

A NORFOLK CITY PARK

PROPOSITION TO HOLD SPECIAL ELECTION TO VOTE BONDS.

PURCHASE THE DRIVING PARK

City Council Will Take Action on the Proposition at the Next Meeting.

Held February 6—Plan Contemplates a Tract of Twenty-five Acres.

The next meeting of the city council will take up a proposition to call a special city election for the purpose of voting a $5,000 park bond issue.

The proposed park consists of a tract of twenty-five acres north of the city, the ground in question including the present driving park and running east to the Northfork river.

The land can be purchased for $200 an acre. Options have been secured for the entire twenty-five acres.

Burt Mapes brought the park question before the council. During the summer he took the matter up with the Commercial club. Meanwhile he has secured options from the eight or ten different owners of land in the park strip and has had a plot of the proposed park made by the city engineer.

The greater part of the land is held by the Queen City Improvement company with Ezekiel G. Stoddard and George H. Bishop as trustees. The options, which have been secured for the entire twenty-five acres, guarantees the sale of the land at $200 an acre for park purposes, provided that Norfolk votes $5,000 of park bonds within the year.

The park strip runs from Maple to Elm avenue and from Seventh street to the river. The driving park is included and members of the driving club have been anxious to have the city obtain control of the park.

Councilman Kauffman Thursday evening spoke in favor of the park proposition from this point of view. He said that there were improvements that were badly needed at the park but that those improvements would not be made by the driving club as long as it occupied the grounds only as a temporary renter.

An argument brought against the park site was the possibility of the river overflowing. It was claimed Thursday evening that a low dike would keep the river water from the park grounds.

The purchase of Pasewalk's grove was suggested as another possible park purchase for Norfolk.

A special election is desired for the park bond issue, it being feared that at the regular April election the proposition would be lost on account of the number of voters who would entirely ignore the bond issue in voting.

The cost of a special election would be about $100.

Chief Flynn arrived home Thursday from Lincoln and Fort Crook, having delivered the young Fort Robinson deserter to the officers of Fort Crook. Seven other army deserters were in the guard house, a court martial having been called for the coming week to hear the cases. Chief Flynn returned by way of Lincoln, stopping over for the Bryan banquet. W. E. Reed of Madison was also in attendance from this county. O'Neill was the best represented of the western towns at the banquet.

William Zastrow, who was very sick with pneumonia, is better.

Mrs. Frey has recovered from a recent operation for the removal of a tumor.

Wayne Democrat: Twenty dollar gold pieces will be received at this office whether they have the old motto on or not. I know that this is a good joke for I have seen it in every paper that I have read for the last three weeks, from the Chicago Tribune to the warhoop.

C. H. Reynolds was kept away from his office for several days owing to an attack of the grip.

Mr. Duncan, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia at the home of his son, John Duncan, east of the city, is improving.

C. J. Schoeder, who recently moved to Norfolk from a farm near Battle Creek, has purchased William Bree's residence on South Fourth street for $1,400. Mr. Schoeder is to go on the road with a moving picture show.

Pierce Leader: Miss Janie Hubble of this city left for Norfolk Sunday noon to accept a position in the Norfolk insane hospital. Miss Hubble held this position a few months ago or before she went to Idaho and visited her sister.

Pierce Call: Now since Norfolk caught the "put on the lid" epidemic Neligh is beginning to sit up and stir things too. The anti-saloon people have induced the council to allow the voters to say whether they want saloons at the spring election. Neligh has but two saloons and it is said liable to lose both if the voters get a whack at 'em.

Lincoln Star: The last issue of the Crawford Tribune had an excellent sketch of the career of Capt. Emmet Crawford, for whom the town was named. A great many people have the mistaken idea that Crawford was named for Capt. "Jack" Crawford, the poet scout. Capt. Emmet Crawford had a distinguished military career. His body was buried at Kearney, Neb., in 1886.

When Chief of Police John F. Flynn arrived home Thursday from Lincoln, where he attended the Bryan banquet, he found but one inmate in the county jail and that inmate his favorite bird dog "Rosebud." The chief was somewhat surprised to find Rosebud behind the bars but investigation showed that Rosebud had committed no greater offense than that of insisting on following Frank Flynn around while the latter was acting chief.

Lynch Journal: We see by The Norfolk News that at the annual election of officers G. R. Hodson was elected president of the Norfolk Pickle and Vinegar company and D. T. Hodson secretary of same and both are on the board of directors of the company. Norfolk people will find the Hodsons rustlers and good business men. We are especially pleased to see Dave coming to the front as we formed a very high opinion of his ability while he was with us here in the postoffice in Lynch.

