STRUCK BY THE TRAIN

Asleep on the Cattle Guards, Tramp Was Injured Near Norfolk.

No, he wasn't asleep at the switch, though the results would have been hardly less disastrous to the tramp who was asleep on the cattle guards at the first Northwestern crossing east of Norfolk when No. 39 went by about 5:30 a. m.

The engine struck the tramp, sleeping peacefully on the cattle guards, and threw him some distance to one side. Although no bones were broken the man received several bad cuts and was injured. He was brought to Norfolk and his wounds attended to by Dr. Frank Salter.

COUSIN OF JOHN MORGAN

FATHER OF MRS. SARAH COTTON WAS SOUTHERN ABOLITIONIST.

VISITING SON IN AINSWORTH

Mrs. Sarah Morgan Cotton, the Mother of John M. Cotton of the Ainsworth Star-Journal, Has Interesting Connections With the Past.

Ainsworth, Neb., July 27.—Special to The News: Mrs. Sarah Morgan Cotton of Lincoln is visiting her son, John Morgan Cotton of the Star-Journal. Mrs. Cotton will be eighty-five years old next December, but aside from a lame hip and a tinge of rheumatism she would easily pass for ten or fifteen years younger.

Mrs. Cotton is a daughter of Captain John Morgan of the war of 1812. He commanded a company in Colonel Dick Johnson's regiment during that war and assisted in the capture of the noted Indian chief, Tecumseh. Her father was something of a curiosity in his day, or at least he developed into one. After the close of the war of 1812 he settled down on his plantation in south central Kentucky and prepared to enjoy life after the true southern style of those days—let the negroes do the work and the whites play ladies and gentlemen. But after a time he became convinced that slavery was wrong, and moved with his negroes to Indiana where he gave all their freedom and assisted them in getting land. He lived an ardent abolitionist the balance of his days.

As he was an uncle to General John Morgan, known to the history of the war of the rebellion as "John Morgan, the Raider," this will seem a little odd. Mrs. Cotton remembers a visit that her cousin John made to them before the war and of the very violent discussion that her father had with him on the subject of slavery and kindred topics.

Riley Hearing is Delayed.

Bonesteel, S. D., July 27.—Another postponement of the preliminary hearing of W. A. Riley, charged with the murder of J. E. Ritts, Burke, S. D., was made. It was to have been held before Judge Biggins last week, but on account of the inability of the important witness for the state to be present a continuance was granted until today. P. J. Donohue, state's attorney, and W. J. Hooper of this city, will be the prosecutors, and W. B. Baucus of this city, also will appear for the defense.

The feeling in this county is so bitter against Riley that it is not at all unlikely that the attorney for the defense, in case his client is bound over to the circuit court, will endeavor to make a showing that a fair and impartial trial cannot be secured here and will ask that a change to some other county in this judicial circuit be granted when the case is called.

Riley is in the custody of the sheriff at Fairfax.

STAGE DRIVER BREAKS LEG

Rosebud Stage Driver, Runaway Victim, Found on Road by a Doctor.

Valentine, Neb., July 28.—Special to The News: Dave George, mail carrier and stage driver on the stage line between here and the Rosebud agency, broke his leg in a runaway while returning from Rosebud yesterday. The accident occurred about ten miles from the agency and was caused by a singletree breaking which scared the horses into a run. George hung on to the lines till he was thrown from the coach.

The fall broke his leg, one of the bones protruding through the flesh. In this painful condition he lay out on the prairie for a half hour. He was found by Dr. Compton and Will Shepard of this city, about 11 o'clock while the doctor was returning from a sick call on the reservation. The doctor immediately set the man's leg, put him in the buggy and carried him to the half way house. There he again set the fractured limb.

Railroad men say that the new organization has no relation to national politics.

We propose to keep close tab on various candidates to see that they are not hostile to the interests of the railroad working man," said one Norfolk railroad man today.

The Sunday mass meeting has been called at 3 o'clock.

Central Christian Advocate: This is the closing year for Dr. Thomas Bithell, presiding elder of the Neligh district. Dr. Bithell does not claim all the credit for the improvements made during the past five and a half years, but gladly accords pastor and people whatever is due them in this marked advancement made. Notwithstanding the necessity of co-operation upon the part of the people for all material and spiritual advancement, it remains a fact that any district in Methodism rises or falls according to its presiding elder. We would conclude, therefore, for the improved conditions upon Neligh district, the presiding elder is responsible first, then the pastors and their congregations. The subject of this paragraph is in heart-touch with the charges of his district, and the churches, small and great, recognize him as a brother. On Neligh district during the past six years eleven churches have been built and remodeled at a cost of $52,400. Ten parsonages have been built and remodeled at a cost of $7,900. There have been paid twelve mortgages against church property and floating indebtedness to the amount of $9,700. During his presiding eldership, Dr. Bithell has received several invitations to accept pastorates of prominent churches, but, believing his duty to be on the district, he has remained loyal to the trust delivered into his hands nearly six years ago by Bishop Fowler—a conference associate.

