Thief Stole Story.

Heard Sermon Advising Study of the Bible by Victim.

Washington, May 15.—A burglar has been operating here, who evidently seeks to improve his manners and morals as he makes progress in the art of housebreaking.

Rev. W. E. Porter, who lives in this city, and watches over a little flock at Hillsdale, Md., has recently been sermonizing his congregation on the necessity of reading the Bible and following its precepts.

On investigating he found the library window open and immediately reported the matter to the police.

The authorities will keep an eye on the second-hand book stores, for they are not of the opinion that the thief stole the books to bring about an improvement, either in his morals or manners.

Crowning Social Event of Children's Life Caused Heart Failure.

Pittsburg, May 15.—When Robert Jenkins, sr., the oldest coal operator in the Pittsburg district, retired from active business ten years ago with a fortune of several million dollars, he encouraged his son, Robert Jenkins, jr., and his daughters, the Misses Jennie and Marion Jenkins, to make their way into the innermost circles of Pittsburg's ultra-fashionable society.

With the crowning event of his children's social career scheduled for next Wednesday, the old man dropped dead from excitement over the affair.

The younger members of the Jenkins family had little trouble in getting into society, and up to four years ago entertained lavishly.

About three weeks ago the old man declared he was feeling fine, and that he would feel that he was in the way unless they gave some kind of a social function at their home.

He was 80 years old.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

What a lonesome time a setting hen must have!

Every man often says to himself: "No one works as hard as I do."

Winter is also making a mess of it while lingering in the lap of spring.

If an airy woman could hear what is said about her, behind her back, it would take some of the airiness out of her.