Pierce Leader: A card received from Dr. G. F. Keiper yesterday requests us to change the address of his Leader from San Diego to Los Angeles. In part the doctor says: "We arrived here a few days ago and will spend the remainder of the winter here. Mrs. Keiper joins me in wishing the Leader force a happy New Year." The Leader accepts the kind and appreciative words and joins with Pierce people in wishing well wishes for the doctor and Mrs. Keiper the ensuing year.

Wayne Herald: Chandler Owen, nephew of the Owen Bros., was an over-Sunday visitor in Wayne. Mr. Owen is the son of H. E. Owen of Norfolk, who was nearly killed in a railroad wreck a year ago. He was in a hospital at Omaha for months and sent home to Norfolk to die, the Omaha surgeons practically giving up the case as they had sewed up his body two or three times and failed to keep him together. At Norfolk Dr. Tashjian took him in charge, cleaned him out, fed him up instead of starving him, and today no one would ever know the stalwart appearing young man had ever had the most necessary part of his anatomy literally torn wide open.

Yankton Press and Dakotan: The Gregory county-seat fight has come to a temporary halt, caused by the county commissioners declining to order an election on the petitions of the towns of Herick and Burke, both applicants for the county seat now located at Fairfax. Lawyer Orvis, of Yankton, represented Burke before the board, and raised the point that it would have to be determined by the court whether the county seat was permanently or only temporarily located at Fairfax, and until this question was settled, the matter of an election should be deferred for the reason that if it is only temporarily located then any town in the county may become a candidate without a petition, and the majority of voters could decide the question; but if it had been permanently located then only one town outside of Fairfax could contest for it after filing a petition, and it would require a two-thirds majority of the votes to remove it. The court will be asked for an early decision, and the aspiring county seat towns will continue the campaign to secure signers to their respective petitions.

WAYNE SALOON FIGHT.

Would Remove Council Because They Refused to Revoke License.

Another controversial chapter in the Wayne saloon fight is indicated in a dispatch from Lincoln which says that Elmer E. Thomas, attorney for the Anti-Saloon league of Wayne, intends to file an application with Governor Sheldon for the removal of the city's council of Wayne. He will charge that the council refused to revoke the license of a saloonkeeper who was convicted of selling liquor to minors.

The saloonman appealed to the district court and his appeal was thrown out.

Within the next two weeks Norfolk's annexation petition will be filed by City Attorney M. C. Hazen in the district court at Madison. The petition will be taken up and passed upon by Judge Welch at the February term of the court.

City Engineer Salmon is working on a map that will give an accurate description of the territory that it has been voted to annex. This map and a description of the property in the annexed territory is nearly completed.

The city council Thursday evening declined to alter the annexation resolution adopted some weeks ago. Several motions made to drop certain pieces of property from the annexation proceedings were lost.

AFTER THE BACHELORS.

J. H. Sweet Starts the Campaign in Nebraska City.

J. H. Sweet, a prominent young business man of Nebraska City, has started a matrimonial crusade against the young bachelors of his town.

Sweet fired the first gun in his campaign last week, inviting eight of his young bachelor friends to his own home to illustrate the delights of real living. The bachelor party having been quite convincing Sweet is preparing to follow up his work with a campaign to run all through leap year.

Nebraska City is one of the worst bachelor-ridden towns in the state.

THE WAYNE SALOON WAR.

Coming Election Promises to be Most Bitter.

Wayne, Neb., Jan. 20.—After a respite of a few months, the contest between the saloon and anti-saloon forces broke out again this week and excitement is running high.

At the regular meeting of the city council, the anti-saloon league presented a petition asking that the liquor license of Peter Thompson be revoked. During the discussion that followed, Councilmen Duerig and Chace became involved in a heated argument which threatened a "rough house." By a vote of 3 to 2, the petition was laid on the table for further investigation.

The same evening County Attorney Wilbur and Attorney Berry differed, the lie was passed, and only the interference of others prevented a "mill" with the technicalities left out.

A demand has been made upon the city clerk for a transcript of all the evidence in the saloon cases. This will be used if needed for the purpose of bringing out proceedings against the city council for alleged negligence of duty in not revoking the liquor license of Peter Thompson, who has been convicted of the violation of the liquor law.

