Patton, deputy grand masters, and Harvey J. Rice, grand secretary, of Huron, were present. F. W. Thomas, noble grand, and P. J. Jokes at Death Sentence.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 24.—"If your honor please, I would like to have this order carried out tomorrow," was the reply of George Brown, a negro, when District Judge Huston sentenced him to hang Jan. 19 for the murder of Robert L. Durks, a negro farmer, near Crescent, last July.

Judge Huston seemed more grieved than the condemned man when he passed sentence. When the judge said:

"May God have mercy on your soul," Brown replied:

"I hope so, too, for the court and the witnesses have not had, and the court has no regard for human nature."

When Judge Huston pronounced the words, "You shall be hanged by your neck until dead," Brown answered briskly: "That's all right."

Asked if he had anything to say, Brown gave a brief account of the killing and said he acted in self-defense.

MRS. STEHR TELLS STORY

THE CASE HAS NOT YET GONE TO THE JURY.

STEHR DENIES MURDERING BOY

Tells of the Night of the Blizzard When the Little Fellow's Feet Were Frozen—Declares He Only Whipped the Boy to Correct Him.

Madison, Neb., Nov. 24.—Special to The News: The Stehr murder case had not gone to the jury at noon today, but probably will go this afternoon.

Mrs. Stehr was on the stand all the morning. Yesterday afternoon Henry Stehr, the defendant, occupied the stand and the general impression of those in the courtroom was that his story weakened the case. The manner of his telling the story, answering questions only when prompted by Attorney Barnhart, indicated his untruthfulness.

Stehr said he was 26 years old and had married Minnie Lucon, April 6, 1909, at Hamburg, Germany, when Kurt Stehr was not quite 2 years old. He came to America and lived at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hankrath, seven months, until his wife and child followed him. He stated he had whipped Kurt with a strap taken from an old harness several times for bedwetting. It was this habit of the child's that made Stehr want Kurt to stay in Germany, he said. He denied making threats against the child in case Kurt should be brought to America, as Mrs. Hankrath had testified. He said he entertained no ill will against the child, and denied striking him with an iron rod intentionally, insisting it was an accident.

Says Feet Were Diseased.

He said the child's feet were diseased and had been treated in Germany by a doctor. He denied having been arrested in Germany for ill treating the child, but admitted he had been called into police court on complaint of a woman for investigation in this connection.

He explained to the jury that he had bandaged the child for a disease, causing marks on the stomach and hips. He explained the mark on the eye by stating the child had fallen out of bed, striking his eye on a box. Photographs of the exterior and interior of the Stehr home and an exact model of the child's bed were introduced.

Stehr said on Monday preceding the amputation he had a half bushel of coal and $2.50 in cash and was out of a job. Asked why he had failed to call a physician earlier, he said he had no money.

Child's Feet Frozen.

He said the child's feet were frozen during the blizzard of Jan. 1. He was awakened in the night and found the walls of the room white with frost and snow, the boy's bedding being frozen stiff. He arose, changed the boy's bedding, put a dry cover over him, covered his feet and went back to bed. The next morning he found much snow in the house and the boy complained that his feet hurt (at another point Stehr had said the boy did not complain about his feet until about five days later.)

Put Feet in Hot Water.

He put the child's feet in hot water and later put vaseline on them. Stehr said he first called Dr. Pilger. Later the same day he called Dr. Verges, who administered applications and later returned with Dr. Tashjian. Then County Commissioner Burr Taft came. Next day, assisted by Loebus, Stehr took the boy to the Klentz home and never saw the little fellow afterward. Two days later he was arrested. He was not advised of the death or the funeral.

How to be Certain of Curing Constipation

Prejudice is a hard thing to overcome, but where health is at stake and the opinion of thousands of reliable people differs from yours, prejudice then becomes your menace and you ought to lay it aside. This is said in the interest of people suffering from chronic constipation, and it is worthy of their attention.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubborn constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. Parents are giving it to their children today who were given it by their parents, and it has been truthfully said that more druggists use it personally in their families than any other laxative.

