'BANANA ANNA' ALWAYS LAME.

The Very Latest in Skin "Grafting" as Developed in New York.
New York, Nov. 28.—Here's the very latest in skin games, as developed and perfected by Anna A. Strula otherwise known as "Banana Anna." As a feminine Rufus Wallingford, the fair Anna was in a fair way to amass a fortune from her inventive genius, until some naughty men got wise to her game. That was last June, and since then Anna's address has been the well-known Tombs, where she has been awaiting her appearance before the courts. The trial is set for today.

Four years ago "Banana Anna" was a poor but honest boarding-house keeper in a New Jersey village. Occasionally, as a variation from the customary prunes, she served bananas for dessert. To this fact was due Anna's fall from grace. She was a thrifty soul, and didn't like to throw anything away. But what to do with the skins of the bananas? Long and deeply Anna cogitated, until one day, ah! she hit upon what seemed to be the answer.

Placing a banana skin in her handbag she sallied forth to try out her invention. Selecting a suitable place on the platform of a railroad station, she dropped the banana skin, then stepped upon it, and gracefully sat down. As a game sport she sat down hard, injuring her spine and nervous system something awful. When the claim agent of the railroad had settled for the damages to Anna's constitution, she found herself in possession of more money than could be derived from the prune and hash business in many months. Choosing different cities as the scene of operations, and other railroads as the victims, Anna repeated the operation with great regularity, at times running the price of her banana skin up to $1,000. But she played her skin game once too often, and the Alliance for the Prevention of Accident Fraud got busy, with the result that Anna was sent away to the Skookum house.

Begin Steamship Probe.

Liveringhouse-Panabaker.
Wayne Herald: Fifty invited guests gathered at noon today at the home of James Harmon at the courthouse to witness the marriage of Jack Liveringhouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Liveringhouse, to Miss Effie Panabaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Panabaker. The court room was arranged and decorated for the ceremony, the color scheme being pink and green. Carnations and ferns were used.

Promptly at high noon the wedding march, played by Harold Mears, announced the coming of the bridal party. The bride was gowned in cream colored satin, and carried a bouquet of roses. The groom wore navy blue. Miss Cora Liveringhouse, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and Richard Auker was the best man. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. William Gorst of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Following the marriage and felicitations in the court room, the guests repaired to the dining room, where an appetizing dinner was enjoyed. Decorations about the festal board harmonized with the color plan. The afternoon was devoted to music and sociability and a general good time. Tomorrow the newly wedded couple will go to Norfolk, where they will live. The groom is in the employ of the Northwestern railroad company, and makes his home in Norfolk. He has spent most of his life in Wayne, and has a large circle of friends here. The bride has lived in this city about a year, having recently resigned as bookkeeper for the incubator factory to prepare for the event which has just taken place. She is a popular young woman and while here won many friends. In beginning married life, Mr. and Mrs. Liveringhouse are accompanied by the hearty good wishes of all.

A big masquerade ball was given here last night, with the Hurst brothers playing for the dancers, and a big time was the outcome. Everybody was well pleased with the music. They had a big supper at the Scotteys cafe.

European News and Views.
London, Nov. 28.—Parliamentary maneuvers for the past two weeks have been so puzzling that it is doubtful if even many members of parliament themselves thoroughly understand every phase of the vexed questions now facing the British government. One thing, however, is most apparent. All the leaders are exceedingly anxious to have the king on their side. The liberals and unionists are, and have been, unquestionably sincere in their efforts to reach an agreement. Much measure seems to be directed against Winston Churchill because of his apparent determination to effect a dissolution of parliament at any cost, without reference to its disturbance of the Christmas trade or the turmoil which would result when peace and quiet are indispensable for the coronation and the imperial conference.

An interesting development has been the implication of Americans in the trouble by certain London newspapers. The Standard frankly declares that there would be no constitutional crisis but for the American subsidizing of the nationalists. This journal says that "It is Redmond's, not Asquith's crisis. Redmond's patrons are not the poor, like Parnell's, but the affluent. It is the American business man, the American capitalist and the millionaire who are financing the home rule party for purposes of their own. They do not love England, and they want to prevent the adoption of tariff reform."

King George has given England quite a sensation by his announcement that he intends to go to India, with the queen, and that they will be crowned at Delhi, as emperor and empress of India at the beginning of 1912. There is no precedent for such an event. Queen Victoria never contemplated such a thing, and King Edward never visited any of his colonies after he ascended the throne. King George's project is wholly an innovation, considered in terms of custom and establishment; but perhaps it may be better considered, in terms of modernism and progress, an original idea, a step forward in the great task of strengthening and solidifying his empire, by actually appearing in his own person to assume the crown in his most remote dominion.

A coronation durbar on January 1, 1912, would present a spectacle unique in history. The boast of heraldry, the great pomp of England's power, would furnish the splendid stage setting for the central figures of an emperor and empress maintaining a personal relation with antipodean subjects. The appeal to the imagination of East Indian subjects would be very strong, and King George is astute enough to realize that England needs all the strength she can command.

"Tony Neno" Not Arrested.
Tony Pasha, known better in Norfolk and northern Nebraska as "Tony Neno," a member of the 1909 Norfolk baseball team, has been done an injustice in the publication in this paper, some weeks ago, of a story connecting him with a series of Omaha hold-ups. The Tony Pasha arrested for an entirely different person and the Pasha known in Norfolk as Neno was in no way implicated. It was the identity of the two names which led to the publication by The News that the former Norfolk ball player had been arrested in Omaha.

