If what the governor's county shows an increase from sev- he thinks the answer is that he is a better vote-getter than Bryan. If Bryan's friends have the right idea it is that the brewers in Nebraska worked harder for Shallenberger than they did for Bryan. In his speech before the Lancaster county democrats Mr. Bryan charged that the brewers were opposed to him for president, and that in Missouri, Ohio and Indiana they supported Taft and the democratic legislative ticket. In Ohio and Indiana they supported the democratic nominees for governor. While the charge was not made so specific as to Nebraska, Mr. Bryan indicated that he believed the same thing was done in Nebraska; witness his declaration that if it had not been for republican friends whose state pride induced them to vote for him he would have lost his own state. There are so many secret cross currents in polites that it is often dangerous to attempt to ascribe a given result to any definite cause. Yet an investigation of the figures shows a definite basis for Mr. Bryan's charge | York ...... 2.042 2.049 that the brewers did exert their influence as far as they dare in this state against him. There is no other explanation of the fact that Shallenberger ran ahead of Bryan in fifty-six of the ninety counties in the state. Ordinarily a presidential nominee runs ahead of the gubernatorial nominee, for the reason that a small percentage of voters do not vote below the presidential ticket, the offices at the head always getting the most votes, and those at the bottom of the ballot the smallest number. In the wet wards of other advantages too numerous to were some distinct signs that the fact Lincoln Shallenberger ran well up with Bryan, but he dropped far behind in the dry precincts. All who were familiar with the campaign of 1908 recall that the word that was sent out from Omaha headquarters of the liquor interests was to vote the democratic ticket straight in order that Shallenberger might be elected. If it had not been feared that many of the voters would get confused if they were told to pick out Shallenberger only, Bryan probably would not have Scotts Bluff..... been included. Yet a great many did Sioux ..... discriminate, as shown not only by the Bryan and Shallenberger vote, but by the fact that the latter was but one of two democratic nominees on the state ticket to be elected, the other

Plainview News: We understand that William Kane succeeded in getting up a cultivating bee Monday of this week for the widow and family of Scott Robinson, who died last Appended are the official figures Thursday at his home southwest of which tend to prove Mr. Bryan's town. There were twenty-two cultiferred by county optionists two years charge. Practically every county that vators in the corn field early Monday ago over Sheldon because he was able has a distinctively wet tendency gave morning and they were making the to make the leaders believe that he Shallenberger many more votes than weeds fly. This is certainly a kind, would sign a county option bill. At Bryan. Cass and Otoe are exceptions neighborly act and demonstrates the the same time, if we are to believe but this was due to the personal pop- fact that there are a lot of hig hearted, the testimony from Omaha, he gave ularity there of Sheldon, the opponent generous people living in that comhis word to the brewers that he would of Shallenberger. Take Douglas, munity and that they believe in deeds