Letters recently received from Mr. Harry Heckshurg, Elliott, Iowa, and Mrs. E. Goding Dix, Nebr., are but a few of thousands showing the esteem in which Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is held. It is mild, gentle, non-gripping—no violent, like salts or cathartics. It cures gradually and pleasantly so that in time nature again does its own work without outside aid. Constipated people owe it to themselves to use this grand bowel specific.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. E. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

Powers, Stehr admitted whipping the boy with a leather strap for the reason complained of, at least three times and admitted telling Julius Kell the boy's feet were frosted in the blizzard. He denied that he had locked the child in an outbuilding during the storm.

When court convened this morning Paul Luebke was on the stand. He testified that Mrs. Stehr came to him and asked him what doctor to get. He advised her to get Dr. Pilger. The following day she came again, desiring a different doctor, and he advised Dr. Verges.

The Fatal Night.

Mrs. Stehr for the defense took the stand. She said that on the night of the blizzard her husband got out of bed, put the little boy in bed with her, turned over his mattress and tucked Kurt back into his bed. Kurt did not complain of the cold. In the morning her bed was covered with frost. Her husband got breakfast and Kurt was up and ate without complaining of his feet. He did not walk much, but that was not unnatural for him. She first noticed that his feet were sore on Jan. 5, when her husband put the feet in hot water. She didn't know the feet were frozen. They got salt and bandaged the feet. On Sunday they decided to get a doctor but she urged her husband, who had no money, to wait another day. Then she called on Mr. Luebke and got Dr. Pilger. He didn't care to attend the case and Dr. Verges was called. On Wednesday he brought Dr. Tashjian and they were four corners of the earth and intended to put in vogue among her friends.

Mrs. Gouraud has seen them all and learned them all and volunteers are swarming to her to get the steps and paces. A select little gathering of thirty saw the opening parade.

At the future entertainments, as soon as the real program is taken up, all those Tonga dances and Honolulu Kuis, Oriental Sitas, and French Malchisses will be performed in costume, each costume being reckoned in troy weight or milligrams. Last night the dancers danced merely in evening dress, so that the real thrill was not accomplished.

Of all her new dances Mrs. Gouraud rather favors the Honolulu Kui. It is more daring, more artistic, more indescribably wonderful than any of the others.

"Words are inadequate to describe the Kui," exclaimed the latest worshiper at the shrine of the mystic toe. "One must see this dance to appreciate it. It is terrific, exalting, overwhelming. The dancer wears a sort of skirt of leaves and as she dances the leaves leave one by one. You do not notice this, the dance is so gripping, the music so soul shaking. You see only grace and art—art in its depths and heights of passion."

"I had twenty of my friends try this dance in Paris and it was an astounding success. It just turned everything upside down."

"Indeed, the fascination of this dance is indescribable. You feel every movement. You breathe the breath told the child would be taken from them. She didn't go to the Klentz home that day because she was not very well. She went the next day. Kurt called after her when she left. She went the next day and then didn't see him again until after death. On Sunday she had washing to deliver but intended to visit the boy in the afternoon. Then she was told he was dead and she did not go until evening. She left her baby locked in the house.

The defense then called William Mickle who testified as to the care that had been taken of the Stehr home, into which he moved after the Stehrs left.

Dr. Pilger was called to show that gangrene might result from other causes.

Teeth extracted, cavities prepared for filling, and live nerves removed without pain. Dr. A. B. Ayres, dentist, Room 5, Bishop block.

SOCIETY TO TROPICAL DANCES

MRS. JACKSON GOURAUD WILL SHOW NEW YORK WEIRD DANCES OF WORLD.

New York, Nov. 24.—Tropical dances, tempestuous dances, dances filled with wild, weird, tumult; slow, throbbing dances that turn the soul on beam ends; danceless dances, suggesting the oriental, occult and devout; awakening, thrilling maddening dances; dances in which the dancer sits down and dances with the feet and arms; turkey frots, and Honolulu hoola hoola—all are on Mrs. Jackson Gouraud's amazing winter program.

Recently at her home at 46 West Fifty-sixth street this young society woman gave a prelude entertainment to the winter's "big show." Later she revealed the extent of her program and described, as far as words can describe, some of the tremendous sarabandes, capricolles, and artistic dream dances she has garnered from the

I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almanac. Believing it would do me good, I went to my druggist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am today feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.