Upon hearing that the man under arrest was an entirely different person than the Tony Pasha known in Norfolk, The News sent a man to Omaha to investigate the case in order that, if a mistake had been made, the error might be corrected. The News representative returned from Omaha last night with the information that a mistake in identity, due to the two men having the same name, had been made. And this early opportunity is taken to correct the mistake and to express the regret of The News that any such error should have been made.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS.
A. T. Hutchinson is Made President of Madison County Association.
After an interesting business session of the Norfolk District Sunday School association, held Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A. T. Hutchinson; vice president, W. G. Percy; secretary-treasurer, A. R. Binson. Miss Margaret Brown of Osceola, state elementary superintendent, addressed the convention at the afternoon session on "Graded Lessons."

Rev. Charles H. B. Lewis of Lincoln, state secretary, conducted a question box. The evening session was held at the Methodist church, where special music from the church choir was enjoyed. Professor Reese Solomon sang a solo. Miss Brown's report on the convention of the world's Sunday schools held last June at Washington, D. C., was the feature of the evening's session. Miss Brown, who is ranked as second best woman worker in the state, is a splendid talker and kept her audience interested throughout her report. She displayed forty-five flags of forty-five different nations which were represented at the Washington convention. Secretary Lewis addressed the convention on "The Adult Bible Class."

At both sessions of the convention there was a large attendance and it was remarked that more interest was taken in the convention this year than at any previous time.

"BOYS" WILL MISS CUDAHY.

"The boys will miss their $10 this Christmas. Mr. Cudahy died Sunday night."

The "boys" are the telegraphers in Mr. Cudahy's office. The loss of their employer does mean a great deal. For many years, ever since Mr. Cudahy has established telegraphers in his offices, not one Christmas went by without their receiving from him as a Christmas gift a $10 gold piece.

A point of law was hotly argued in Justice Eiseley's court when the case of M. B. Cox versus E. G. Tews came up for trial. In February, 1909, Mr. Cox, who is now a retired farmer of this city, had an auction on many of his farm implements on his farm five miles northeast of the city. L. P. Pasewalk was clerk of the sale and made out a bill to Mr. Tews, who purchased several articles. One of these articles Mr. Pasewalk claims he overlooked and Mr. Tews, already having paid for the other articles, refused to pay for anything else. He declared if Mr. Pasewalk made an error it was no fault of his, he had a receipt reading "paid in full."

When Stanton was reached Sheriff Stucker, with the aid of the train crew, took Sullivan and his friend to the station platform, where Sullivan was told he would have to go to jail. He resisted and attacked both officer and train crew. In attempting to board the train he was knocked down and handcuffed. His friend made good his escape and reappeared in the smoker later, but Sullivan was taken to jail.

Taft After Sugar Men.
New York, Nov. 28.—The federal government today began one of its most important actions against great corporations which are said to have violated the Sherman anti-trust law. Henry A. Wise, United States district attorney, filed in the United States district court for the southern district of New York a petition asking for the dissolution of the American Sugar Refining company and twenty-eight other corporations which compose the so-called sugar trust.

The petition charges an illegal combination in restraint of trade and asks from the court relief in whatever form may be necessary, including a receivership, if deemed advisable.

Arbitrarily Fix Prices.
The companies composing the sugar combine have an aggregate capitalization of $230,000,000 and control a large percentage of the output of sugar in this country. This combination is able to fix prices arbitrarily. The petition charges that for years the companies have violated the law, have oppressed competition and ground competitors out of existence. Railroad rebates and customs frauds are mentioned as devices which were employed to raise the combination to the commanding position which it occupies today.

Will Take Two Years.
The present suit, which it is estimated will be in the courts for two years before a final adjudication is reported, is the result of the many weeks of preparation. District Attorney Wise made his investigations under the directions of Attorney General Wickersham and spent several days in Washington last week in conferring with the attorney general on the final plans.

The suit is expected to rank in importance with those of government against the Standard Oil company and the American Tobacco company, which are now pending in the supreme court.

Opposed to the government in the struggle will be some of the most able corporation lawyers of the country. James M. Beck, former assistant United States attorney general and now counsel for the American Sugar Refining company, will lead the attack on the government's position.

Awful Oil Case Decision.
The filing of the suit was a simple process. The government's petition in printed form was handed to the clerk of the district court by the district attorney.

Mr. Beck said that the sugar combine was not a monopoly but that if it appeared, when the supreme court interpreted the Sherman law in the tobacco and oil cases, that the sugar company was in any respect violating the law, steps would be taken immediately to comply with the law as thus introduced.

County Officials Night Riders.
Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 29.—Charges that nearly all the officials of Christian and Tripp counties were members of night rider gangs were made at the opening of the trial of the J. F. He was compelled to leave the state on account of night rider actions. The plaintiff has completed his case and the defense will begin today.

Al Schultz's Conviction.

She declared that she had not been kidnaped but that Severo had gone to make peace with the authorities. When that was accomplished, she said, they intended to be married.

The American ambassador was appealed to by relatives of the girl for aid in effecting the capture of the alleged kidnaper and the assistance of the Mexican authorities had been enlisted.
