Donaparte will take the case before the supreme court. Second Time Court Had Acted. This was the second time the United States circuit court of appeals had acted in this case. The case was originally taken to the appellate court by the Standard Oil company after Judge K. M. Landis of the United States district court had fined the company $29,240,000, following a trial replete with sensations.

Trial Lasted Six Weeks. The trial began March 4, 1907, and lasted for six weeks. United States district Attorney Sims represented the government, and Attorneys John Miller, Moritz Rosenthal, Virgil P. Hine, A. D. Eddy and W. W. Martyn appeared for the Standard Oil company. The specific indictments upon which the United States authorities elected to make their fight numbered 1,462 and charged the acceptance of rebates aggregating $223,000 from the Chicago & Alton railroad on shipments of oil from Whiting, Ind., to East St. Louis, Ill.

Fine Was $29,240,000. The trial ended in a verdict of guilty on each indictment and on each count in each indictment. The maximum fine was $29,240,000. It could be less, should it be shown that a Standard Oil company of Indiana $1,000,000 corporation, was not a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

Rockefeller Subpoenaed. After conviction and before pronouncement of sentence, Judge Landis pressed a curiosity to have the latter point cleared up, and he subpoenaed John D. Rockefeller and Jesse Standard Oil rights to testify regarding the connection between the Indiana and New Jersey corporations. On August 3, 1907, Judge Landis fined the oil company the maximum, $29,000,000 in an opinion scoring the company unmercifully.

The Standard's Position. The Standard company immediately took the case to the United States circuit court of appeals on a writ of error averring that the trial court erred in ruling that the number of rebates should be reckoned by the number of carload lots, and not by the number of shipments; that the trial court had erred in ruling that ignorance of the law is not an excuse for violation of it, and that the trial court assessed an excessive fine and gave beyond its power in hearing testimony after the jury had returned verdict.

Landis Is Reversed. Last July the appellate court handed down its opinion on this writ of error petition, reversing the trial court and recommending the case to Judge Landis for retrial. This opinion, written by Judge Grosscup, contained what has been characterized as a most remarkable exhortation to the court by another in the history of the American bench, holding that a man really convicted the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, when it is not even on trial. The opinion referring to Judge Landis' decision said: "No monarch, no parliament, no tribunal of western Europe, for centuries has pretended to have the right to punish except after due trial for all the forms of law. Can that be done here, on no other basis than the judge's personal belief at the party marked by him for punishment deserves punishment? It is, it is because the man who happens to be judge is above the law."

On August 14 last, District Attorney Sims filed a petition for rehearing of the case before the appellate court alleging that the circuit court had misunderstood and misquoted the ruling of the trial judge, and alleging further that the circuit court ruling sustained, would make of the interstate commerce act, "a mere will-o-wisp of legislation, a phantom statute."

Today's ruling was on this petition. Unanimous—Reasons Advanced. The decision was unanimous, Judge Grosscup writing the opinion. Judge Anderson, in concurring in the opinion, added additional reasons for the ruling. The point that the standard of rebates used by Judge Landis was wrong is reiterated. The offense was accepted rebates on the complete transaction over the shipment and not on each quantity sent. Therefore that each carload of shipment constituted an offense as ruled by Judge Landis was held wrong.

Indirectly reference is made to dragging the Standard Oil company of New Jersey into the case, though not named in the indictment. The court reiterates the original exception from Judge Landis.

HAZEN'S WHEEL IS FOUND. Stolen Bicycle Found in City Hall Was Taken Halloween. Who stole City Attorney M. C. Hazen's bicycle on the night of Halloween, badly damaged the same and placed the injured vehicle in a room opening off police court?

This is the latest mystery of the city hall and one which Chief of Police Peters is seeking to solve. The bicycle was taken from Mr. Hazen's home. It is found in the city hall. One pedal is broken off. Halloween offenders have never shown proper respect for the city authorities. Last year they ran off with the mayor's buggy. This year they "fixed" the city attorney's wheel. Who would be the victim next year? Any way it is to be investigated.

BERLIN PRESS ALMOST SILENT. Only Three Papers Comment on "Killing" of Kaiser's Interview.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—Obviously in response to pressure from official quarters, the Berlin press is almost universally silent with reference to the suppressed account of the interview with the kaiser by William Bayard Hale, which the Century magazine was to have published in its December issue. Only three journals, which boast utter independence of "inspired" influence, mention the incident.

