

A Murder Near Elgin. Neligh, Neb., Aug. 13.—Special to The News: At noon today it was reported here that Nels Peterson, a farmer living at Clay Ridge, near Elgin, was believed to have been murdered yesterday afternoon. His head was badly mutilated, it is said, following a family row.

More Votes Than Voters. Witten, S. D., Aug. 13.—Special to The News: The weather man is redeeming himself in Tripp county of late and is sending us an abundance of rain which is making the crops and grass take on a better color and will make a good crop.

Accuses Omaha Postmaster. Pernicious Activity in Politics is Charged by F. A. Shotwell. Omaha, Aug. 12.—Franklin A. Shotwell, a prominent attorney of Omaha and state organizer of the National League of Republican Clubs, today forwarded to Postmaster General Hitchcock charges of "pernicious activity in politics" against B. F. Thomas, postmaster of Omaha.

Half Inch Rain is General. And still another big rain, amounting to half an inch, fell over all of northern Nebraska and southern South Dakota Friday night. The rain kept up pretty much all night, and amounted to .48 of an inch in Norfolk.

An Odd Clipping. An old English newspaper, dated many years back, was found twenty years ago by Dr. H. T. Holden, who clipped several of the items out of the ancient "sheet." Among the clippings was the following:

Document in a western cathedral in Catholic times. To work done:— £. s. d. For soldering and repairing St. Joseph's... 0 0 8

Things Cost More Abroad. Oberammergau, July 25.—It seems to me a long time since I wrote and yet it has been but a few days. However, since then we have traveled about 2,000 miles, and we have kept moving, rain or shine, snow or heat.

Germany Has Trees. The country is greatly beautiful on account of the thousands of pine groves that have been planted all over the German empire. This timber is for wood, building, carving work and general beauty. It seems to me that we need to plant trees in the states, for there are vast acres which if planted with trees in a few years would be a fortune to the owner and then often this land is useless unless so used.

Prices Higher Than Here. Dresden is a city of 60,000 people. It is situated on the Elbe river, which has been spanned by an old wooden bridge, but which is being replaced with a magnificent stone bridge. The prices of most manufactured articles are higher in Dresden than in Berlin, and in both are higher than in America, where you get better goods than in Europe and for less money.

Big Crowd at O'Neill. O'Neill, Neb., Aug. 13.—Yesterday's races were witnessed by another large crowd and some good racing was done. Speed On, the fifth from the pole in the 2:17 free-for-all trot or pace, took the pole on the first turn and held it without trouble through the heat. The performance of Speed On in this race was marvelous, taking the three heats against a combination of fast horses and good drivers.

Death was preceded by several hours of unconsciousness, during which time the patient suffered no pain, only gradually growing weaker.

Isaac B. Purviance Dead. Isaac B. Purviance, an old settler of Norfolk, died here yesterday afternoon at the age of 83, death being due to old age. He is survived by three sons—John and Ed of Norfolk and Mark of Lynch. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Purviance passed away at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

they travel. After they are warned you must simply let them learn by experience. Where Christmas Toys Are Made. I was glad to meet Dr. Gettys and Dr. Roach again while in Berlin. They plan to get home about the tenth of September; and the Methodist preachers of Nebraska are very busy at this time getting ready for their conference sessions, which I trust will be my good fortune to enjoy in a few weeks. But I must hasten with my letter, and thus hastening we left Dresden and after an all-day ride we reached Nuremberg, a very quaint old city, but yet a great manufacturing center. Here it is that many of our toys and Christmas presents are made, and we learned that our good friend Saint Nick or Santa Claus has left a very large order for toys and dolls for boys and girls in America.

Christmas is a great day in the lives of most people, and to the poor boys and girls it is the one happy day in the year—if they get a present. In Nuremberg we visited the old castle, torture chamber, St. Lawrence's church, the Tugend Brunnen, the fountain of Neptune, the house of Hans Sachs the cobler-poet, the house of Durer the great painter, and the Bratwurstglocklein the famous old sausage house, where only sausages and beer are served, and here we took a meal. This house is always crowded and I should think that the proprietors make a fortune every year.

