The wedding was attended by immediate friends and relatives of the young couple. Miss Ahlman was until recently employed with the Madison Mercantile company. Mr. Esh is a drug clerk and had a position in the Madison pharmacy. The young couple left Monday afternoon for Madison and will shortly go to Omaha where Mr. Esh has a position with a wholesale house.

ROYCROFT PHILOSOPHY.

By Fra Albertus.

Most of the really great men in America have warmed their bare feet frosty mornings on the spot where the cows have lain down.

We are heirs of the past, but its good and its ill.

The best souls suffer most, while baseness and haunting pride go free. But pain is not all pain.

Nature punishes most sins, but blasphemy, sacrilege and heresy are things that nature does not provide any punishments for; therefore man has to look after these things himself.

A man's word is only valuable when it is not for sale.

The greater comprehend the less; but the less cannot comprehend the greater.

Speak today what you think is true, and contradict it all tomorrow if necessary.

If there is any other way to teach virtue than to practice it, I do not know it.

MAGAZINE.

In the November issue of The World's Work there appears the second chapter of John D. Rockefeller's Reminiscences, which he entitles "Some Old Friends." In this chapter he tells what his associations were with Mr. John D. Archbold, Mr. H. M. Flagler, Mr. Stillman Witt, Mr. S. V. Harkness, and other names familiar in the industrial and financial history of America.

In this chapter Rockefeller says: "It is not always possible to remember just how one first met an old friend or what one's impressions were, but I shall never forget my first meeting with Mr. John D. Archbold, who is now a vice president of the Standard Oil Company." He then proceeds to tell how, about thirty or forty years ago, he was traveling about the country, talking with men interested in the oil industry. While at a hotel in this district, he saw written large on the register, "John D. Archbold $100 a bit." This first attracted Rockefeller's attention to him.

The Restriction of Campaign Funds.

Henry Litchfield West, in the November Forum: It is safe to say that no campaign in recent years has been managed with so little money as has been in the treasury of the national committees during the progress of this contest. Of the two organizations, the Republicans have unquestionably possessed the larger amount, but even the sums at their disposal have been but a tithe of the funds available in the past. The growth of public sentiment against corporate contributions, resulting in the enactment of a law which placed corporations outside the pale, has had its effect upon the party managers and they look askance upon money which bears the slightest suspicion of taint. Apart from this, however, the corporations are not in friendly relation with the Republican party. They have been upon a hot griddle for four years and the experience has not been enjoyable. From personal knowledge, the writer is aware that several railroad officials who in the past have given substantial aid to the Republican party have this year closed their check books, while many trust magnates, upon whom the Republicans have relied for financial assistance, have this year failed to respond with anything like their accustomed generosity. The Democrats have, however, been even more handicapped through lack of funds. They have had some money but hardly enough to meet even the bare necessities of the campaign.

One lesson of the election, therefore, will be that the enormous amounts which have been considered imperative in the past are really not required. The country should applaud and appreciate this knowledge. Each national committee ought to be restricted by law to the minimum amount of campaign funds. An election ought to be decided upon its merits and not through debauching and corrupting influences.

James Lloyd of Yankton, who represented the Minneapolis Tribune at Dallas during the recent Rosebud rush, is now confined at his home in Yankton with a threatened attack of typhoid fever, which is charged up to the rush. Mr. Lloyd made many friends at Dallas. He made his headquarters in the office of Barnum & Butterfield.

Nebraska added one new county to the list in the Tuesday election, the big county of Cheyenne having been divided on an east and west line. Dr. H. L. Seegoin, of Bridgeport, who is in Norfolk on business, states that Bridgeport will be the county seat of the new county, which will be known as Morrill county, in honor of C. H. Morrill, of Lincoln. Sidney, the county seat of Cheyenne county, compromised on a division line and did not fight the project this year as it did in the past.

Norfolk during the past few years has been represented in Lincoln in a very creditable way by Dr. C. A. Mc-

Gregory an state veterinarian. Dr. Mc-Kim has done more to advance the efficiency of the office than any other veterinarian who have or held the same office. He has also been able to do more to clean up the stock from infectious diseases than any of his predecessors. In fact he has established such a system of efficiency among his deputy state veterinarians that had he had an adequate appropriation of money behind him the state might already have been purged from infectious diseases. Never since Dr. McKim has held his appointment has he had sufficient financial backing to make the improvements he would have liked to have made. But the showing he has made is substantial in laying a foundation.

ROSEBUD AUTO BURNS UP.

How it Took John Arcoren a Month to Get to Norfolk—A Ditch.

Sixty miles an hour, seventy-five miles an hour, even 100 miles an hour is the pace those days, and yet it has taken John Arcoren, of Lamro, four weeks to come from Omaha to Norfolk. Long before the Tripp county registration began Mr. Arcoren had come to the decision that it would be both a source of pleasure and profit to possess himself of an automobile.

