnson bearing the ring on a silver tray; then the bride and groom, after them the maid of honor and the best man, the bridesmaid and groomsmen.

Silence reigned throughout the church during the marriage ceremony which was beautiful and very impressive. When the vows were taken the bridal party passed out of the church to the sweet strains of music and on to Honey's hall where a reception was tendered to all and congratulations received.

The bride looked charming in her gown of white silk chiffon, trimmed in dainty lace and insertion (made by the fashionable dress-maker, Miss McDill, from Iowa.) The bride was unadorned except a white rose in her hair, and carried a bouquet of white and pink brides roses—her sweet loveliness needed no ornaments.

The groom wore the conventional suit of black and had a lapel bouquet of pink rosebuds.

The maid of honor, Miss Maude Bailey, and the bridesmaid, Miss K. Leola West, wore gowns of white silk mull trimmed in ribbon and lace.

The best man, Dan Parker, and the groomsmen, Joe Bailey, each wore black with buttonhole bouquets pink and white carnations.

Lela Johnson, the ring bearer, wore sheer white with white shoes and stockings, her golden hair falling over her shoulders made her look indeed like a little "fairy" as she was called.

The four little white ribbon girls were Charlotte Hanna, Mary Welker, Gladys Lyons and Gladys Newberg and were dressed in white and looked very sweet.

The decorations at the hall were fine, the colors being pink and white. Cut flowers were placed at intervals on the five large tables which were arranged in the form of the letter H, and loaded as they were with the wedding feast presented a beautiful and tempting appearance.

Rev. Cumbow asked the blessing, while the 75 at the first tables remained standing. During the progress of the supper Hon. David Hanna was called on to "toast" the newly married couple. He prefaced his remarks by a few apt stories, told in his inimitable way, and created much merriment among the guests. Continuing in a more serious vein he spoke of the lives of those just joined in wedlock, of Mr. Parker and the friends he had made during his three years residence here, of his wife who had spent most of the years of her life among us, and while everyone wished them happiness in their new life, he spoke for all present when he mentioned the deep regret felt at parting with these young people so dearly loved and who will be sorely missed when they leave us to go to their new home in Wyoming. Mr. Hanna took his seat amidst a storm of applause.

The six young ladies who acted as waitresses were dressed in white and many complimentary remarks were made concerning them. They were: Edna Cunningham, Dora Tinkham, Ruth Kennicott, Agnes Schluter, Blanch Shepherd and Vivian Young.

After supper all went "merry as a wedding bell" and a rousing good time seemed to be in the air. Despite the large number present, it was a most congenial gathering and everyone seemed happy and appreciative of all that had been done to make the affair one long to be remembered. The gifts filled a large table at one end of the hall and many were rare and costly. All of them bespoke the love and esteem in which the recipients are held by their many friends. On the table were several telegrams of congratulations from relatives and friends who were unable to be here.

Each one was asked to register in a handsome book presented by Rev. Cumbow for this occasion.

Among those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Lou Peifer and Mrs. Coryelle of Johnstown, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Drews of Chadron, Miss Clara Danham of Valentine and Mrs. Oliver of Longpine. A. GUEST.