This year's election promises to be the most bitter and exciting in the history of the town.

for her efficiency and ability. There has been much favorable comment concerning her candidacy, but this week she put a quietus on the matter in a card to the paper, thanking the editor for his kindly mention but positively declining to allow her name to be considered in connection with the nomination. Miss Johnston has many friends here who believe that she is both capable for that high office and worthy of it. She is now serving her third term here as county superintendent, the last two times having been elected without opposition. There is certainly no county superintendent in the state who applies herself more closely to her work than Miss Johnston.

They tell us that we are to have electric lights in the near future. There is to be a dam across the Long Pine creek near the town of Long Pine and from that power is to be generated sufficient to light both towns. The power will be brought to Alasworth by means of a cable.

The warm weather of the past week brought out the flies and in some places they were plentiful enough to be annoying. However, the cold snap that came on Tuesday night put them all to sleep.

Chet Bowen and wife, who have spent two months here visiting with friends and relatives, have gone back to their home in Green River, Utah.

Mrs. D. L. Jovenat has returned to her home in Lincoln after a month's visit with her parents, J. M. Hanna and wife.

Magnus Anderson, a prominent farmer from the vicinity of Verdel, Boyd county, has bought the John Crane ranch near Raven, this county, and will soon become a Brown county citizen.

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY

CHRIS LENSER CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTING TO PASS ONE.

NORTHWESTERN PAY CHECK

Has Been Working at the Junction as Baggage Master, and the Arrest Came at the Instance of the Northwestern Railroad Company.

Chris Lenser, a Norfolk boy twenty-one years old, has been arrested for attempting to pass a forged Northwestern pay check. Young Lenser has been working at the Northwestern Junction depot as baggage master and his arrest came at the instance of the railroad company.

Lenser is charged with having attempted to pass a Northwestern pay check with a forged endorsement. The check was for $9.55. The young man has admitted that he attempted to pass the check, and also that he knew that the check carried a forged endorsement. The penalty for the offense is from one to twenty years in the penitentiary, the same penalty that is attached to forgery.

The check referred to in the complaint filed in the court of Justice Lambert is one of five pay checks issued to Garfield Woodbury, a Northwestern fireman. Lenser is not charged with having stolen the checks or with having forged Woodbury's signature. He is accused of having attempted to pass one of the checks knowing that it had been forged. The other four checks for Fireman Woodbury, which were reported stolen from the railroad mail, were in denominations of $20 each. One of these forged checks was passed at the Star Clothing store and one at the Koehn saloon.

Young Lenser was arrested by Constable Bilger after the complaint against him had been filed by Samuel R. Gayton, a railroad detective.

Lenser is a young fellow of rather prepossessing appearance. He has worked for the Northwestern for several months. Before taking a place with the railroad he worked for the express company, driving a wagon. He was raised in this vicinity.

By agreement the young man's preliminary hearing has been set for January 29. Judge Powers was engaged as attorney by relatives of young Lenser. The bond for his release from jail was placed at $500. Arrangements were made Friday afternoon by the boy's family to have the bond given.

Lenser's bond for $500 was given during the afternoon. Chris F. Lenser, a grandfather, F. R. Lenser, an uncle, and W. A. Emery signed as sureties for the boy's appearance at the preliminary trial. Lenser comes of a family which has always had a good reputation in Norfolk.

ONE RIB TO THE BAD.

Norfolk's Colored Pugilist Comes Home With a Broken One.

W. M. Queener, Norfolk's colored pugilist, is back in Norfolk one rib to the bad. Queener's visit is to be only a short stay in the city before he goes to Omaha to join his manager, C. D. Fletcher of Helville, Wyo.

Queener drew his bum rib in the sixth round of a fight at Duluth, Minn. Roy Mitchell of Chicago was the lad whose punch mixed disastrously with Queener's rib. But Mitchell was knocked out in the tenth round.

Before going to Duluth Queener fought another finish fight at Huron, S. D., handing Jim Jackson the knock-out in the eighth round.

Queener is still in the ring, a little thing like a fractured rib interposing no serious obstacle to the swing of Queener's mits.

"The rib's alright," said Queener, "unless the other pug knows about it. I watch it anyway."

"Well Queener," remarked a friend, "that will be alright for we won't tell which rib is cracked."

"Of course you won't," said Queener, "for you don't know."

Queener fights under the name of "Rabbi." He enters the ring at 149 pounds. Queener is well known over north Nebraska not only for his fighting record but for his baseball accomplishments, having played with Norfolk, Neligh and several other north state teams last summer.