Don't think Mr. Arcoren is a novice at the manipulation of the steering wheel; he isn't. It has been just the outcome of an unfortunate network of circumstances that has been delaying him.

About the beginning of the month of October he went down to Omaha to make his purchase, his intentions being to get back for the rush. He bought his car, a Fiat, but unfortunately before he was ready to start for Dallas he got mixed up in a genuine "rough house" injuries received in the scrimmage kept him in Omaha until a week ago.

He started from Omaha in company with his son a week ago yesterday and had made excellent time up to arriving at Stanton, where he stopped for gasoline, and, as it was after dark, inquired for the Norfolk road. His informant, in place of directing him over the "straight road" which has no turnings, "that" paralysed the railroad track, sent him off on a roundabout journey.

Two miles out of Stanton, in an endeavor to turn a nasty corner his car wheels skidded and sent him into the ditch.

The broken sidelights of the overturned car ignited the gasoline in the tank and nothing but the fact that the heat of the lamps had melted the solder from around the cap and had given air to the petroleum prevented an explosion. Neither of the occupants of the car were injured, although both were dazed wide into the ditch.

By the time Mr. Arcoren had scrambled out, his feet the car was burning fiercely. It was the critical moment, but few persons would have given the blazing pile a second look; in fact, the majority would have been burning the earth to get themselves out of danger. But Arcoren knew a little about gasoline himself and kept cool. He knew that just so long as the air could get to the oil he was safe, and turned in desperately to save his car. By dint of such throwing of sand he finally extinguished the blaze.

The woodwork in the head of the car was burned away and the timing of one wheel destroyed.

With the aid of a farmer and a team of horses Mr. Arcoren brought the damaged car to Norfolk for repairs.

The car is now in the Koyen garage, on Fifth street.

Mr. Arcoren owns considerable property in Tripp county; "just a little garden patch," is his method of expressing the four and a half sections of allotment land he possesses.

His ranch is situated six miles north of Lamro and about eight miles from the U. X. ranch.

Mr. Arcoren stated that the prairie fire which swept that section went by on either side of his property without doing him any damage at all.

He expects to have his car in condition to leave for Omaha Monday morning.

"Just wait till I cross the Niobrara," said Mr. Arcoren, "I bet you make up for time lost."

Because Wife Didn't Write.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 7.—Special to The News: With only two months between himself and freedom, Edward E. Kaiser, a "trustee" at the Nebraska state penitentiary, made his escape during October. He is still at large, though he has been traced to South Omaha and to Sioux City, Ia.

The action of the convict is thought to be due to his state of mind caused by brooding over the fact that his wife has ceased to write to him. Kaiser, who is but twenty-five years of age, was serving a sentence of one year for disposing of mortgaged property in Brown county. Since his arrest his wife has been employed in a railroad eating house at Long Pine, and later at Norfolk. Until lately her letters came regularly and were watched for by the prisoner with great eagerness. It was noted that the letters have stopped coming and Kaiser has become a changed man.

"Tamlet, the melancholy Dane, wasn't in it with Kaiser," remarked one of the guards. "We could hear him crying in his cell at almost any hour of the night. By day he was morose, taciturn and absent minded. His face somehow grew to bear the look of a man who has received a mortal hurt. I wasn't much surprised when I learned that he had run away. His work as a trustee in a field a mile away from the penitentiary gave him the opportunity and I believe that if he hadn't done that, he'd have done something worse. It's too bad, though, when his time was so nearly out. Before the letters stopped coming he was a model prisoner."

Mrs. M. K. Klou, a sister of Mrs. Kaiser, works at the Junction eating house. Mrs. Klou states that her sister has never worked in Norfolk but is now working in a hotel at Oskaloosa. Mrs. Kaiser was in this city about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Klou did not know anything of her brother-in-law's escape, she said. Mrs. Kaiser, before she was married, was Miss Hattie Clark. She is said to have been married at Alnsworth.

SHIP CHILDREN TO MADISON. Homeless Children of New York to Homes in Madison. SHIPMENT COMES FRIDAY NEXT.

A Committee Headed by Prominent Madison Citizens Is Co-operating With New York Society in a Grand Distribution of Orphans.

An auction of children? A car load of assorted children direct from New York city is to be shipped to Madison and distributed in the county seat town.

Just a little startling, isn't it? But there's nothing startling about the plan. It is just a plan to bring the homeless children of New York city to some of the prosperous but childless homes of one of the richest sections of Nebraska.

The company of orphan children which is to be brought to Madison under the direction of the Children's Aid society of New York, will arrive in Madison on November 20, next Friday. The distribution of the children will take place at the opera house next Friday at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Madison Committee Assists. A local committee of prominent citizens of Madison will assist the eastern agent in providing homes. On the committee is County Judge William Bates, Editor J. B. Donovan of the Madison Star-Mail, George Wyoff, Peter Rubendall, D. Q. Nicholson and Albert Zessin.