D. REES IS A CANDIDATE

NEW BRYAN CLUB, STARTED LAST NIGHT, BOOSTS HIM.

SEEKS SENATORIAL NOMINATION

Norfolk Democrats, Organizing a "Norfolk Bryan Club" Last Night, Plunged into the Campaign—Meet Again Wednesday.

The presentation to the public of D. Rees of Norfolk as a democratic candidate for the eleventh district senatorship was the first important act of the hour-old Norfolk Bryan club which was organized last evening by about forty local democrats meeting in the law office of H. F. Barnhart.

The "Norfolk Bryan club" is the official label of the new organization. "Bryan and Kern" was urged but the club clung to the peerless leader and would have none of Kern.

The new club elected the following officers: John Friday, president; H. C. Matrau, vice president; Carl Wilde, secretary; James A. Read, treasurer. H. F. Barnhart, D. Rees and H. C. Matrau were named as a committee to draw up short by-laws.

Rees in the Race.

The D. Rees boom is real, and following last night's action is not expected to encounter much opposition. The Norfolk Democrats had assurances from Pierce and Stanton county leaders that Madison county was expected to furnish the Democratic nominee.

About other candidates the Norfolk club was not so certain. Talk which developed was very friendly to M. S. McDuffy of Madison for county attorney. Mr. McDuffy and L. J. Young of Newman Grove, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for representative, were invited to meet the Norfolk Bryan club next Wednesday evening at a meeting which will be held in the Barnhart office. Mr. Young, especially, will be sounded on the issues of the campaign.

The club started off with an enrolled membership of thirty last night.

A Conference.

Yesterday afternoon before the evening meeting of the Bryan club, a conference was held at the Pacific hotel between a number of Democrats representing Stanton and Pierce counties and bringing word from Wayne county, which with Madison compose the eleventh senatorial district. It was at this conference that it was agreed that Madison county should have the senatorial nomination and that the candidacy of D. Rees of Norfolk should be viewed with favor. A vote taken was unanimous for Mr. Rees.

REVOLT AGAINST COUNCIL.

Stanley County Prisoners Can't Stand Council Sessions.

Stanley Falls, S. D., July 28.—Special to The News: A protest of a decidedly unhappy character has been filed with Sheriff Huston, of Stanley county, by prisoners in the county jail, the protest being directed against the megaphone voices of the members of the city council of Fort Pierre.

The city and county jointly own a public building, which serves for city and county purposes. In the basement of the building is the county jail, while the council chamber is situated on the second floor. The prisoners in the jail allege that the members of the city council are accustomed to argue so loudly that the unseemly disturbance of the city fathers, carried on late into the night, prevents them sleeping and securing the rest to which they claim they are entitled.

The prisoners further say they are willing to accept any sentence that the law and the court may impose, but that they should not be called upon to listen to a session of the city council and thus be kept awake far into the night. They declare that residents of the vicinity of the jail can make their escape when a session of the city council is about to be held, but that prisoners in the jail have to submit to hearing the racket, which they describe as being simply blood-curdling at times, when the city fathers become excited and "turn loose" on each other while arguing some feature of the city government.

The prisoners claim they have been worn out by loss of sleep because of the angry arguments and loud voices of the councilmen, and make the modest request of the sheriff that the city council be compelled to seek quarters elsewhere and in future hold their meetings in some other and more remote portion of the town.

In the event that the sheriff refuses to take the necessary action they threaten to take an appeal to the board of county commissioners. They say a helpless prisoner should not be compelled to listen to the councilmen when they are in "full blast" simply because the prisoner has committed murder or larceny or other public offense.

GETS NORTHWESTERN MAN.

Difficult Job in California Taken By W. H. Whalen.

San Francisco Chronicle: The Southern Pacific has finally selected a new superintendent to take charge of the Shasta division, which includes 270 miles of mountain country lines from Red Bluff to Ashland, in Oregon, with the new line now building from Weed, in Shasta county, to Kalmath Falls in Oregon, and already within about twenty miles of its objective point. W. H. Whalen is the man chosen for this post. He left San Francisco last night to go direct to Dunsmuir, the division headquarters, and there take charge of the work.

Superintendent Whalen is an eastern importation, having been brought out especially to take this position. For the last six years he has been superintendent of the Iowa division of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad with which he has been continuous service in both the mechanical and transportation departments during the last twenty-six years. He is about forty-five years of age.

He began as a locomotive fireman, became a freight engineer, then a passenger engineer and finally a division superintendent. He is a married man with a family, and has a son and daughter now at school in the east, but soon to join the family here in California.

The Shasta divisions, the newest of the newest of the Southern Pacific divisions, comprises the two approaches to the climb over the Sierran mountains, and has the most difficult grades of all the Southern Pacific districts, the climb extending three per cent. To keep the way clear, the rolling stock in condition, to handle the business over the mountain, and to be prepared for the winter's snowslides and heavy storms are some of the tasks that fall to the responsibility of the Shasta division superintendent.
