He walked the entire distance to this city and is charged with attempting to beat a hotel and livery bill, which amount is given at $16. When Randall was confronted by J. E. Atkins and Constable Thompson for immediate settlement he did not hesitate in giving them a check on one of the West Point banks for the amount. Becoming suspicious they telephoned to the bank officials and found that no person by the name given had any account there, nor did they know of any such person. Randall had Atkins communicate with a cousin at West Point yesterday morning, who stated that he would be in Neligh on the evening train to settle the matter.

Is in Jail for Beating Hotels.

Neligh, Neb., March 27.—Special to The News: J. B. Young was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Jackson on a complaint filed by Charles Beer of Oakdale, who charged him with beating his hotel bill, which amounted to $12. He appeared before Police Judge Cassidy, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Several weeks ago he landed at Battle Creek and Meadow Grove, registering at each town under the name of McDonald, representing himself to be a land buyer and having in his possession more money than some people had. His plan was to make it emphatically known in the town that he was in a position to pay cash for all the land he purchased. It goes without saying that the land agents were exceedingly busy showing the prospective buyer their various farms. For some unknown reason he failed to buy from any of the agents in the places mentioned and being in such haste to leave town forgot to settle his hotel bills.

His next stop was Oakdale, where he registered under the name of Young, D. B. Otis of the State bank was visited and the man's flow of the English language very shortly convinced the assistant cashier that he was business all the way through. He was pleased to make his acquaintance and assured him that he had the best land in Antelope county at his disposal. Landlord Beers became suspicious on account of the stranger's various excuses, and when payment for his hotel bill was demanded, stated that he would immediately call at the bank and secure the money. He failed to find the bank and took a taxi pass for Neligh.

Young arrived here more than a week ago and his failure to register at the Atlantic hotel was the only reason that he had not been arrested several days ago. And only on a pretense that he was a personal friend of R. S. Payne was this trivial matter overlooked by the landlord.

In a couple of days the "land buyer" had been informed that T. S. Pexton and R. S. Payne of the Atlas bank of this city had abundance of farm land in their possession that they would gladly convert into cash. Both of these men were interviewed by the stranger and each felt certain that he would land the buyer, and at one time it seemed that hard feelings could not be averted between Reuben and Tom as to who's land Young was going to purchase, because each had donated quite liberally for livery hire and cigars. Before any deal was consummated, however, the arrest was made. During his stay in this city at the Atlantic hotel, he had not paid for his board and room.

Valley from a flood. The Elkhorn river, says Mr. Hutchinson, is in good shape and he can see no danger of a flood in this vicinity.

The identified man was arrested by Pilger six years ago. He had broken out of jail at Pilger, Neb., at the time and escaped to this city with a bullet hole through his arm as the result of being shot with a 45-caliber revolver, by the Pilger marshal. Mr. Pilger declared the wound at that time was dangerous.

The man last night refused to show Mr. Pilger the scar and denied ever having been shot. The same man was identified by Patrolman Livingston as the tramp who broke into a South Norfolk home some years ago and terrorized the wife of a railroad man. The tramp believed the woman to be alone and his arrest followed the punishment he received at the hands of the irate husband who was in another room.

The same man was arrested at one time in a beer vault where he commanded a gang of ten tramps who solicited "beer" funds by terrorizing women in the residence portions of the city. The man will be prosecuted by County Attorney James Nichols who reached the city.

OBJECT TO APPOINTMENT.

Arizona Legislature Files Protest Against Former Governor.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 27.—The Arizona legislature by an overwhelming majority adopted resolutions objecting to the appointment of former territorial Governor, Richard Sloan to be United States judge for the district of Arizona.

Mr. Sloan was attacked in speeches made by democratic members. Senator T. Hughes of Tucson charged that Sloan was supported by the railroads "who hoped, through him, to test the reach and powers of the state railroad commission."

Senator Alonzo Hubbell, republican of Apache county, defended Sloan, characterized the resolution as being intended to "ruin Sloan's character," and declared its adoption "merely a partisan act."

Through trains between Keokuk and St. Louis are annulled. The river at Gregory is said to be nine miles wide and the gorge which has formed is fifty feet high.

But That's Not Fair.

Burke, S. D., March 27.—Spring Editor, The News: Burke beats them all in seeking the first signs of spring. A meadow lake was seen by several farmers here about Feb. 1. If that date is in danger of being eclipsed by competitors, it can be set back further and still be in the bounds of truthfulness. For proof and explanation, a meadow lake wintered here in an "old homesteader's" shack near his farm. It was seen often during the winter at different farm houses searching for food and water. Grain was thrown out wherever it made a visit. Yesterday it came up to the house and gave us the first number of its spring recital. Neighbors here will corroborate this. Burke challenges any other community to beat it. Yours respectfully, Bahara Stock Farm.

Mr. Bryan said it would be as bad "from policy as from principle" to nominate Harmon. "It would be criminal folly," he declared.

Mr. Bryan sharply criticized Col. Roosevelt in his race for a third term. "Will you tell me he is only a receptive candidate when he appoints a chairman to go out and organize a call for him and then goes out making speeches seeking the place? Roosevelt says Taft's administration is a failure. He says there is no other man in the republican party able to save the party from defeat. He nominated Taft. Now he breaks a precedent of over 100 years' standing because he thinks Taft is a failure. What has Roosevelt done to deserve an honor that was denied to the founder of this government, that was denied to Jefferson, that was denied to Grant? And it was not a 'consecutive' term that Gen. Grant sought—he had been out of office four years and had been around the world. He was the greatest general of the greatest civil war of history—but the people did not regard the two-term limit a 'silly sentiment,' as Senator Beveridge has declared it, at that time. I think the presidency should be limited to one term."