The Tageblatt publishes a cablegram from its New York correspondent directly contradicting the assurance given by the foreign office Monday evening that no pressure was brought to bear by the German government. The correspondent asserts that the government actually "resorted to extremes in order to avoid warlike developments."

The Socialist Vorward asked sarcastically who is going to reimburse the Century for its destroyed plate and whether the government perhaps has a secret fund for use upon such occasions.

The Democratic Morgenpost declares it a genuine piece of good fortune that the interview was "killed."

To Ballast Dallas Line. Pierce, Neb., Nov. 9.—Special to The News: Residents of this place along the line of the Northwestern, railroad from Norfolk to Dallas have long believed that this branch would eventually be the main line from Norfolk to the Black Hills. Hopes have since this morning when Chamberlain & Peak, railroad contractors, set up a miniature city on the site of the new line, and informed a representative of The News that they had contracted to widen the road bed of the Northwestern from Norfolk to Dallas preparatory to ballasting the road for heavy trains and fast time.

Freak Election Bets are Paid. Chicago, Nov. 9.—How would you like to push a wheel barrow with a 170-pound human cargo over rough obstructions of Madison street for a mile?

How would you like to whitewash a ton of coal with a lump with a one-inch brush? How would you like to ride a few locks inside of a hearse down State street at noon? Or how would you like to live exclusively on "free lunch" for a solid month?

These are a few of the stunts of Chicagoans whose political judgment proved wrong last Tuesday. Found the Rocks Hard. The first named "bet" was canceled last night when "Chicken" Duffy, a newspaper wagon driver, wheeled John Collins in a barrow from the latter's saloon at Halsted and Madison streets all the way to Madison and Dearborn streets as the result of misplaced confidence in the "running" powers of "Jake" Kern in the latter's attorney contest. The "cash" of the bet was the occasion of a miniature Fourth of July celebration along the route.

The parade started on schedule time at 7:40 p.m. and appeared in a sweater and cap with his wheel barrow and Collins came forth armed with a small mass to mitigate the jolts and jar of the "course." At the same time a brass band appeared to add to the festivities.

Throws Money to Crowd. Awaiting the two was a great crowd of boys and men, the boys drawn out a force by a quiet "tip" that C. C. Anderson, a city wrecker, who was considerable money by judiciously backing Wayman, was to distribute 100 in nickels along the route. Four automobiles carrying friends of both Duffy and Collins, and their wives headed the parade, and with horns, flags and banners, among them a banner announcing "an election bet," apertured pedestrians of what was coming. The autos blazed with Romar and flares and Anderson made good on the "scramble" money, to the delight of a small army of youngsters who accompanied the procession.

Arrived at the Tribune building, and played, red fire was touched off and then the party adjourned to the Bismarck for supper. Poses as "Dead One." Today at noon Rome B. Pullen, one of the Illinois Democratic campaign spellbinders, rode in State street, from South Water to Var Buren street, in a hearse driven by Attorney Joseph W. Latimer, 100 Washington street. Mr. Pullen was one of the speakers at the Bryan meeting last Saturday night in the stock yard pavilion. As he came down in a heat of enthusiasm from the speakers' rostrum Mr. Latimer started to "josh" him for working for a "dead one," as he termed Bryan.

"Dead one!" retorted Mr. Pullen. Why, after the votes are counted Tuesday you Republicans will be buried so deep you can't be found with a diamond drill. "All right, we'll find out who the dead one is," replied Mr. Latimer. "If Bryan is elected, I'll agree to get into a hearse and let you drive it in State street next Saturday noon. If Taft is elected, it is you for the hearse and me to drive."

A "committee of arrangements," headed by Captain Robertson Palmer and composed of attorneys in the Chicago Title & Trust building, was named to see that the terms of the bet were fulfilled.

Uses Small Brush. John Burnett, 517 Washington boulevard, had opportunity to reflect upon the frailties of Chairman Mack's "dope" while whitewashing coal in the front window of Jacob Brand's buffet at 853 West Madison street. Burnett was claiming everything in sight for Bryan one evening last week, but his friend, H. J. McCarron, 517 Washington boulevard, declared that there would be "nothing to it" but Taft. The argument waxed hot about the time for replenishing the fire and the sight of a bucket of coal gave McCarron an inspiration.

"If Bryan is elected, I'll whitewash a ton of coal with a one-inch brush in one public place," he announced. "If Taft is elected, it will be up to you to do the brush work and we'll put up a forfeit of $100 to bind the bet."

