Five strangers in the city, one negro, one cripple, two half breeds and an ordinary tramp were arrested last night and charges of vagrancy were filed against them. The two half breeds were found in a box car in the railroad yards enjoying between them a fair sized bottle of "red eye." Judge Eiseley turned the men over to Chief Marquardt, saying he could not hold them, and asked the chief to turn them over to the street commissioner's force. None of the men had any money. The men were ordered out of the city.