On Wrong Side of Street. I was amused in Nuremberg in watching a party of American women walking on the left side of the street instead of the right. I looked about for a policeman for I knew one would soon come and make them cross on the other side of the street, so sure enough I saw him coming, so I strolled along and watched, and the poor women looked scared and frightened. Then I began to laugh and told them I wanted to see them taken in by a policeman. After all I have had great satisfaction in helping to inform people from America, who are over here for the first time, and who don't know where to buy railroad tickets or what hotel to go to, what tips to pay and 100 other troubles; and sometimes I have to put both men and women out of a car that is reserved for us, and in which they have gone by mistake or otherwise. It was only yesterday that I put two big Americans out. They didn't want to go, but I said "You must, for you are in the wrong car." The position I have had this summer is a pleasant one, but by no means an easy task, for I must deal with officers and trainmen of the railroads, hotel keepers, custom house officers, agents of steamship companies, bankers, newspaper editors, priests, cabmen, royal post officers and the representatives of kings and queens as well as United States consuls and ambassadors, and I can assure you that of such a variety of people I must deal with that some of my duties are very disagreeable.

But we must hasten, again I have a party at the famous play called the Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau, a city of 2,000 people, not far from Munich. It was my good fortune to attend the first play this year and that was on May 16. The Amer river runs through the city. While here I heard that Miss McCoy of Madison, Neb., was at the play the same day. I was sorry I did not see her as that would have been a message from home.

Passion Play Makes Money. About 4,500 to 5,000 people see the play every day that it is given, which means about $10,000 for each performance, besides the thousands of dollars spent for cards, wood-carving, hotels and cabs; so that this is as good as a gold mine for these peasants, and they are just human and love money like the most of us. Hotels and rooms are very high, and the accommodations are poor. This little town is in a narrow valley surrounded by the Bavaria Alps, which are always covered with snow. The landscape is very beautiful, but about the only important crop that is raised is hay and we saw many of the women cutting, pitching and hauling hay and only a few men at work.

The Americans surely have a much higher standard of life than these poor creatures over here, who are old before they are 20 years of age. Bavaria is not nearly so prosperous and fertile in production as is Germany. Being at this time about 8,000 miles from home, I will close by saying we go to Innsbruck and Venic next.

News correspondent, Chas. Wayne Ray, July 25, Ober-Ammergau, Bavaria.

Tilden and Oakdale Win. Tilden, Neb., Aug. 13.—Special to The News: Tilden played the fourth game of the league series on the home ground yesterday, winning handily from Clearwater. The contest was one of the prettiest ever seen in Tilden. The visitors had the advantage in weight and experienced players and the fans looked for defeat. But the youngsters of which the home team is mainly composed showed really remarkable head work and the support given the battery was superb. Not the slightest unpleasantness marred the game and the large attendance was treated to as clean an exhibition of baseball as could be wished for.

day she complained that her back hurt, but the pain was attributed to the fall and little attention was paid to it. Friday she was worse, but after remaining in bed for a while she arose and played the piano until the pain forced her to stop. Then she returned to her bed, where she remained until death came.

When called on the case, Dr. C. H. Maxwell of Dakota City at once expressed his fear that she had infantile paralysis and ordered the other members of the family to remain away from the sick room.

The child's body was not completely paralyzed during the illness and there was no time when she could not move her arms and lower limbs.

According to those who cared for the girl during her illness, the days were marked by a peculiar uncomplaisance on the part of the patient rather than by a distinct pain. She seemed restless and could not find a comfortable position. During all this time her vitality was gradually leaving her and the members of the family realized yesterday that her strength could not last much longer.

There are two younger children in the family, one aged 10 years. The other is a baby of five months. Care was taken to keep them away from the sick girl in order to avoid the danger of contagion.

Infantile paralysis is not pronounced a contagious disease by the Nebraska laws and for this reason no quarantine could be placed on the Hall home. However on account of the agitation that has been aroused recently in Iowa and Nebraska, no one was allowed to come into the house and, because of this precaution, it is thought the disease will not spread.

The funeral was held at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home. The services were strictly private on account of the danger of contagion, although the law does not require a private funeral. Rev. W. R. Warren, pastor of the Dakota City Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. Interment was in Dakota City cemetery.