"You're on," declared Burnett, and yesterday afternoon Burnett sat in the front window, attired in an oldilk hat, green necktie and white apron, busily painting coal before a row of speculators which blocked the sidewalk. During the day he sanded a quarter of a ton of coal.

Another bet was that "laid down" by John F. Wagner, who owns a cafe at 394 North avenue. Wagner was so sure of Bryan's election that he agreed to subsist upon his own "free lunch" for a month should his judgment prove poor. He started upon the prescribed diet last Thursday.

New York Postmaster Shot. New York, Nov. 9.—Postmaster Edward M. Morgan was seriously wounded today by Erye Mackay, a stenographer, who shot Morgan as he was leaving the subway station with his daughter, a little girl of twelve.

Asked if It Was Morgan. "Is this Morgan?" the assailant asked. "Yes," was the answer. He then placed the revolver against the abdomen of the postmaster and fired a fatal shot.

Then Ended Own Life. A moment after he had shot the postmaster the man shot himself through the head, dying.

Morgan was taken to a hospital as soon as possible. It was thought that he would die.

Morgan was operated on this morning. It was found that the bullet had not perforated the intestines. When this was learned it was thought that Morgan's chances of recovery were excellent.

In connection with the mystery surrounding the motive for the shooting it is learned that a man telephoned to the postoffice at 6 o'clock this morning requesting to see Morgan. There is no way of tallying the description of the assailant.

Police Smell a Plot. The police theory of the shooting is that it is the result of a plot. Is a Mystery. The cause of the tragedy has not been explained.

Mr. Morgan, as postmaster in New York City, draws $8,000 per year. One Bad Enough. Wayne Democrat: Irm Jastram voted in Wayne Tuesday morning, then returned to West Point where he has been making his home for several months. We hope the Democrats didn't let Irm vote at West Point. One vote of his kind was enough for the occasion.

Kaiser Up in Airship. Berlin, Nov. 10.—The kaiser today ascended into the air with Count Zeppelin in the reconstructed airship Zeppelin I, a dirigible balloon. Some 300,000 people gathered at Lake Constance to witness the flight.

Guffey to Lead Anti-Bryan War. Chicago, Nov. 10.—Local Democrats are looking to Pennsylvania to take the lead in the repudiation of Bryan as the further "peerless leader" of their party.

It is to take the shape of the election of Colonel James Guffey, of that state, as the national committeeman of the vacancy caused by the death of James Kerr, Bryan's friend. Colonel Guffey was Bryan's friend during two campaigns and showed his personal regard by donating the celebrated stained-glass windows which decorate the Bryan home in Lincoln, Ind. but when the windows became a matter of gossip, Mr. Bryan took umbrage, and, not contented with writing his former friend a severe lecture, used his control of the Denver convention to throw Colonel Guffey off the national committee. Personal enmity took the place of the former friendship which had profited the late candidate so greatly.

Plan a Slap at Bryan. Now, however, conditions are radically changed. Bryan is a beaten man and not a "peerless leader" any longer. There is a vacancy in the national committee from Pennsylvania which must be filled by the state committee. That committee is most friendly to Colonel Guffey. He was thrown out at Denver, but still remained in control of his state organization. So the man who Bryan humiliated at the national convention is now in shape to reassert himself at home, and his return to the governing body of the party will be recognized all over the country as a distinct slap at Mr. Bryan.

They Want Johnson. All the anti-Bryan Democrats point to the fact that Bryan ran behind his flock all over the country as proof that as a candidate he is absolutely impossible. They cite Minnesota, where Taft had 100,000 plurality, and yet Johnson was elected governor by 25,000; Indiana, New York, Illinois, where the difference between the Bryan and Stevenson vote was nearly 100,000, and other similar cases, and draw the not illogical conclusion that Bryan may be a good Chautauqua lecturer, but when it comes to getting votes he is in the "also ran" class.

The man most talked about in all Democratic camps today as a likely candidate for 1912 is Governor John A. Johnson, of Minnesota. He seemed to be fairly acceptable except perhaps to the most radical Bryanites.

Shies Brick at Can; Eye Gone. In the Wise Memorial hospital in Omaha lies little ten-year-old Reynolds Johnson of Norfolk with one eye gone, all because with boyish curiosity, he shied a brick at a tin can on the track in the Northwestern Junction yards. The tin can turned out to be a track torpedo used to signal trains to stop. The lad's aim was good and when the torpedo exploded the tin casing on the torpedo struck him just below the right eye, tearing the eye badly.