A REAL WEDDING.

One of the Chorus Girls in the District Leader Married at Fremont.

Fremont, Neb., Jan. 18.—Dolly Castle, one of the chorus girls in "The District Leader" theatrical company, took the part of a bride in a real wedding in Fremont. In the presence of some chorus girl friends Dolly was married by County Judge Robert Stinson to Clay C. Pratt, 27 years old, of Omaha. From Dolly's cool behavior the wedding might have been an every day occurrence.

Pratt, it is said, has been following the troupe from town to town on its trip through Nebraska. He did not take his bride out of the cast, but allowed her to participate in the play last night, while he occupied a parquette seat to watch the performance. This morning the couple went with the troupe to Sioux City, where it will perform tonight.

"I really don't know what I'm going to do with a husband," Dolly said to the marriage magistrate. "I've got a seat for him tonight and I'm going to try to arrange for a box at Sioux City."

After the marriage the bride and groom and the girls of the chorus who accompanied them went to a restaurant for supper. Afterwards they went to the theatre, where Dolly kissed her husband in the lobby and hurried with other members of the company back to the dressing rooms to prepare for the performance.

The bride gave her residence as Cincinnati, O., and the girls who accompanied her the following names and addresses: Kitty Stone, New York City; Lorena Becker, Chicago, Ill.; Eva Williams, Omaha.

Dolly, her new husband, and "The District Leader" company left over the Northwestern for Sioux City, passing through Norfolk. The company played to a crowded house in Fremont.

HELP THE NORFOLK BAND

HOW TO MAKE A BAND A SUCCESS IN A TOWN.

BUSINESS MEN MUST HELP

To Make Such an Organization a Success in a Town, Business Men Must See That Musicians Are Given Employment.

Norfolk, Neb., Jan. 18.—Editor News: A few days ago there appeared in The Norfolk Daily News showing what Madison is doing to advertise their city by instituting and maintaining a good brass band, and this is not one bit more than most all the important cities in this part of the country are doing at the present time.

Is Norfolk going to stand still and let all her sister cities have a better and stronger organization in the way of a brass band than we are?

Until about a year ago Norfolk was without a band but the organization that we now have has been very successful since it was instituted and one that Norfolk feels justly proud of. But if Norfolk wants to keep in pace with surrounding towns in keeping a first class band, it has got to give employment to musicians who have had experience.

The question is often asked in Norfolk, "Why is it so hard to have a good brass band?" and the answer is very simple.

It has long been the case in Norfolk that when any business man wanted to hire any help of any kind, he would seldom hire one who played in a band, thinking that the band would take too much time away from his work, but in other cities it is just the other way. If a man comes to town who is a musician the citizens will do their level best to find him employment, while if he is not a musician his chances are rather slim.

It is a mistake on the part of the business men that playing in a band will cause their employes to lose too much time from their work, for there are very few engagements that conflict with ordinary work and rehearsals always are held in the evening when the day's work is finished.

The Norfolk band has done very well since it was instituted, and under the leadership of Prof. Vradenburg has helped the town wonderfully this season past and every loyal citizen well appreciates the fact and is looking forward to what is in store for next year.

The time is ripe now for the people of Norfolk to co-operate with the Norfolk band and hire a musician whenever they want more help, as the band can get very good men to locate here if positions will be furnished.

Since the band organized the gross earnings have been over $2,000, and the total expenses have reached nearly $1,900, and not one cent has ever been divided among the members, which goes to show that it is strictly a public institution and not a source of revenue for those who give their time to such a worthy cause.

The members of the band have purchased all their own instruments, which range in price from $35 to $100, and those who now have cheaper instruments than some of the others are making changes and getting good ones. All of the $2,000 gross earnings of the band since it started have been made by engagements with the exception of about $200, and this was donated by the citizens for street concerts the past summer, and $200 that was received from members who joined the band as there has always been an entrance fee of $5 to all who joined as evidence of good faith.

Prof. Vradenburg states that, with the band we already have, if Norfolk will give employment to half a dozen good musicians, we will have a band that will not be surpassed by any in this part of Nebraska.

To make new musicians out of new material takes time and while the Norfolk band is making new musicians other towns are hiring experienced men.

The band has a competent and experienced director and perfect harmony exists.

There is nothing that affords better and more refined amusement and is a better advertisement for a city like Norfolk than a good brass band.