This is said to be the first case of infantile paralysis in Dakota City and the citizens of the town are alarmed. It is not known in what manner the deceased girl became afflicted with the disease.

Cut to Death by Steam Plow. Colome, S. D., Aug. 12.—Special to The News: Ernest Drogmiller of Wagner, a member of the plow gang of J. J. Donovan, of Dallas, met instant death in a frightful manner last Tuesday morning near the homestead of L. H. Thernes, six miles northwest of Colome, when he accidentally fell from the rear of the engine beneath the heavy breaking plow just behind. The twelve plows ground slowly over the young man's body as did the front wheel of the large gas tank before "Dad" Haskins, who had heard Drogmiller's scream and had hastened to aid him, could reach the helpless victim. Mr. Haskins succeeded in pulling the body from under the rear wheels of the tank, but it was too late. The plow had crushed the life out of their prey and had badly mangled him.

The crews of the two engines, plows and tanks had passed thro' a Colome early in the morning on their way to do some breaking near Winner. The accident happened near the claim of L. H. Thernes. None of the gang seem to know just how it happened, except Mr. Haskins, who heard the scream of young Drogmiller and he knows little more than that. The rest of the men knew was when they heard a woman crying to them that one of their men had fallen and was being ground beneath the plows. When they ran back they found him dead.

Members of the crew came to Colome and notified the states attorney, who, in view of the facts, it being plain accident, decided that no inquiry was necessary. The body was brought to Colome Tuesday afternoon where it was taken in charge by undertaker Rubash. An examination of

The Norfolk fancy poultry show will take place here December 12-13-14, inclusive. The local poultrymen in the meantime are posting up on "information about chickens."

Persistent rumors that a stabbing affray in one of the resorts in the east portion of the city had resulted in the severe injury of one man, could not be verified. None of the physicians of the city would say that they were called to attend to such a case.

Dr. F. B. Cogswell of Lake City, Minn., who is here visiting with Dr. C. J. Verges, will probably locate at some town near Norfolk. Wayne may be chosen by the doctor, who has gone to Pierce today in company with A. Buchholz on a fishing expedition.

H. C. Matrau has returned from a four weeks' vacation trip, which he spent in many western coast cities visiting with friends. Most of Mr. Matrau's time was spent on ocean liners around the Puget sound and Coos bay and Los Angeles. Mr. Matrau's face is quite tanned, showing the results of the ocean breezes.

Cut to Death by Steam Plow. Colome, S. D., Aug. 12.—Special to The News: Ernest Drogmiller of Wagner, a member of the plow gang of J. J. Donovan, of Dallas, met instant death in a frightful manner last Tuesday morning near the homestead of L. H. Thernes, six miles northwest of Colome, when he accidentally fell from the rear of the engine beneath the heavy breaking plow just behind. The twelve plows ground slowly over the young man's body as did the front wheel of the large gas tank before "Dad" Haskins, who had heard Drogmiller's scream and had hastened to aid him, could reach the helpless victim. Mr. Haskins succeeded in pulling the body from under the rear wheels of the tank, but it was too late. The plow had crushed the life out of their prey and had badly mangled him.

The crews of the two engines, plows and tanks had passed thro' a Colome early in the morning on their way to do some breaking near Winner. The accident happened near the claim of L. H. Thernes. None of the gang seem to know just how it happened, except Mr. Haskins, who heard the scream of young Drogmiller and he knows little more than that. The rest of the men knew was when they heard a woman crying to them that one of their men had fallen and was being ground beneath the plows. When they ran back they found him dead.

Members of the crew came to Colome and notified the states attorney, who, in view of the facts, it being plain accident, decided that no inquiry was necessary. The body was brought to Colome Tuesday afternoon where it was taken in charge by undertaker Rubash. An examination of Catholic Church at Winner. Winner, S. D., Aug. 12.—Special to The News: The cellar and foundation for the Catholic church at Winner has been completed and carpenters are busy putting up the frame work of the main building. This will be the largest Catholic church in Tripp county and people are justly proud of the edifice which will soon be in readiness for them. It is the desire of the people to also locate a Catholic school at Winner and the securing of same seems very probable. Certainly, with Winner located as it is in the center of the county, the location of such a school there would not be amiss, but would be of great benefit for all concerned.