The boy was taken to Omaha by his mother and sister, Miss Rebecca Duggan, a Pierce county school teacher near Plainview, after the eye had been dressed in this city. I. Omaha the eye was removed by Dr. Owens. The left eye was not injured.

The boy's father is Axel Johnson, foreman of a Northwestern bridge carpenter gang. The Johnson had and some other boys were playing together.

D. M. CARR IN NORFOLK. Now at the Head of the C. D. Thomson Advertising Agency. D. M. Carr, manager of the C. I. Thompson Advertising agency in Omaha, was in Norfolk during the day on business. Mr. Carr was made manager of this agency upon the death of Alfred Darlow, who had been in twenty years advertising manager of the Union Pacific railroad, and who resigned that position only short before his death to take active charge of the Thompson Advertising agency. The Thompson agency is the largest in the west.

ANOTHER REPUBLICAN RIDES. Wheel Barrow Bet at West Point Pa. Saturday Afternoon. West Point, Neb., Nov. 9. Speech to The News: A very amusing election wager was paid Saturday Henry Kloke, a well known Democrat, wagered with A. M. Schairer, Republican business man of West Point, on the election of Bryan, agreeing that in case of Bryan's defeat, he would wheel Schairer in a wheel barrow from his place of business up and down Main street of the city, stopping on the way at the various places of refreshment and treating Schairer at each place. At 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the procession started. The wheel barrow was gaily decorated with United States flags and was a very imposing spectacle. Schairer took his seat on the front end of the barrow and was duly wheeled according to contract by Mr. Kloke. The affair caused much merriment to a large crowd who witnessed the affair.

Charles Krepelan, the former baker of West Point, has again commenced business in the bakery and confectionery business in the Losch building on Main street.

MORGAN R' STING COMFORTABLY. New York Postmaster Will Recover, It Is Thought. New York, Nov. 10.—Postmaster Morgan, who was shot by a law clerk, is resting comfortably today and it is believed that he will recover.

BRYAN FOR THE SENATE

Yeave ho! Ye Bryan students Who walked the reeling deck And snatched Nebraska's colors From the Democratic wreck. Patch up your tattered party flag And raise it to the sky. With "William Jennings Bryan For the Senate!" as your cry.

For years our fair Nebraska Held the ribbon proudly pennant For the longest winded senator. That ever stumped the senate. It was William Vines at Allen Who never lacked a puff of breath. And he talked for fourteen hours 'Till he talked a bill to death.

No other state dared trample On the glorious windy name Of our William Vincent Allen Of good Populist fame. 'Till Wisconsin sieged the gauntlet 'Neath the gaze of countless eyes And put her Bob La Follette up To battle for the prize.

LaFollette filled his magazine, Then started in to kill, And for more than eighteen hours Fought the Vreel and Aldrich bill. 'Twas a noted filibuster, Quite a legislative slaughter; LaFollette made his record With no stops for feed or water.

Wisconsin thinks she's got us skinned, Don't think it for a minute; When it comes to really talking, Bob LaFollette isn't in it. We've got a man at Fairview Who can talk a puzzle dazle; He can give LaFollette three to two And "beat him to a frazzle!"

Then send him down to Washington! And "give our Bill a chance" To talk LaFollette off his feet And lay him in a trance! He cannot be our president; That truth is plainly shown; So let him make the longest Talking record ever known!

—Richard F. Marwood.

NORFOLK CITIZENS PAYING ELECTION BET

Wheeled down Norfolk avenue by the second picture Mr. Hinds is the ork Democrat, possessed of Democratic faith the day before election and of the debit side of an election bet the day after election, and wheeled the avenue again by another Norfolk Democrat, W. J. Hahn, Thursday last, wheel seated in a flag-decked hearse bearing aloft the smiling picture of Taft, personified Republican success.

Mr. Hahn was wheeled down the street by L. H. Hinds and up the street by Former Mayor H. C. Matrau. In the first picture Mr. Matrau is propelling the election carriage. In the second picture Mr. Hinds is the man behind the wheelbarrow. Just above Mr. Hinds mounted on a white horse is Mayor J. D. Sturgeon, who headed the unique procession.

Former Mayor Matrau was quite the hero of the day on account of the loco way in which he carried out his end of the wager. Mr. Matrau, who is sixty-four years old, is both a veteran railroad man and a veteran of the civil war, in which he had the unique record of being the youngest captain in command. Mr. Matrau is a member of the Loyal Legion and has been at the head of the legion in Nebraska.