Mr. Bryan declared that when he was a candidate Wall street offered him its support if he would consent to permit the money power to name the supreme judges he should have to appoint.

The Packers Acquitted. Mr. Bryan said the Chicago packers had been acquitted because the supreme court wrote the word "reasonable" into the anti-trust law.

Mr. Bryan said recent primary results did not indicate that the call for Roosevelt to break the third term precedent was by any means unanimous. He said if the republicans wanted a progressive, La Follette was far and away ahead of Roosevelt; that they were not in the same class.

During his speech, Mr. Bryan spoke for his already well known doctrines. He told of his pioneering for an income tax, for publicity before election of campaign contributions, for publicity of recommendations for supreme court appointments, for publicity of the names of owners of newspapers, for reduction in the tariff and free sugar and for low tolls through the Panama canal.

Mr. Bryan said he agreed with both Taft and Roosevelt—that each declares the other should not be nominated.

When told of Col. Roosevelt's speech in Chicago, advocating an interstate trust commission, he said: "Will he put Perkins on it?"

Senator P. J. Hale introduced Mr. Bryan to the Norfolk audience. C. B. Durland, who was on the platform with other democrats, made a request of Mayor John Friday, that the latter, as mayor of the city should introduce the speaker. Mayor Friday refused to do this, according to Mr. Durland.

Mr. Durland was unwilling to say what reason Mayor Friday gave him for refusing to introduce Mr. Bryan. "That gets down into personal matters," Mr. Durland said. "He refused, as mayor of the city, to introduce Mr. Bryan. He did not decline to go to the Oxnard hotel to meet Mr. Bryan but he said he would not introduce him to the audience."

Mayor Friday, when asked his reasons for not introducing Mr. Bryan to the audience, declared that he had not refused the honor.

"I did not refuse to introduce him," says the mayor. "I was called to the bridge north of the city where an ice gorge had formed and it was impossible for me to introduce him. I returned from the river too late and when I reached the Auditorium where I listened to Bryan for a little while, he was already speaking. A. J. Koestgen asked me during the afternoon to be on the platform and I could not promise this."

On the platform with Mr. Bryan were: Senator Hale, C. B. Durland, J. H. Kemp, of Wayne, E. O. Garrett of Fremont, W. H. Weeks and A. J. Koestgen.

pointment and I urged the governor to abide by the choice of the state legislature. Since then Hitchcock has hated me although at times, for obvious reasons, he has concealed his hatred. At times I have thought I had him a good democrat. But now, instead of being an aristocrat, he has got into the plutocratic class. He's a republican."

Mr. Bryan addressed a packed house at the Auditorium. He declared democracy is growing faster than he had ever hoped to see it. He never had hoped for the adoption of so many of his ideas. He never had hoped for such an opportunity for democratic success as is offered by the republican split. But democrats must not throw away their opportunity and return to the reactionaries, as they did in 1904. The nominees must be a progressive. He is "indifferent" as between Clark and Wilson but he said Morgan wants Harmon nominated and that Harmon has always been "on the other side," against the masses.

"Would Be Criminal Folly." Mr. Bryan said it would be as bad "from policy as from principle" to nominate Harmon. "It would be criminal folly," he declared.

Mr. Bryan sharply criticized Col. Roosevelt in his race for a third term. "Will you tell me he is only a receptive candidate when he appoints a chairman to go out and organize a call for him and then goes out making speeches seeking the place? The Bishop of Neligh. Neligh, Neb., March 28.—Special to The News: The annual visitation of Bishop Williams to St. Peter's Episcopal church in Neligh, on March 25th goes into history as one of the greatest occasions of its kind in this city. In the afternoon the Bishop administered the apostolic rite of Holy Baptism to four prominent Neligh people, and at 6 o'clock, after a delightful dinner given in honor of the Bishop by the ladies of the church, at which over thirty members of the church were present, the Bishop addressed the club and by a rising vote was made an honorary member of the same.

A very agreeable surprise awaited the Bishop, when at the beginning of the service, in response to the pastor's invitation, twenty-three persons came forward to receive the sacrament of confirmation.

The bishop's address on the subject of "Holy Baptism" in the afternoon was a most instructive one, while his message at the evening service was inspiring and impressive. The altar was beautifully decorated with American beauty roses presented by Mrs. C. L. Watters, also two new Candelabra, which were blessed by the Bishop at the afternoon service, each of which holds the symbolic lights of the seven-fold gifts of the Holy Spirit.

The confirmation class comprising some of the most prominent people in Neligh, was the largest ever known here. The Bishop's introductory remarks were instructive and certainly showed the importance of a sacrament which comes to us but once in a life time. His address was most inspiring and many who had not listened to express in tones of greatest satisfaction the benefits which they had received in listening to his magnificent presentation of the seven-fold gifts of seven and its multiples, and the thoughts which were so clearly put, left no doubt in the minds of the congregation that those who were privileged to receive the laying on of hands were indeed blessed.

At the close of the evening service the men repaired to the club rooms and held a business session at which the Bishop was present and in a very interesting manner, gave a number of reminiscences.

Hillsville, Va., March 28.—We will get them today," was the promise again this morning from the trail of the Allen gang.