Two Years and Up. The children which are to be distributed in Madison are from orphan ages, and are both boys and girls, two years old and up. They are said to know nothing of street life and to be well disciplined, well dressed and intelligent children. Parties taking the children must be endorsed by the local committee. The children must be sent to church, Sunday school and to day schools and properly clothed and cared for until they are eighteen years old.

Battle Creek News. Mrs. Brozek, an aged Bohemian lady, who was living southwest of here with her son, John Brozek, died Monday and the funeral was held Wednesday morning from the Catholic church in Schoelcraft. A minister from St. Bernard officiated. The remains were laid to rest in the cemetery near that church.

John Lecht has moved his house, on his farm west of town, more north and is building a large new addition. Ralph Simmons is building a new barn and cribs on his farm south of town.

Warner H. Daniel intends to turn his farm over to his boys and will move to town.

Highland precinct cast 145 votes. Taft received 64 and Bryan 74. Thomas Taylor was elected road overseer and J. E. Daniel and Adolph Mantey constable.

Miss Lou Hansen, who was visiting here one month with her mother, returned Friday to Hot Springs, S. D., where she is an employee in the state soldiers' home.

Holy communion services will be held in the Lutheran church Sunday morning and a collection will be taken up for the Lutheran Orphans' home at Fremont.

Peter Does is building a large double corn crib on his old timber claim south of town.

August Steffen returned Wednesday from Ackley, Ia., where he went last week to the funeral of his mother.

A son was adopted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph L. Mantey Sunday morning.

Mrs. O. H. Maas was a visitor to Norfolk Thursday.

per cent of the vote cast, yet she will retain the seat of county government for at least four years more. Home street and St. Charles received a few votes—which might as well have been cast direct for Fairfax.

Musical Comedy. Judging by the lively demand for seats for "The College Boy" on Saturday evening, at the Auditorium, this attraction will enjoy a large patronage. The company is under the management of Charles Riggs, and this, the third season, has been the most successful both financially and artistically. The eccentric comedian, Rex Wilson, is making the hit of his career and his singing and wonderful dancing is even better than before. Plenty of the latest popular songs, pretty dances and unique comedy make the "College Boy" bright and breezy.

Walter Wolf is Dead. Walter Wolf, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolf, died suddenly Friday afternoon at the family home. The father of the deceased boy is a prominent Madison county farmer residing about eight miles from Norfolk.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Shannon. Word was received in Norfolk Saturday that Mrs. A. L. Shannon, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Ed Perry, formerly of Norfolk, had died very suddenly during the morning in Ewing. Funeral arrangements were received here.

Mrs. Case Dead. Mrs. Ellen E. Case died last night at 10 o'clock at the home of her son, M. W. Case, at 612 South Fourth street. The funeral will be held from the home at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. John E. Craig, pastor of the Second Congregational church, officiating.

The deceased was seventy-seven years of age. She was born in Columbus, Ohio, and while a girl removed to Virginia, Ohio, where she married. Her husband died in 1889. In 1907 she came to Norfolk to live with her son. She was the mother of seven children, four sons and three daughters. The eldest son and the daughters live in Ohio. Of the two youngest sons, M. W. Case lives in Norfolk and A. F. Case in Omaha.

Thank Friends, Forgive Enemies. Editor News: Kindly permit me through the columns of your valuable paper to say that now, the election being over, I wish to thank my friends and forgive my enemies. I have been asked would I leave Norfolk, to which my answer is certainly not, as one of the objects of this campaign was to better fit me for remaining, and which object was accomplished. I will remain in Norfolk and practice law, and my office is on Fourth street across from the postoffice, where I invite all without respect to creed or political affiliation to come and see me. Respectfully, J. C. Engelman.

Do The People Rule? "The People Do Rule"—In Nebraska. This was the Republican campaign banner across Norfolk avenue on Fourth street among during the night by Norfolk Democrats. "The People Do Rule" banner bearing pictures of Taft and Sherman some Democrat attached a long white banner which read "In Nebraska." It was a sign that the campaign had passed that Republicans and Democrats were alike able to greet the addition with a smile.

Mother III. Mr. Horner received a message stating that his mother, who lives near Columbus, was very ill. Mr. Horner left for that place this afternoon.

Young Farmer Under Arrest. Oskaloosa, Neb., Nov. 7.—Special to The News: Jess Kinnin, a young farmer near here, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of having attempted to assault little seven-year-old Alma Moore several days ago. Kinnin was taken to Neligh and placed under $1,000 bonds, which were furnished by his father. His preliminary hearing was set for November 14. He returned to Oskaloosa and was not threatened with any violence. The Kinnin farm is about a mile from the Moore farm. This afternoon say they think they have strong evidence.
